HOOVER ASKED O. K. ON DAWES' LOAN: COUZENS

For Political Effect, Senator Says.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Before a jammed courtroom, United States Senator James Couzens [Rep., Mich.] today related his own "inside story" of events—ranging from the White House to the Dearborn office of Henry Ford—that preceded the Michigan and national bank holidays, and charged that banker witnesses before an investigating jury here had not "told all they knew."

The jury for several weeks has been investigating the closing of two large national banks in Detroit.

At one point during his day on the witness stand the senior Michigan senator veered from the Michigan banking situation to say that during the last national political campaign former President Herbert Hoover had asked him to issue, "for political purposes," a statement approving the Reconstruction Finance corporation's 90 million dollar loan to the Chicago bank headed by Charles G. Dawes, former R. F. C. president.

Sharply Criticizes Bankers.

Banker critics of the senator came in for sharp criticism. In blunt, terse phrases he let it be known that he was displeased with bankers' handling of the national crisis.

"A lot of things happened in national banks for which no criminal prosecution can be brought," he said, "but if civilization is to exist and rely on criminal law and not on morals and ethics we might as well give up. The ethics of banks here and outside could not be prosecuted, but some of the acts were as vicious and as shameful as could be."

Yesterday Wilson W. Mills, former chairman of the First National bank, Detroit, the country's largest closed bank, accused Couzens of blocking an R. F. C. loan to the Union Guardian Trust company of Detroit that would, he said, have prevented the Michigan bank holiday, declared on Feb. 14.

Officials Oppose Loan, Too.

Couzens retaliated today with a statement that not only himself but "every responsible government official" had opposed the loan because of insufficient collateral, declared the loan would not have prevented the closing of the banks, and charged Mills with failing to tell "all he knew" about the state's bank crisis.

The senator suggested that his questioner, Prosecutor Harry S. Toy, ask Mills to tell "of the millions in default by employés and officers, and of the loans to favored ones." He startled the courtroom by charging that as early as last November, four months before the bank crisis in Michigan, the federal government told First National officials that the solvency of their bank was a matter of serious doubt, but declined to give the name of the federal officials, saying the matter was "confidential."

Digressing from the reading of a voluminous chronology, the senator at times replied sharply to his questioner, and at one point cried:

"How many times do I have to tell you to make you understand me?"

"Mr. Hoover called me by telephone during the political campaign and asked me for a statement of my approval of the Dawes bank loan. I said I would be glad to do so if he got an opinion from his attorney general that I would not be violating the law. All loans had been confidential until about July 15, when a law was passed requiring the R. F. C. to report to congress on all loans made in secrecy."

R. F. C. Scared by Criticism.

"The nation was shocked when it leaked out from some source unknown to me that Dawes, former president of the R. F. C., had got a loan of $90,000,000," he said. "Of course, the party that was out of power capitalized on that. Frankly, that scared the R. F. C. and made it more cautious. I asked the senate to appoint a committee of five to investigate all loans made in secrecy.

"You must remember Dawes got his loan in June for a new bank. He was not going to put $90,000,000 in an old bank and have the wise ones withdraw their money, but was going to give all depositors an equal chance."

The senator, reading from his manuscript, told of conferences with Henry Ford by telephone, and said that he [Couzens] offered to enter a joint guarantee with the motor magnate that the government would not suffer loss if it loaned the Union Guardian $45,000,000 instead of the $37,700,000 which the R. F. C. agreed was the limit under collateral offered.

Ford, he said, refused the offer, pre-

BUCKS MONSOONS, SIROCCOS, SAND IN LONG FLIGHT

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A bronzed man clambered out of a battered airplane at Croydon air field late tonight and, handing his log book to one of two ground mechanics, remarked:

"My name's Woods. I have just flown from Australia."

Jimmy Woods, 39, Scottish airman, started from Australia on July 5 to break Capt. James Mollison's record. The news was recorded only in newspapers which reached London ten days ago by mail. He struck monsoons, siroccos, sand storms, and other varieties of gales, besides overcoming a variety of mechanical troubles.

When he left Rome this morning he had no money to send a telegram to his wife, who was awaiting him at a Croydon air field hotel because she hadn't bus fare to London.

Gandhi Spurns Terms; Goes on Death Fast

POONA, India, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi tonight carried on his threatened fast unto death while the government of Bombay, the government of India, and the British secretary of state for India in London continued efforts to get the empire's most peaceful yet troublesome prisoner to resume his frugal meals.

It was reported as improbable that the Bombay government will grant Gandhi further privileges than it already has offered to him, but communications are still being sent between London and Simla.

Gandhi Spurns Concessions.

Gandhi started the fast last night by refusing his evening meal, although he had indicated earlier that he would not carry out the fast. He had threatened to go through with it as a protest to restrictions placed on him in Yeravda jail.

The Bombay government then offered certain concessions, but announced today that these had been unacceptable to Gandhi.

Gandhi had asked permission to see visitors freely and to receive and send correspondence in connection with his campaign in behalf of the "untouchables," India's lowest class.

Government Sets Conditions.

The government replied with the following conditions:

First, he might receive newspapers and periodicals, but he was not allowed interviews for publication in the press.

Second, he was not to see more than two visitors daily.

Third, he might send instructions and contributions to the editor of the Harijan Journal thrice weekly and a limited number of letters to other correspondents.

Fourth, he might have at his disposal a convict typist and books and newspapers needed for his Harijan work.

250 FRENCHMEN SLAIN IN BATTLE WITH MOROCCANS

PARIS, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Heavy fighting in Morocco, which during the past week has cost the lives of 250 French soldiers, most of them native troops, was reported in government dispatches today.

It was estimated that 25,000 troops have been engaged in a determined effort to clean up the last rebel strongholds in the Atlas mountains. Thousands of rebels have surrendered with their families.

Seven soldiers were killed in today's fighting.

CENSOR AT FAIR COVERS UP EVEN HIS IDENTITY

For several days a man past middle age, who represented himself as South Park Policeman James Moriarity, has been issuing numerous orders for the girls in the shows of the Streets of Paris at the World's Fair to put on more clothes. Otherwise, he threatened, he would close the places.

As the threatened sub-concessions, particularly the Visions d'Art and Olympia, felt that their performers already were wearing too many clothes, a protest meeting was held last night and the Streets of Paris trustees prepared a complaint about Policeman Moriarity and his orders.

While they were in session the policeman walked in and demanded a stenographer that he might order another concession dressed up. But this time Albert Culver, a guide at the Fair, recognized Moriarity as James J. Callahan, former manager of the Chicago White Sox. Callahan, who is 59 years old and resides at 4816 Kenwood avenue, was taken in custody and questioned by the World's Fair police. He was then released, the concessionaire refusing to place charges although it was established he had no authority to issue orders.

DUTCH DESTROY FLOWER BULBS TO RAISE PRICES

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

HAARLEM, Holland, Aug. 17.—This is bulb destruction week in the Haarlem district particularly and in Holland generally. The object is the same as that of the Brazilians in burning their coffee—to reduce the supply and increase prices.

The famous Dutch bulbs, once the pride of the nation, are now a drug on the market, after having made fortunes for many growers. In the Haarlem region they are being brought in in carloads and thrown into garbage cans and refuse piles. Hundreds of thousands of tulips, hyacinths, and narcissi are being destroyed in this manner.

Destruction week has been "decreed" by the "adjustment committee for rehabilitation of the industry."

Mrs. Roosevelt and Friend Are on West Virginia Tour

Morgantown, W. Va., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt arrived in Monongalia county today with a woman companion and field workers of the American Friends' society and is understood to be inspecting welfare relief projects in a remote mining section. Officers of the society were reluctant to discuss her exact whereabouts, saying Mrs. Roosevelt had expressed a wish that no publicity attend her visit. They said she plans to leave early tomorrow. She is traveling by motor car.

STOP ATTACKS ON AMERICANS! U. S. TO NAZIS

Assault on Surgeon Evokes Warning.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—American officials today warned German authorities that unless drastic measures are taken to punish storm troopers or others for assaulting American citizens the United States government will advise Americans against visiting Germany.

The latest incident in which an American citizen was attacked occurred in Berlin Tuesday night. Dr. Daniel Mulvihill, surgeon with the Long Island College of Medicine, Brooklyn, came here to study conditions in Germany and at the same time work with the famous German surgeon, Prof. Ferdinand Sauerbruch.

Receives Blow on Head.

Tuesday evening Dr. Mulvihill strolled down Unter den Linden and saw crowds gathering to watch the making of a movie. The storm troopers, as actors, were marching through Brandenburg gate. It was part of a Nazi film to glorify Horst Wessel, the young Nazi who wrote the words for the official Nazi anthem shortly before be was killed by a communist.

With the crowd, Dr. Mulvihill watched the troops. Because he did not raise his arm when the Nazi flag went by, one of the huskies hopped out of the ranks and landed a right hook on the ear of the surgeon, who was nearly knocked down.

When the surgeon reported to an American official it was decided an energetic protest must be launched at once to induce German authorities to take severe action to punish assaults against Americans which continue despite the promises of German authorities.

Britain Also Protests.

Great Britain also protested to the German government today. The British chargé d'affaires, Basil Newton, called at the Wilhelmstrasse to point out that the regulations issued recently by the Nazis virtually compelling German nationals to use and travel by German ships only violated the Anglo-German trade and navigation pact of 1924.

Nazi officials have called a meeting of the foreign shipping companies for tomorrow morning, and it is expected that they will then offer a more favorable agreement, since leading German shipping companies have objected to the restrictions imposed on foreign companies.

TELLS OF NAZI BRUTALITY

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 17.—The existence of a secret prison hospital in Berlin where approximately 500 alleged victims of Nazi brutality are hidden from the public and their families was revealed here today by the Impress, the German emigre press service.

Impress, an organization built up by exiled German newspapermen to disseminate uncensored German news received through grapevine channels, declared this hospital is situated at Scharnhorststrasse 13, Berlin. Patients, according to Impress, all are victims of recent raids by police or Nazi storm troopers.

Many of them are alleged to have received fractured bones, while two prisoners are blind from bullet wounds in the head. One of the inmates of the hospital is declared to be Willi Koska, former reichstag deputy and secretary of the German Socialist Red Cross organization.

Hospital Closely Guarded.

Impress' underground informants declare that the hospital is closely guarded and visits are practically forbidden. Several foreign newspapermen, tipped off to the existence of the hospital, have been unable to "crash the gates."

When patients die—and Impress reports that a number of them have died—their bodies are secretly removed and buried. Relatives are not informed until after the burial.

Curious information on conditions in concentration camps for political prisoners also is received by German emigres here. In many camps, it is reported, wholesale uprisings of prisoners have occurred.

One of the most interesting of these reports recounts the death of three Hitler storm troopers in the camp at Duerkheim, Rhenish Bavaria, on the night of Aug. 10.

Three storm troopers, not guards, but members of a large contingent of rebellious militiamen, were shot "in attempting to escape." The Duerkheim camp was especially established for recalcitrant Nazis.

Speed Murder Trials of 7 in Crime War

The thirty day delay practice which defense attorneys have used to advantage in the Criminal courts for many years to start criminal cases on seemingly endless continuances was upset yesterday by Chief Justice John Prystalski as he ordered seven persons, one of them a woman, placed on trial for murder within the next two weeks.

Judge Marcus Kavanagh, veteran of the bench, will probably preside over the first of these swift murder trials in the case involving the so-called "blonde tigress," Mrs. Eleanor Jarman, 30 year old mother of two children, and her two companions, George Dale, alias Kennedy, 28 years old, and Leo Minneci, 27. They are charged with murdering Gustave Hoeh, 71 year old haberdasher, who was shot to death in his store at 5948 Division street two weeks ago during a robbery.

Plead Not Guilty.

After the defendants entered formal pleas of not guilty, despite the fact that the police said they confessed, the case was assigned to Judge Kavanagh for trial. The defense attorneys, A. Jefferson Schultze and Irving Abrams, made the usual thirty day delay request.

"Did you say five or six days?" asked Judge Kavanagh after the attorneys had made their request.

"No, your honor, we ask for five or six weeks under the Supreme court decisions," replied Attorney Schultze.

"No, five or six days is more like it," replied the judge firmly. "We will start this case on Aug. 28, a week from Monday. Be ready without further delay."

Judge Kavanagh was also assigned to preside over two other murder cases. Chester Gallus, 28, and James Kuratko, 31, are to appear before Judge Kavanagh Monday morning to learn when they are to go to trial for the murder of Jacob C. Pederson, Cicero street car conductor.

Slayer Scheck in Court.

John Scheck, whose killing of Policeman John Sevick two weeks ago in the courtroom of Judge Charles P. Molthrop started the Criminal court campaign against gunmen, is also scheduled to appear before Judge Kavanagh Monday morning. He entered a formal plea of not guilty yesterday when arraigned. Several days ago he confessed he was guilty, but explained he wanted to consult a lawyer before entering a formal plea.

Scheck's mother, Mrs. Rose Scheck, is jointly indicted with him. She entered a plea of not guilty several days ago. She is charged with supplying the revolver which her son used in his attempted escape.

Judge Kickham Scanlan of the Appellate court, the only judge to answer the most recent call for volunteers to keep the crime war going, is to have as his first order of business Monday morning the case of Morris Cohen, who shot and killed Policeman Joseph Hastings last Monday when the latter attempted to prevent a robbery of a city street department office on Navy pier.

Put Chair to Work.

"The thing to do is to put the electric chair to work again to stop all this crime," Acting State's Attorney Wilbert Crowley said as he appeared to announce the prosecution was ready for trial in all cases. "The electric chair has not been used in Cook county for 18 months, despite the fact that eleven policemen have been killed by bandits since Jan. 1."

Judge Prystalski, in arranging for the speedy trials, analyzed the Supreme court ruling in the Lloyd Bopp case, on which lawyers for years have based their demands for an initial 30 day continuance in all criminal cases. In that case the reviewing court said Bopp's attorney had not had sufficient time to prepare for trial, but set no day limit.

The situation in that case, however, was that an attorney was made to go to trial the same day he was appointed. The attorney represented a co-

JOHNSON HANDS INDUSTRY RULES TO WORK UNDER

Roosevelt Tells Coal Men to Agree.

BY JOHN HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Uncle Sam, as the boss of American industry, struck out with both fists today.

With blunt emphasis the national recovery administration announced to the nation's oil industry the code that it will work under—and like it. The code imposes fixing of prices, control of production, and proposed limitation of imports. It is a blow in the face of the major oil corporations and it will go to the President tomorrow afternoon for his approval.

Miners Are Warned.

President Roosevelt, in person, summoned the leaders of the recalcitrant eastern nonunion mine operators and with equal emphasis informed them that he expected agreement on a coal code before he leaves again for his summer home at Hyde Park next Saturday night.

It was made unmistakably plain to all concerned that the industries of the United States, particularly the great basic ones, are going to agree on codes or have codes thrust upon them. The oil industry, which wrangled and could not agree, is to be the example.

Haled Before Johnson.

And coal is to follow unless a code is produced by 11 o'clock Saturday night, the President informed the four nonunion operators who were haled before him by Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator. The four were J. D. A. Morrow, president of the Pittsburgh Coal company; Charles O'Neill, president of the Peal, Peacock & Kerr Coal company; James D. Francis, president of the Island Creek Coal company of West Virginia, and Ralph Taggert, head of the Stonega Coal company of Philadelphia.

President Roosevelt's ultimatum was met, however, with a new determination on the part of the nonunion mine operators to stand pat on the open shop provisions of their original code. At an informal caucus following the White House conference they decided, it was learned, to insist on their open shop principles. Their action was regarded as the final step in forcing the government to draft and impose a code for the coal industry on a take it and like it basis.

President Does Talking.

According to a reliable report of what took place behind the closed doors of the presidential office, President Roosevelt talked at length and warningly of coal as a diminishing industry. He declared the employers' treatment of their workers had promoted more communism than in any other industry.

This is the beginning of a new era, the President is reported to have said, and the idea is to erect two pedestals, on one of which labor is to stand, with management on the other, and the government in between as regulator and mediator.

The President is said to have asked the operators whether they could by reducing wages put their workers on a temporary 24 hour week, and was told that wage cuts would mean a strike.

Sign or Take Consequences.

The President is reported to have favored a provision to fix prices for the next ninety days, in order to tide industry over the period when production costs will be increased and before increased purchasing power has made itself felt. Such a provision was disclosed in the oil industry code when it was made public a short time later. It was considered likely, therefore, that a ninety day price fixing policy may become a part of the recovery formula.

The coal operators are to meet tomorrow at a conference advanced from its original date of Aug. 22. They will be presented there with the tenth revised edition of a code for their industry. And, on the strength of the President's warning, it will be a case of sign up or take the consequences.

Steel Leaders Make Headway.

Stirred by a similar presidential order imparted yesterday, the heads of the steel industry were reported today to be making progress toward the formulation of a steel code.

Hearings on a revised code for the automobile industry are to commence tomorrow, with a dispute between labor and the managements' representatives over union organization provisions scheduled for an airing.

The code of the oil industry was announced to the industry's repr[illegible]sent-atives without fancy preliminaries. It is to be imposed on the industry, whether the industry wants it or not. Objectors were given until 10 o'clock tomorrow to state their complaints, but aside it was remarked by one of the recovery officials that complaining would do no good.

The code presented was drawn up within the recovery administration. No representatives of the industry took part in its drafting. It was news to the gathering of some of the country's biggest oil men, who met in the United States Chamber of Commerce building here to hear what the orders of the government were.

It was a dramatic and perhaps a momentous meeting as the spokesmen of one of the country's four basic industries gathered to hear what rules for the conduct of their business were going to be imposed on them from above.

Ostensibly it was a meeting of the committee of 24 spokesmen from various branches of the oil industry, who had been told that they would have a part in the drafting of the code. Actually, the meeting grew and grew, as more and more interested and worried oil men crowded in. From a small room the meeting had to be moved to the big auditorium. Nobody knew what the code contained —least of all the 24 committeemen who were supposed to have helped in drafting it.

Johnson Faces 300 Oil Men.

There was a delay in getting mimeographed copies of the code to the meeting. At the table on the platform at the head of the room sat Gen. Johnson, recovery administrator, blunt of speech, stocky of figure, florid of face. The 300 oil men in the room whispered or sat glumly silent, like persons waiting for a storm to strike. The copies of the code came. Without preliminaries, Gen. Johnson turned to face his audience.

"This is the code," he announced. "that, in my capacity as administrator, I am going to recommend to the President of the United States. He has been over it and so has the interior department, and we are all in agreement.

"I am going to present it formally to the President tomorrow afternoon with my recommendation, to govern the oil industry.

"I will now distribute copies. We will receive written memoranda up to 10 a. m. tomorrow and any representations may be made that you care to make."

He paused and stared belligerently about him.

"I have nothing more to say, except to distribute the code," he finished.

There was a rustle and a rush to get copies of the code.

Gen. Johnson called for four or five volunteers to distribute the copies. He got twenty. A stampede threatened.

Ordered to Sit Down.

"Please sit down," the general shouted. "Sit down, or I'll stop it immediately if you don't."

Miss Frances Robinson, Gen. Johnson's secretary, was at the edge of the platform. She pointed a finger at a scurrying oil company president and shrilled:

"Didn't you hear what the general said? Sit down!"

"All right, all right," came the grumbling reply from the oil men as they drifted back to their seats.

Those lucky enough to get copies of the code leafed through it eagerly to see how their business is to be run. The code contains price control, or, as the recovery administration officials describe it, a method of regulating price relations.

President to Fix Prices.

For 90 days after the code goes into effect the President will have power to fix the tank car price of gasoline. The price per barrel of mid-continent crude petroleum of 36 to 36.9 gravity is to be fixed during that period at 18.5 times the price per gallon of gasoline fixed by the President or his agent.

Thus, a price of 4 cents for gasoline at the tank car will mean 74 cents for crude oil of the specified gravity from the Kansas, Oklahoma, and Texas fields. From that basis, differentials will be established for all crude oil of other grades and from other fields.

At the end of the 90 day period the President may revise the price formula as he sees fit. It is to be a violation of the code, punishable under the recovery act, to undersell the fixed price, though the code is not to affect contracts already entered into.

The code is to be administered by two agencies. One will be a planning and coördinating committee consisting of 12 members, three to be appointed by the President to represent the recovery administration and nine to be representatives of the oil industry. The other will be a federal agency, probably chosen from the interior department, to be designated by the President.

The President is requested to limit petroleum imports to a point where foreign oil will not offer such competition with domestic oil as to endanger the purposes of the recovery act.

Withdrawals of oil from storage are to be subject to the approval of the planning and coördinating committee, but during the remainder of 1933, are not to average more than 100,000 barrels daily.

Determine Production Needs.

The federal agency is to determine what production is required to meet the consumer demand and shall "equitably" allocate the determined production among the several oil producing states.

"The allocations when approved by the President," the code states, "shall become the operating schedules for the producing states and for the industry."

Within the individual states the allocation of production is to be made by state agencies. But should such an allocation not be made, or should production continue in excess of a state's allotment, the President is to have authority to regulate the interstate shipment of oil from the state in question. In states without any oil regulatory body the code gives the President power to designate a federal agency to enter the state and prescribe the rules of intrastate proration.

Curb New Field Development.

In addition to the above provisions, the presidential approval is required for the development of new fields or pools.

The price fixing provisions, the recommendations for limitation of imports, the control of production—particularly those provisions giving the federal government authority to invade the states—are all direct hits at the major industries.

Another is contained in a provision which virtually declares a moratorium on any extensions of the so-called "lease and agency" and "lease and license" agreements, whereby the major companies have bound filling station operators to become their exclusive agents. The federal trade commission now has this marketing method under consideration. If the commission makes no decision within 60 days the President is to make his own decision.

Under the code's labor provisions it is stipulated that in drilling, production, refinery, and pipe line operations clerical employés shall work a maximum of 40 hours per week. All others except executives, supervisors, and their immediate staffs and pumpers on isolated stripper wells shall work not more than 72 hours in any 14 consecutive days and not more than 8 hours on any one day.

Minimum wages in these branches of the industry range from 52 cents an hour in the east, north central [Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin], middle Atlantic, New England and Pacific divisions, down to 45 cents in the south.

Work Not More Than 40 Hours.

In certain southern states refinery and pipe line common labor, provided it does not constitute more than 10 per cent of the total number of employés, may be paid 80 per cent of the maximum wage.

In marketing operations employés other than those in filling stations and garages and other places retailing to the public and except executives, supervisors and their immediate staffs, are to work not more than 40 hours a week and will be paid minimum wages ranging from 47 cents down to 40 cents. Similar exceptions as to common labor are provided.

New labor provisions relate to filling station and garage employés, limiting their working hours to 48 per week and setting the following minimum wage scales:

Fifteen dollars per week in cities of more than 500,000 population; $14.50 per week in cities of between 250,000 and 500,000 population; $14 in cities of between 2,500 and 250,000 population; and in towns of less than 2,500 population such employés are to receive pay raises of not less than 20 per cent, but not such as to increase their pay beyond $12 a week. The city wage scales apply also to the "immediate trade area of such city."

STORM BLOWS TREE ON AUTO; DRIVER KILLED

A sudden wind and rain storm, of brief duration, struck the Chicago area last evening. Windows in several buildings were broken, and one person was fatally injured.

He is Wesley Garbutt, 22 years old, of West Winchester road, Libertyville, former Libertyville township high school athlete. A tree, weakened by fire, was snapped in two by wind and blown upon his automobile in Milwaukee avenue, two miles north of his home. His chest was crushed. He was taken to the Condell Memorial hospital, where he died.

The weather forecast for Chicago and vicinity today is generally fair, with moderate temperatures. Tomorrow is expected to be warmer and probably fair.

PROF. OGBURN IS HOME; TELLS WHY HE QUIT THE NRA

Denies Reports of Feud with Mrs. Rumsey.

Prof. William F. Ogburn, sociologist of the University of Chicago, returned from Washington yesterday and made public his correspondence with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, which culminated in his resignation as a member of the consumers' advisory board of the recovery administration.

Prof. Ogburn denied reports that his resignation resulted from a feud with Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, chairman of the board and a heavy Democratic campaign contributor.

"Mrs. Rumsey and I had no quarrel," he said. "She is a nice lady." Prof. Ogburn said the purpose of his resignation was to call attention to the plight of the consumer.

Ogburn Program Adopted.

The principal part of Prof. Ogburn's letter of resignation consisted of seven recommendations for reforming the activities of the consumers' advisory board. While he did not see Gen. Johnson after his resignation, he said, Washington newspapers on Wednesday, the day of his departure from the capital, contained Gen. Johnson's announcement that the program Prof. Ogburn proposed will be adopted. The program follows:

"1. The consumers' main interest is in prices. If the evolution of industry is to be toward greater consolidation the partnership with the government should be strong to protect the consumer.

Depressions Act as Price Check.

"Price regulation is of concern to the legal department of the NRA, but the consumers' advisory board interested in prices is of a broader nature. Price determination is of particular significance in the basic industries such as oil, steel and coal. The full answer on price adjustments probably will not be written for many years, but the issue is fundamental.

"2. The consumers will lose unless indexes of prices and purchasing power are developed. The economic system of the classic economists was self-regulatory under competition. If competition is to be weakened by monopolistic tendencies I think the only automatic check on prices will be recurring business depressions. At such times the faster moving prices will be overhauled, but at great social cost, by the slower moving purchasing power.

Hold Advisory Board Essential.

"The expressed policy of NRA on this crucial issue is admirable but it will be blocked, I predict, for want of adequate indexes. Such a major concern of consumers calls for the best thought of the consumers' advisory board; for the alternative to such control is terrible to contemplate.

"3. The consumers will not be protected unless the administrative provisions of the codes are carefully watched. The first phase of your work as I understand it was to 'put the recovery act over.' This was brilliantly done under your leadership. The emergency nature of the act must soon give way to the long time setup. And it is here that the serious business of the consumer comes in.

Data Needed for Planning.

"In order to administer the codes without injuring the consumer a very full reporting service needs to be provided for in the codes. Such provisions are missing from many of the codes. A general policy might well be adopted. The voices of the consumers will undoubtedly be loud in the coming years on this issue. How can planning called for in the new deal be done without provision for such data in the codes?

"4. The consumer analysis of codes and reports on hearings is a rather large task, calling for considerable organization. If the codes become much more numerous I would recommend a consideration of procedure changes.

"5. Standards as to quality, the second great interest of the consumer, should be developed.

"6. The complaints, I recommend, should be handled by a 'line' organization and not by an advisory board. During my absence and without my knowledge the complaints of the consumers were relegated to a subdivision of the consumers' advisory board, housed in a private home and assigned to a group inadequately equipped to learn the facts of costs and prices, which are the topics of most complaints.

Asks Aid for Consumers' Board.

"7. The consumers' board needs unusual support. It has no supporting organizations as has the labor board with underlying unions, and as has the industry's board with their powerful and wealthy associations. There are 127 million supporters of the consumers' board, but they have few organizations, and can be reached only through the press.

"My recommendation is that the director or chairman of the consumers' unit be an individual chosen for good judgment and discretion who shall have free access to the press and all channels of publicity. The consumers' advisory board needs the hearty coöperation and support of the deputies and the whole NRA staff. In my estimation it would be a good move if you would call together the deputies and others of the staff for discussion of consumers' policies and give the consumers' unit a boost."

ILLINOIS NRA BOARD MEETS WITH HORNER TO SPEED PROGRAM

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The Illinois recovery board appointed by President Roosevelt to serve in carrying out provisions of the recovery program met today with Gov. Horner to form plans and discuss policy for the speedy and immediate inauguration of the national prgram under the NRA.

Quick action was the keynote of the conference. The meeting, which was preliminary in character, was attended by a majority of the members, who were: A. A. Sprague, Chicago; Eugene Funk, Funks Grove; F. D. E. Babcock, Bloomington; and Robert Irwin of Springfield.

Gov. Horner was delegated responsibility under the NRA of calling the Illinois board together. When it is organized it will function as a clearing house for matters related to NRA procedure in the state. A chairman and a secretary will be named at a later date.

2 Brothers Are Drowned on Sunday School Picnic

Ledges, State Park, Boone, Ia., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A Sunday school picnic ended in tragedy here today with the drowning of two brothers, Ralph, 11, and Hugh Johnson, 13. With four other lads the boys were wading in the Des Moines river and slipped into deep water. None could swim. Roscoe Hunget rescued four of the lads, including his two sons.

TEMPORARY CODE FOR BAKERIES IS ACCEPTED BY NRA

Johnson Approves Plans Pending Hearings.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A modified reëmployment agreement for the baking industry was approved today by Hugh S. Johnson, national recovery administrator.

The modified agreement, to remain in effect pending public hearing and final approval of a permanent code of fair competition, provides that employés shall not be worked more than 40 hours a week, with the exception that clerical and sales employés in retail bakery shops may be employed not more than 48 hours.

40 Cents an Hour Minimum.

Bakery shop employés in hand craft shops may work a 50 hour week, but no employés could work more than 8 hours in any one day, except before and after holidays and week-ends and other special occasions when a 10 hour day would be permitted.

Minimum wages for bakery shop employés in the north were fixed at 40 cents an hour unless the hourly rate on July 15, 1929, was lower, in which case they shall be paid not less than the hourly rate on that date and in no case less than 30 cents.

A 30 cent minimum was fixed for bakery shop employés in the states of Virginia, North Carolina, South Caroline, Tennessee, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Oklahoma, and Texas.

Tobacco Men Drafting Code.

Tobacco jobbers and representatives of retail dealers today were drafting a code of fair practices to be presented shortly to the farm administration.

The action followed an informal conference yesterday with tobacco experts of the administration at which the National Association of Tobacco Distributors and the Retail Tobacco Dealers of America, Inc., were represented.

One of the main objectives of the proposed code, the tobacco men said, would be to do away with cut throat competition through the establishment of minimum discounts for distributors and retailers.

Limit Copper Production.

Provisions for limiting copper production and setting up a 40 hour work week under several conditions were contained today in a code for the copper industry submitted to the national recovery administration.

The mining producers code proposed to establish an executive committee empowered to fix the percentage of production at variable percentages for the different classes of producers, classified now according to their production in tons.

The so-called class A or big producers could be limited to 20 per cent of their present production; the class B, or middle class, to 25 per cent, and the class C or small producers, to 30 per cent.

JACK MULHALL SUED FOLLOWING BRAWL IN WOMAN'S BEDROOM

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 17—[Special]—Four law suits asking damages aggregating $35,000 were filed today against Jack Mulhall, film actor and his friend, Charles Fredericks, aviator, following the brawl in the bedroom of Mrs. Maurice Fine, whose home the men are alleged to have invaded by mistake while "partying" in Santa Monica the night of Aug. 4. Fine asks $50,000 damages; his wife, Mrs. Patricia Fine, demands $35,000 and two neighbor women each ask $25,000.

Fine said Mulhall sat down on his wife's bed, saying, "Hello, sweetheart," and when Fine objected, struck him.

Mulhall and Frederick said they mistook the Fine's home for that of a friend who had invited them to a midnight party.

WALLACE SEEKS WAYS TO BOOST FARM REVENUES

U. S. to Purchase Dairy Products, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington; D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The ghost of the federal farm board's stabilization operations stalked into the new deal today as Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace sought to meet insistent demands for inflation with a "sound" program for boosting farm prices.

On the wings of the NRA blue eagle industrial prices are rising. But farm prices have sagged deeply on the speculative toboggan, and Mr. Wallace is face to face with the necessity for immediate and drastic action to keep the price the farmer gets for his goods in line with the price he pays for the goods he has to buy.

Turns Cold Shoulder.

To increasing agitation for inflation as a solution for his problem Mr. Wallace today turned a cautious but cold shoulder. He was not "the secretary of the treasury," he declared, and he preferred to leave inflationary policies to the proper officials. But he pointed out the temporary character of price increases brought about by inflationary methods and he pointed to the dangers he felt are involved in such a program.

As his own solution of the matter the agriculture secretary announced new farm programs designed to regulate production, remove surpluses, and increase prices.

The stabilization shade entered the picture with Mr. Wallace's announcement that the government will provide thirty million dollars for the purchase of butter, cheese, and other dairy products in the open market in an effort to increase prices.

Draft Wheat, Cotton Program.

At the same time, he announced that the agricultural adjustment administration is now completing plans for a long time wheat and cotton program which will be made known shortly in the belief that announcement of such a long range production control campaign will go far toward stabilizing and increasing present prices of the two commodities.

At the Chicago Century of Progress Exposition tomorrow, he added, he will announce a definite program for relief of the hog farmer, which he hopes will have a beneficial effect on hog prices. And in the near future a long range program for joint control of corn and hog production is to be worked out.

New demands for inflation came today from Senator Ellison D. Smith [Dem., S. C.], who declared after a White House visit that he "confidently expects the President to make a statement" on the subject, and from a meeting of dairy farmers, who urged the President to make immediate use of his inflationary powers to "make possible price increases to the producers of agricultural commodities."

Confer on Inflation.

And at the same time it was learned that Acting Secretary of the Treasury Dean G. Acheson had gone to New York to confer on money matters with Secretary William H. Woodin. Reports were that the entire subject of inflation will be gone over by the treasury heads, although the feeling continued that while another "psychological" dose of inflation may be imminent, the administration is not yet ready to embark upon a definite program.

Secretary Wallace, with an evident desire to stay within his own agricultural bailiwick, approached the subject of inflation with marked caution. He realized, he said, the pressing need for action to bolster sagging farm prices. But he feared that indirect inflationary steps already taken were the cause of the present critical condition in commodity markets.

Sees Danger in Inflation.

"Of course," he said, "inflation takes the immediate pressure off and delays the necessity for fundamental adjustment. Inflation causes speculative rises in farm prices, but the drop when the impulse of inflation wears off is faster in farm prices than in industrial prices. The logical conclusion is that that's what is wrong with our commodity exchanges today."

Mr. Wallace said he and agricultural adjustment officials are making every effort to develop "a sound program" for keeping farm prices in line with industrial prices, which, under the impetus of the recovery campaign, are forging rapidly ahead.

"Our problem is different from that of the national recovery administration," he declared. "We can't crack the whip over the farmers who have an individual type of mind. We have to depend on the farmer to help put our programs over.

"But we are hopeful that we will have a sensible program all the way around by the middle of September. We are making every effort possible to strengthen the agricultural market in a sound way."

Proposed by Conference.

The dairy relief plan announced by Mr. Wallace was proposed by a conference of dairy farmers claiming to represent a half million dairy producers throughout the country.

While details remain to be worked out, the scheme contemplates the establishment of a thirty million dollar federal fund with which a specially organized committee would buy up surplus dairy products in the open market.

The thirty million dollars would, under the plan, be regarded as a federal loan, to be repaid by the imposition of a one cent a pound processing tax or assessment on butter fat. Stocks of dairy products purchased with the money would be "disposed of in any way the committee deems for the best interest of the dairy farmers."

Greeted by Parents

Five year old Walter Strobl completed a two weeks' journey all by himself from Richenberg, Czechoslovakia, at the Union station yesterday. He was met by his parents, Ludwig and Clara Strobl of 1648 North Ogden avenue, who left the child with relatives three years ago when they emigrated to this country. Walter traveled in this country under the guidance of the Travelers' Aid society. His father is a painter at the Shoreland hotel.

ATTY. COVELLI'S EX-WIFE SHOOTS HERSELF; MAY DIE

Mrs. Alice Covelli, 28 years old, shot herself, inflicting a wound which may prove fatal, yesterday in the apartment of her ex-husband, Daniel A. Covelli, a former assistant state's attorney, at 5258 Congress street.

Mrs. Covelli, who has been living at the Guyon Apartment hotel, 4000 Washington boulevard, took her son, Daniel Jr., 3 years old, to the apartment and persuaded a Negro maid to admit them. She then sent the child to a neighbor's apartment with word that she intended to kill herself.

Neighbors heard a shot and found her collapsed beside a telephone in the hall. She told police her former husband had shot her. They reached Covelli by telephone at his loop office. Mrs. Covelli was taken to Frances Willard hospital.

Covelli later visited the hospital and asked his former wife why she had shot herself. "Because you've got another woman, Dan," she replied. This was her first admission that she had shot herself. Covelli told police his former wife had telephoned him three times during the day asking him to remarry her. Mrs. Covelli recently obtained a divorce on grounds of cruelty.

Burglars Enter Cedar St. Home of Arthur Bissell

Burglars broke into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Bissell at 49 Cedar street yesterday and ransacked several rooms. They were frightened away by the arrival of a messenger boy. Mr. Bissell, a piano manufacturer, and his wife are at Fish Creek, Wis. The burglary was discovered by the Bissells' daughter, Mrs. Paget Cady, and her husband, a broker. They notified police.

BUILDERS AGREE TO SIGN NATIONAL RECOVERY CODE

Large Chicago Companies Join in Program.

Members of the Building Construction Employers' Association of Chicago decided at a meeting yesterday to sign the President's reemployment agreement. Among the members of the association are the Master Steam Fitters' association, Plumbing Contractors' association, Electrical Contractors' association, Glass Jobbers' association, Machinery Movers' association, roofing contractors, elevator manufacturers, Associated Steel Erectors' and Employing Plasterers' associations.

More than 1,600 contractors employing labor are involved in the agreement to sign the code. Most of the associations named have joint arbitration agreements with the unions of their trades, covering wages, hours, and working conditions.

Willing to Aid President.

A joint meeting in the Builders building of the arbitration committee of the Employers' associations and the arbitration committee of the unions was described as a harmonious one. The union representatives were reported as all expressing their willingness to coöperate with the President and the employers expressed similar sentiments.

Acceptances of the NRA code received yesterday by F. L. Roberts of the department of commerce from the states of Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa totaled 4,616, making a total of 139,972 concerns in this area, employing 1,172,292 persons, which have agreed to coöperate in the reëmployment program. More than 1,000 Chicago concerns joined yesterday, making a total of 21,287 local companies, employing 670,264 persons, which are under the NRA standard.

The Commonwealth Edison company, the Public Service company of Northern Illinois and the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company yesterday signed the NRA agreement, it was revealed when C. P. Scheel, assistant postmaster, posed the names of the three companies on the honor roll in the United States courthouse. A total of 14,984 persons employed by the companies are affected by the agreement.

The Link-Belt company, with 2,500 employés, and the Chicago Title and Trust company, with 1,468 employés, were two other large concerns which signed the agreement.

Complaints of "Cheating."

Complaints against "cheating" concerns, which are flying the blue eagle of the RNA, but have not adopted the maximum working hour and minimum wage agreements continued to pour in. Investigation of these complaints will not be begun until after Sept. 1, it was indicated, so that no employer may have the excuse that he did not have time to enforce the new code.

Members of the National Warm Air Register and Metal Grill Institute met at the Palmer house to complete fair practice provisions of their code. A 40 hour week and a minimum wage of 35 cents an hour for factory workers, and the blanket code's provision of wages of $15 a week, or in some cases lower, depending on the size of the city, probably will be adopted, it was stated.

A forty-eight hour week is expected to be included in a code of ethics being drawn up by representatives of several thousands of independent tire dealers in session at the Hotel Sherman, according to N. P. Trimborn, general manager of the National Tire Dealers' association. Included also in the code will be provision for a minimum wage of $14 a week, it was said.

A national industrial code for 12,000 small town daily and weekly newspapers is expected to be adopted by delegates from press associations of every state, who met at the Hotel Sherman.

Small town publishers cannot come under the newspaper code drawn up recently because their field differs from that of the larger newspaper and printing plants, according to Harry B. Rutledge, executive secretary of the National Editorial association. Therefore, a separate code is being drawn up for presentation to the administration.

INSIGNIA FOR THE PRESS.

The Chicago daily newspapers, having signed the agreement reached between newspapers and Gen. Johnson, were granted the blue eagle insignia yesterday by representatives of the National Industrial Recovery Administration and the insignia appears in THE TRIBUNE and the other daily papers of this city.

DELAY FORECLOSURE ON WISCONSIN HOMES FOR PERIOD OF 90 DAYS

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 18. — [Special.]—There will be no foreclosures on Milwaukee county homes for at least 90 days.

Acting on the proclamation of Gov. Albert G. Schmedeman, the four Circuit court judges now on the bench decided at a hurriedly called meeting today to withhold action on foreclosure motions for that period. The purpose of the three months' grace is to give distressed Milwaukee county home owners a chance to apply for aid from the federal government.

The Milwaukee county board also will comply with the governor's request for leniency for delinquent tax payers. Eugene Warnimont, chairman of the board, said tonight.

Word of the governor's request caused a stir at the courthouse when it was followed by Circuit Judge John J. Gregory's calling of the committee of Circuit judges, of which he is chairman.

After the conference of short duration, the four judges not on vacation leaves—Judges Gregory, John C. Kleczka, Gustave G. Gehrz, and August E. Braun—announced that there would be no hearings on mortgage foreclosures for 90 days.

While word of the moratorium was greeted with thanksgiving by home owners faced with the prospect of immediate foreclosure, it was met with doubt and criticism by mortgage holders, building and loan associations, and mortgage brokers.

TORONTO BANS NAZI EMBLEM; POLICE ON GUARD

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Mayor William J. Stewart issued a warning today that any person hereafter displaying a swastika emblem would be liable to prosecution.

Police patrolled city streets and parks to prevent a recurrence of last night's disorders, in which several youths were injured in a clash which followed the display of a swastika flag.

The mayor's warning was issued after an emergency meeting of the police commission and Chief of Police D. C. Draper. Jewish citizens have issued an appeal for members of their nationality to refrain from acts of violence should they see the swastika emblem displayed.

MAYOR TO MAKE PUBLIC FACTS ON HIS INVESTMENTS

To Meet Attacks on U. S. Tax Adjustment.

Mayor Kelly last night began the task of compiling the facts concerning his income from business investments for the last ten years. When the work is completed, he announced, he will make the results public.

At his residence during the evening he confirmed earlier reports that he was preparing to meet recent attacks upon him in connection with the payment of his income tax by disclosing proof that for years his earnings from business investments exceeded by many times his salary as chief engineer of the sanitary district, the post he held before he was elected mayor by the city council last spring.

"In the statement I made yesterday," he said, "I called attention to the fact that my income for several years as a result of profitable business transactions accounted for substantial income taxes to the federal government.

Involves Extensive Records.

"Just as any other man under similar circumstances would have been, I was unable to make a more precise statement on short notice, something that would have involved going over extensive personal and business records for a number of years.

"Now I am assembling information with which to amplify that statement. Just as soon as this compilation of data is completed I shall issue an additional statement."

It is believed that the self-imposed task will require at least two or three days, as the mayor will not take time for it from his official duties at the city hall and elsewhere, but will devote his evenings and other spare hours to this purpose. But he was cheerful about this disruption of what normally might be his periods of rest and recreation with his family.

"I might as well do it now and have it all over with," he said.

Answer to Attacks.

His decision was caused by further attacks from the promoters of the fight against the school board retrenchment program, which continued to insinuate that he had profited personally from the transactions which resulted in the payment of approximately $70,000 income tax and about $35,000 penalty for a three year period.

His first public statement averred that the funds on which this settlement was based did not concern his personal income in any way, but related only to political campaign funds, from which he did not benefit. It also pointed out that newspaper estimates of the total of these funds were too high. It sought to make plain that the tax rate used was a high one because his private income, on which he already had paid the tax, had reached the upper brackets, where the rates increase sharply.

TWIN FINDS SISTER DEAD.

Miss Blanche Beck, 44 years old, an unemployed china plate worker, was found dead in bed yesterday in her room at 7226 South Ashland avenue. Her twin sister, Mrs. Grace Bennett, 1523 West 78th street, responding to a note requesting her to call found the body. Police said this circumstance suggested suicide by poison.

35,000 ATTEND OUTDOOR AUTO SHOW FIRST DAY

Crowd Comes Early and Stays Late.

BY HAL FOUST.

The first full day's attendance at Chicago's outdoor automobile show in the Congress street plaza of Grant park was estimated by R. G. Tiffany at 35,000. He is chairman of the Chicago Automobile Trade association's committee sponsoring the exhibition on suggestion of THE TRIBUNE.

"With favorable weather the total attendance will reach 150,000 before the show closes on Saturday night," Mr. Tiffany said. "It is demonstrating what was already suspected from this year's increase in sales—that the public has a renewed interest and an acquisitive interest in the latest motor cars."

Crowds Arrive Early.

At 8:30 yesterday morning janitors employed to sweep the exhibition space in the plaza had to push their brooms around the feet of several hundred early risers who climbed over the ropes to inspect the ninety-three shiny motor cars.

At noon George L. Willman, promotion manager for the trade association, estimated there were 2,000 men and women looking into, around, and even under the automobiles.

'In the first day," said Mr. Willman, "the salesmen obtained 460 prospects for sales. This probably equals a normal week's work in dealer showrooms.

Expect Increase in Prices.

"Although no admission is charged the bulk of the crowd were automobile owners. In their questions to attendants at the displays the visitors showed their interest centered on the engineering improvements. Others asked about the prospects of price boosts."

"An unusual number of the visitors were men and women now driving cheaper cars than they operated before the depression," said Mr. Tiffany. "They were looking at the vehicles in the price class they enjoyed before parsimony became popular.

"The first day has established that Chicago's first outdoor automobile show is a success."

The outdoor automobile show is part of Chicagoland week, which will reach a climax on Saturday night with THE TRIBUNE Chicagoland Music Festival in Soldiers' field.

Rain Curbs Pageant.

A program of Gilbert and Sullivan opera songs given by well known operatic singers on the floating theater of the north lagoon of A Century of Progress last night was followed by the brilliant international water carnival. It was an evening's free entertainment crowded with song, color, and movement.

Rainfall prevented many of the yachts which had entered the pageant and contest of decorated yachts from taking part. Out of one hundred and fifty originally entered, seventeen decorated boats moved across the north and south lagoons at 10 o'clock.

Led by the lagoon flagship, Wewintoo, the boats circled the shore line of both lagoons several times while fireworks lighted skies and two giant searchlights on the 12th and 16th street bridges played over the scene.

De Vry Yacht Winner.

Many yachts hastily decorated after the storm subsided entered the procession, so that in all a brave showing was made. All the boats entered were privately owned craft.

The only boat entered in the international class was Pastime, the yacht of George Chan, decorated to resemble a Chinese dragon of green and gold, its decks filled with pretty Chinese girls in native dress.

Typee, a yacht owned by Herman A. De Vry, Chicago yachtsman, won first in the ordinary class and will receive as a prize a sixteenth century Hungarian sword offered by the Hungarian exhibit of the Fair.

Rain Interrupts Music.

The musical program, which revived the familiar airs of "Pinafore" and "The Gondoliers," was interrupted by a shower after the first act of "Pinafore." Margery Maxwell and Edwin Kemp were singing "Refrain, Audacious Tar," when the rain started and many of the ten thousand in the audience before the floating theater arose. Others stayed, however, huddling under newspapers and umbrellas, applauding loudly, while a World's Fair guide held an umbrella over Miss Maxwell and she sang on.

The final act of act 1 was sung in a downpour, after which the singers fled to a studio in the Administration building, where the W-G-N broadcast was continued. After the second act they returned to the floating theater, the rain having stopped, and 10,000 more persons gathered quickly to hear the songs from "The Gondoliers." Irene Pavloska and Frederic Jencks were other soloists.

Indiana Girl Swallows Pin Riding Roller Coaster

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—The thrill of a roller coaster ride was too much today for Miss Ellen Ware. On the first incline Miss Ware decided to pin a flowing tie. At the top of the incline she put the pin into her mouth, but before she had time to remove it the car went sailing to the bottom and the pin sailed down Miss Ware's throat. At a hospital she was fed cotton and mashed potatoes, in an effort to sheathe the pin point as it passes through the digestive canal.

VIRGINIA GOVERNOR PROPOSES VOTE ON REPEAL OCTOBER 3

Richmond, Va., Aug. 18.—(AP)—Gov. Pollard today urged the extraordinary session of the general assembly to legalize beer, provide for referenda on repeal of national and state prohibition on Oct. 3, and to name a commission to study and report to the regular session in January a liquor control bill as a substitute for the state prohibition act.

The executive also asked that the section of the budget bill requiring him to reduce expenses to meet revenues, thereby preserving a balanced budget, be amended to limit the reduction to 30 per cent, the cut already made.

The governor recommended an excise tax of 10 cents per gallon or one cent per twelve ounce bottle on beer, the same as in North Carolina.

A referendum on repeal of the 18th amendment Oct. 3 by which not less than nine nor more than 30 be elected at large to meet in convention and cast the vote of Virginia was given the governor's approval.

The governor said he believed national prohibition would be repealed by Dec. 1, and that there would undoubtedly be a demand for a substitute for the state prohibition act.

MISSOURI VOTES TOMORROW ON DRY LAW REPEAL

Wets Predict It Will Be 22d State to Ratify.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—With an overwhelming sentiment for repeal of the 18th amendment, Missouri will go to the polls Saturday determined to become the 22d state to repudiate the dry law.

Realizing that the sentiment favoring repeal has been running steadily against them, the drys in many sections of the state are doubling their efforts in the closing days of the campaign in the hope of getting a break in Missouri, but only a miracle could overcome the wet majorities certain to come from St. Louis, Kansas City, and other cities.

Fearful of too much optimism, Joseph T. Davis of St. Louis, chairman of the united repeal council, which is leading the fight for repeal in the state, has issued a last minute warning to the wets not to fail to vote. Davis forecast that if repealists back their sentiments with votes, the state will go wet four to one.

Many dry leaders pin their faith on the legal effort now pending before the state Supreme court to halt Missouri's election. The proceedings are designed to compel the secretary of state to accept petitions signed by the drys calling for a referendum on the Weeks law which sets up the election machinery.

To the powerful Democratic organization in the state the repealists are looking chiefly to get out the wet vote. In St. Louis Democrats and Republicans are working together in the wet cause.

Unless interest increases materially the vote throughout the state will be unusually light, probably not exceeding 600,000 at the outside. In the rural sections of the state there is little interest being shown in the election and the cities will bring in the wet majority to authorize repeal of the amendment.

LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL FAVORS PASSAGE OF BEER BILL IN KANSAS

Topeka, Kas., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The legislative council voted today to recommend passage of a measure to legalize manufacture and sale of 3.2 beer in Kansas and at the same time present without recommendation another measure which would declare a beverage with an alcoholic content of more than half of one per cent intoxicating.

The legislature will meet in special session next month.

It was the consensus of the council the second measure should be presented in event the first measure failed of passage in view of the uncertain conditions since the Supreme court's decision that under present circumstances the question of whether 3.2 beer is intoxicating is a question of fact for a jury or judge to decide.

The council also virtually completed favorable consideration of a measure to permit state-wide vote on the question of repeal of the eighteenth amendment, having approved the proposal by sections.

EXPLORER FLIES OVER THE ARCTIC; FINDS NEW LAND

Unknown Area Is Located Near Spitzbergen.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 17.—Reports received here today indicated that Dr. Lauge Koch, arctic explorer, had made important discoveries in a series of flights in northern Greenland and over the seas toward Spitzbergen. The flights were made with Danish naval airplanes.

Dr. Koch believes one flight resulted in the discovery of unknown land between Spitzbergen and Northeast Foreland, the northeastern peninsula of Greenland. This territory, presumably, constitutes a chain of mountainous islands west of Spitzbergen.

Preparatory to the exploration flights, one of Dr. Koch's expedition ships, the Gustav Holm, sailed to a point near the northeast corner of Greenland. With this ship as a base, the explorer made two flights yesterday, covering nine and a half hours.

Flies to Peary Land.

The course of the first flight led across barren territories, passing over Northeast Foreland, with Peary Land as the farthest point.

The second flight took the planes across unexplored areas in the direction of Spitzbergen.

The most important result of the first flight, it is reported, is that Dr. Koch succeded in ascertaining that the inland mountain chain of Greenland has no connection with Northeast Foreland, as vast barren areas were found to stretch between them.

It was also discovered that a mountain range, which begins at the Denmark fjord, piercing northern Greenland, continues into Northeast Foreland, so that the long sought connection between the geology of north and east Greenland is now established.

VETERAN EXPLORER AT 40.

Although only 40 years old, Dr. Lauge Koch is a veteran arctic explorer. Since 1912 he has made many penetrations of western, northern, and eastern Greenland. The present expedition, the greatest ever sent from Denmark, began in June, 1931, and was to continue its explorations for three years.

Two steamers, eight motorboats, fifty-four dogs, and materials for two main stations and many smaller traveling huts comprised part of the expedition's original equipment. In the party's personnel are geologists, zoologists, geographers, meteorologists, cartographers, and radio operators. Among them are several Swedes, Germans, and Norwegians.

Dr. Koch's primary purpose was to complete the investigation of the coast between Scoresby sound, 600 miles north of Angmagssalik, and Denmark harbor, about 455 miles north of Scoresby sound. He hoped also to discover why the inhabitants north of Scoresby sound have died out and whether any possibility exists of colonizing the country with Eskimos.

ROBBED OF CAR AND $45.

Victor Pitlik, 3616 Prairie avenue, Brookfield, lost $45 and his new sedan yesterday to two bandits who got into his car at Cicero avenue and Madison street, and drove him to Karlov avenue and Polk street where they put him out.

PICK CHICAGO'S SOLOISTS FOR MUSIC FESTIVAL

8,000 Take Part in Program Tomorrow Night.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

With the final contest of Chicago vocal soloists and a rehearsal of the huge festival chorus at the Drake hotel last night, arrangements for the Chicagoland Music festival began to shape themselves into finality. This great festival will be presented under the sponsorship of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE at Soldiers' field tomorrow night.

It will be an evening of events. Exhibitions by the crack drum corps of Chicagoland will begin at 6:30 o'clock. The fanfare announcing the main program will be sounded at 7 o'clock. The gates of the field will be thrown open at 5 o'clock, and those attending may enter at any time after that hour.

8,000 to Participate in Program.

Here there will be the greatest massing of musical organizations to be found on the American continent this year. Bands, individual and massed, drum corps, prize choruses, great armies of massed choruses, soloists, another great army of dancers, lights, fireworks—all will combine to make the Chicagoland Music festival one of the great spectacles of a lifetime. On a conservative estimate there will be more than 8,000 participants, to be led by some of the most noted band directors and choral conductors in the country.

If the participating organizations are not listed here in detail it is because such listing would alone fill a column of type.

Chicago's own contribution to the competing vocal soloists this year consists of two artists selected last night: Alice Baenziger, contralto, 1525 East 66th place, who sang "Stride la Vampa" from "Il Trovatore," and Milton Craine-Smith, bass, a resident of Wilmette, who sang Bruno Huhn's "Invictus."

These are adjudged the best woman and man singer to be found in a city-wide contest. They were two of the fifteen finalists, five from each of the north, west and south sides of the city, the fifteen being the survivors of some 400 original entrants who have been competing in preliminary contests for the last several weeks.

Singers Compete Tomorrow.

Miss Baenziger and Mr. Craine-Smith will next meet some sixty other contestants from other cities of Chicagoland as being the best singers of their communities. This contest will take place tomorrow, and the two winners will be announced from Soldiers' field and will appear on the program tomorrow evening.

It was an agreeable, not to say inspiring, concert presented by the contestants last night. There is no possible way of predicting the outcome, but it is certain that standards so high were set that the winners, whoever he and she may be, will be singers of unusual merit.

As a matter of fact, the decision on Miss Baenziger was close. In order to make certain, the judges, Rose Lutiger Gannon, Louise St. John Westerfield, and John Dwight Sample, asked her and her nearest competitor, Evelyn Horn, also a contralto, to repeat their numbers. After the second hearing the decision was made.

Thousands in Chorus.

Then came the choral rehearsal, and it was enough to indicate that there will be something more to lift the soul on tomorrow night's program. Three admirable conductors directed and admirable chorus of several thousand in the Drake ballroom, and the results were thrilling. Noble Cain took the baton for the mighty "Hallelujah Chorus," George Lee Tenney for "Unfold, Ye Portals," and Victor Grabel for "Land of Hope and Glory." Meanwhile Allan Grant was performing marvels of execution on the piano keyboard as a substitute for the brilliant concert band which will play these numbers tomorrow evening.

Three Conductors of Chicagoland Music Festival

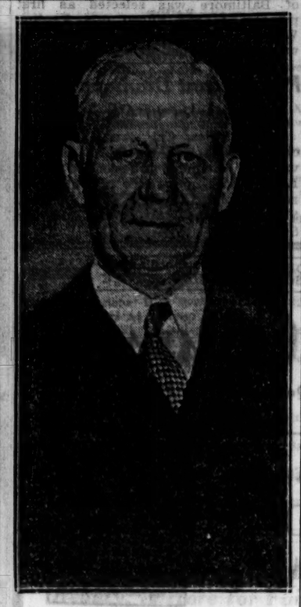
Albert Austin Harding, who will be guest conductor.



Arthur Pryor, who will also be a guest conductor.

100,000 Folks Will Be There!

Saturday Night

For the first time The Tribune is offering reserved seats to the great annual music festival in Soldiers' field.

General admission tickets, as usual, will be 25 cents. Reserved seats are 50 cents apiece.

Recall Engagement at 1893 Fair.

It was forty years ago that Arthur Pryor played his first trombone solo, and next Saturday night he comes as a guest conductor to the Chicagoland Music Festival.

Both events belong to the history of Chicago. Both, too, are connected with world's fairs.

In 1893 Mr. Pryor, then an unknown young man, was picked by the unerring judgment of John Philip Sousa as a member of his great band. One of the engagements of the band that summer was at the Columbian exposition, and there and then Mr. Pryor started on his spectacular career.

A Brilliant Soloist.

In a brief time his name was a household word wherever bands were known as the most brilliant trombone soloist of the age. Pryor and Sousa were almost synonymous in thinking of the glorious concerts of that time. Later Pryor left the Sousa band, organized his own band, and gave it his name, continuing, meanwhile, to play the solos that had given him world-wide fame.

Now the Chicagoland Music Festival greets him as a guest conductor, mellowed by years of experience, a commanding figure among band leaders, an authority on everything pertaining to bands.

Another honored guest conductor will be A. A. Harding, who for twenty-eight years has been the reason why the University of Illinois, season after season, has made fine band playing one of its features. He is not only director of bands but professor of music at the university. When you attend one of the Illinois football games you have occasion to marvel when the band takes the field, at its marching ability, and its precision and accuracy and toe tickling pep. You can account for it all on the grounds of Mr. Harding's ability to find and train band talent among the university students.

Musician of High Merit.

In welcoming brilliant guest conductors, however, it must not be forgotten that the Chicagoland Music Festival has in its own conductor a musician of high merit. He is Victor Grabel, band leader and general musical director of the Chicagoland Music Festivals since the series started.

A former associate of Mr. Sousa at Great Lakes Naval Training station during the war, Mr. Grabel was one of the first bandmasters to cross the ocean with the American forces. He is secretary of the American Bandmasters' association, in itself a mark of his ability, since no one is permitted to join the association without a complete equipment as musician and leader. A wise and far seeing organizer and director, he has put all his efforts into the Chicagoland Music Festival programs and has been greatly responsible for their success and influence.

On Saturday night he will present for the first time on these programs a brilliant cornet soloist, Ernest F. Pechin.

MUSIC FESTIVAL RESERVED SEATS HALF SOLD OUT

80,000 General Admission Tickets Available.

More than half the 20,000 reserved seat tickets for the fourth annual Chicagoland Music Festival, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and associated newspapers in other cities, have already been sold. This is the first year that any seats have been reserved for the festival, which will be held tomorrow night in Soldiers' field.

The price of the reserved seats is 50 cents. Holders of these white tickets need not go to the field until shortly before the festival program begins. Early exercises begin at 6:30. The program begins at 7 and the formal concert at 7:35 p. m. Reserved tickets will be taken at gates 3, 4, 15, 16, 27, and 28.

There are also 30,000 general admission tickets at 25 cents each. These also may be purchased now at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office at 1 South Dearborn street until 11 o'clock this evening and 8 o'clock tomorrow evening and in the lobby of The Tribune Tower until 6 p. m. today and tomorrow.

On Sale at Field Tomorrow.

Both reserved and general admission seats will go on sale at noon tomorrow at Soldiers' field. Ticket booths will be opened on the west side of the field. Those who make their purchases at the booths should not hurry to join the first line, but look about to see whether they can be accommodated more rapidly at other booths.

The gates of Soldiers' field will open at 5 o'clock tomorrow. Holders of either the reserved or nonreserved tickets will be admitted at that time. Many inquiries have been received asking whether World's Fair tickets are necessary. They are not, since the field is outside the Fair grounds.

As the gates open there will be 350 ushers on duty to guide ticket holders to their seats. More than 400 policemen also will be on duty. If all the tickets are sold late comers will be admitted to the track on the field at the general admission price of 25 cents.

In addition to the reserved and nonreserved tickets there are various kinds of tickets for the participants in the festival to admit them to the sections from which they will perform. These tickets, for which there is no charge, are for performers only.

Figures in Festival

CAR SERVICE TO MUSIC FESTIVAL BETTER THIS YEAR

Street car service to Soldiers' field tomorrow night will be far better than for any of the previous Chicagoland Music Festivals. The Chicago Surface Lines, in order to accommodate A Century of Progress visitors, has new loop terminals at 18th street and at Roosevelt road, both convenient for those attending the music festival.

Roosevelt road and Clark street cars operate into the Roosevelt road loop, while over the 23d street viaduct to the 18th street loop run cars from Broadway, Wabash avenue, State street, Wentworth avenue, Cermak road, Madison street. All are marked "To World's Fair direct."

The two loading and unloading stations have a combined capacity of 40,000 passengers an hour. From the Roosevelt road station the passengers walk across a bridge over the outer drive to the Court of Honor entrance to Soldiers' field. From the 18th street station it is a walk of two blocks to the south end of Soldiers' field.

CHIEF OF ECUADOR DEFIES CONGRESS' VOTE TO OUST HIM

QUITO, Ecuador, Aug. 17.—(AP)—President Juan Martinez Mera sent a special message to congress today, refusing to accept a vote of nonconfidence in his cabinet.

The executive yesterday addressed a message to congress in which he refused to accede to a request that he resign. Congress authorized a commission to call upon him demanding that he bowed to the popular will "in the name of democracy." The law-making body later voted nonconfidence in the cabinet for supporting the president's stand.

WRECKERS WIPE OUT LANDMARK 100 YEARS OLD

Ancient Tavern Believed Built in 1830.

Another Chicago landmark, perhaps the oldest, has passed into the limbo of historical memories. It was wrecked to provide another loop area parking lot. Its rough-hewn timbers were reduced to a truckload of junkwood and kindling and hauled to a wrecking yard. Such was the end to a structure which had withstood the ravages of a century of progress.

The building was an old tavern which stood at what is now 344 West Kinzie street, near the north branch fork of the Chicago river. It is believed to have been built about 1830 by Archibald Caldwell and James Kinzie, early Chicago settlers, and was known as the Wolf Point tavern.

Glimpses of its varied history were revealed yesterday by the Gries family, 8203 South Wabash avenue, present owners of the site. They said it was the only house on Kinzie street which escaped the Chicago fire in 1871. Sailors and fishermen, they said, formed a bucket brigade and saved it, carrying water from the river and pouring it over the roof.

Operates as a Saloon.

Henry Gries, 72 years old, who was a superintendent of construction on the old World's Fair Fine Arts building, said he bought the old tavern in 1893, and operated it as a saloon until prohibition. He said the walls, floors, and woodwork of the tavern were scarred by names, initials, and old Indian markings.

Gries said that all of the timber was rough-hewn, some of the planks being a foot thick, and of a reddish mahogany color. No nails had been used in its construction, it was found when the wrecking firm of Andersen & Nelson tore it down last week. Large hand-wrought spikes were driven into some of the joints.

Blast Rumor of Treasure.

Wrecking of the old tavern was revealed yesterday when a story spread that two of the workmen tearing down the building had found a strong box containing a treasure of gold, buried in the wall off the second floor dining room.

According to Edward Anderson, one of the owners of the wrecking company, the workmen found a small carton of cheap wedding rings, which apparently had been secreted behind a rafter in the basement by hobos who used the building as a refuge last winter.

CHILD KILLED BY STREET CAR.

Gwendolyn Johnson, 3 years old, colored, 835 Sedgwick street, was instantly killed yesterday when she was struck by a street car while playing in front of her home.

The band will play concerts at 10 a. m. and at 2 p. m. on the balcony of the Foods and Agriculture building and at 8:30 p. m. in the court of the Hall of Science. They will play Sunday at 11 a. m. at the Agriculture building and at 4 p. m. on the floating theater.

Miss Jennie Quigley, said to be the oldest living midget, will celebrate her 83d birthday today in the Midget Village at the Fair, two days before her real birthday, "in order to enjoy the company of the youngsters here on Children's day," she said yesterday. She made her first public appearance under the direction of P. T. Barnum in his New York theater when she was 14 years old.

Articles turned in to the lost and found bureau in the General Exhibits building are held 17 days and then, if unclaimed, are turned over to the finder. Persons who take lost articles to this bureau are given receipts. Cameras, glasses, jackets, and rosaries are most commonly lost, according to Miss Charlotte Nachtway, clerk at the desk. About 75 per cent of the 3,000 articles taken in have been returned to their owners.

Ninety-four boys from Allendale farm, Lake Villa, Ill., will spend today at the Fair, accompanied by Dr. Hugo Fisher, a member of the board of trustees; Edward L. Bradley, founder and director, and R. A. Thompson, manager of the school. A special performance of the dental puppet show by Dr. H. W. Ferguson will be given at 3 p. m. in the Hall of Science, with all seats reserved for the Allendale group.

The Florida orange grove on Northerly island was dedicated yesterday by Nathan Mayo, Florida commissioner of agriculture. Others who participated in the program were Rufus C. Dawes, president of the Exposition; Dr. Allen D. Albert, assistant to the president, and the Orange Blossom quartet from the Florida state exhibit.

Twenty children, from 7 to 18 years old, who were grand prize winners in A Century of Progress safety contest, spent yesterday at the Fair as guests of the Yellow Cab company, which sponsored the contest. The contests brought replies from 66,892 children in the public and parochial schools of Cook county.

Miss Elizabeth Sconce, in charge of the register at the Sears, Roebuck & Co. building at the Fair, estimated yesterday that more than 3,000,000 persons had visited the building since the Fair opened. Of these, 600,000 registered.

Plans were made yesterday, at a meeting in the Administration building of the Fair, for South Side day on Sept. 15. Representatives of more than 700 civic organizations and churches are coöperating in the proposed celebration. Walter Tredup, general chairman, announced that an "Adopt a Child for the Fair" movement would be inaugurated. Adults on the south side will be asked to escort as many underprivileged children as possible to the grounds on South Side day.

YOU'RE RIGHT, Mrs. Fifield, IT IS THE ONLY SOAP

It's just about three years ago that I read an advertisement in which Mrs. Fifield said that American Family Flakes was the only soap used in her home. I remember that I was having perfectly ghastly results with laundry soaps at the time.

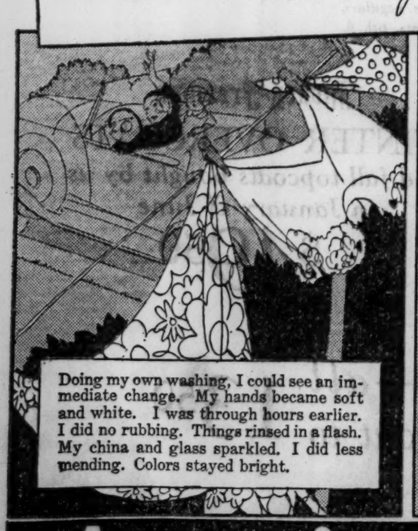
Runs in my hose, rents in my lingerie, shrinking woolens, greasy glassware and china, and the fading colors of my dyed and printed things all pointed to the fact that the soaps I was using were harsh and impure. Then I switched to American Family.

"I suppose I have tried every soap product made, but we find American Family Flakes far superior to any other. I treasure my delicate silks, linens and precious pieces—that's why I allow nothing but American Family Flakes in my household. And this gentle, quick acting, pure soap is just as wonderful for washing woolens, glassware and dishes. It's the only soap you'll find in my kitchen or laundry. Our maid and laundress much prefer it, too, because it cleanses so quickly and is so kind to the hands."

Mrs Edward Rogers Fifield

MRS. EDWARD ROGERS FIFIELD

Prominent in Chicago's exclusive social circles and noted for her successful leadership in conducting many local charity drives and in club work. Among Mrs. Fifield's interests are the Illinois Women's Athletic Club; the Women's Board, St. Lukes Hospital; the Passavant Hospital; and the Women's Board of the Salvation Army.



Doing my own washing, I could see an immediate change. My hands became soft and white. I was through hours earlier. I did no rubbing. Things rinsed in a flash. My china and glass sparkled. I did less mending. Colors stayed bright.

It's cheaper to buy good soap than new clothes. Chicago women buy more American Family than all other laundry soaps combined. Created especially for the hard water of this Great Lakes region, American Family gives double the suds.

FARMER THRONG AT FAIR TO HEAR WALLACE TODAY

Secretary to Outline U. S. Agricultural Aims.

Wednesday, Aug. 16, 1933..... 192,819
Wednesday, Aug. 16, 1893..... 112,368
Total including Aug. 16, 1933 [32 days] 9,526,736
Total including Aug. 16, 1893 [108 days] 7,968,788

The Columbian Exposition opened on May 1; A Century of Progress opened on May 27.

BY EARL MULLIN.

Henry A. Wallace, the Iowa farm paper editor who became secretary of agriculture in President Roosevelt's cabinet, this morning will give the administration's message to his own people. He will outline the agricultural program, one of the major divisions of the national recovery effort, in an address that will be one of the high lights of Farm week at A Century of Progress.

Arriving at 11:30 o'clock this morning, the secretary will proceed directly to the Fair. At 12:30 o'clock he will appear in the Court of States to make one of the most important speeches delivered by a cabinet member since the Democratic administration took office. The entire farm program, with particular emphasis on corn and hogs, will be explained.

This program is of interest not only to millions of farmers, but to the consumers as well. It is the belief of the administration that the welfare of the agricultural areas is of vital import to the rest of the nation.

19 Gun Salute for Secretary.

Secretary Wallace will be given a 19 gun salute on his arrival this morning. On his first visit to the Fair the salute was omitted. Only one artillery salute is given to an individual in a year.

Immediately after the entrance of the official party breakfast will be served in the lounge of the federal building, at which President Rufus Dawes of the Fair will preside. Guests will include Gov. Horner, Gov. Clyde Herring of Iowa, Edward O'Neal, president of the American Farm bureau; Louis J. Taber, master of the National Grange; Earl C. Smith, president of the Illinois Agricultural association, and W. W. McLaughlin, director of agriculture for Illinois.

Advance indications show a tremendous interest in Mr. Wallace's speech. In addition to the 15,000 persons who can be accommodated in the Court of States, the public address system will reach additional thousands throughout the grounds. The address will be broadcast by W-G-N, THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE radio station, and a national radio hookup.

The day is officially known as Farm Progress day and Iowa Farm day, in honor of the great corn producing state and the guest of honor.

Discuss Farm Credit Problem.

The farmers at the Fair yesterday concerned themselves with the farm credits problem. Speakers asserted that one of the outstanding problems confronting the rural districts is the removal of the great burden of debt, much of it incurred during the period of inflated land values during and immediately after the war.

A safe and sane method of removing this load is being offered to the farmer at present through the facilities of the farm credit administration, according to Joseph R. Cosgrove, manager of the Federal Intermediate Credit bank at St. Louis. His address, given in the Court of States, was heard by several thousand farm representatives.

All government controlled farm credit agencies have been consolidated into one organization, the speaker said. By this plan credit has now been given to many communities heretofore barred from federal aid.

"Must Cut Loan Cost."

"The program is twofold," Mr. Cosgrove said. "First, the interest rate and the cost of loans must be reduced. Second, there must be intelligent planning of the debt problem in relation to production.

"In order to obtain the money with which to pay debts it has been necessary to increase production. This has created a vicious circle of ever mounting surplus and the pyramiding of indebtedness. Excessive production of farm products must be curtailed to obtain a satisfactory and stable price level. The accomplishment of these objectives will be the aim and purpose of the farm credit administration."

Preceding the formal program Mr. Cosgrove was guest of honor at a reception in the Illinois Host building, where he was introduced to hundreds of farm guests.

The Farm week program again drew large crowds to the Fair. At 11:30 p. m., when the final count for the day was taken, 166,476 paid admissions had been registered at the gates.

Note that a Bayer Aspirin Tablet starts to disintegrate within two seconds after touching moisture—in your stomach just as it does in the glass above.

Hence, a Bayer Aspirin Tablet starts to "take hold" of even a severe headache or neuritis a few minutes after taking.

Keep this in mind when in pain. BAYER brings the quick relief you want. And the SAFE relief too. For Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not harm the heart.

So—always say "Bayer Aspirin" when you buy. Then you'll be sure to get the Quick relief and Safety of the real Bayer article.

Need Additional Cash.

County Commissioner Peter M. Kelly, chairman of a subcommittee of the county board appointed to investigate the additional financial needs of the county assessor, the board of appeals, and the county treasurer, yesterday reported that $198,000 more would be required by these departments. Commissioner Kelly's recommendation will be submitted to the finance committee of the county board next Monday.

The commissioner said that because of the 102,000 complaints against 1931 real estate assessments filed with the board of appeals, that board will need $55,000. The board had anticipated only 30,000 complaints. The assessor will need $65,000 for revision in connection with the 15 per cent reduction in the assessments of homes and small apartment buildings ordered by the board of appeals. The county treasurer requires $78,000 because of the additional work involved in the enforcement of the Kerner-Skarda act. Commissioner Kelly said that the additional appropriations would have to be deducted from the department's budgets next year.

JUDGE RELEASES DEFENDANT IN TAX FIXING CASE

Municipal Judge Joseph H. McGarry yesterday dismissed Charles Otto, 40 years old, 2032 Berteau avenue, who was charged with an attempt to obtain money from a taxpayer on the pretense of fixing his taxes. Otto was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct, and Judge McGarry upheld the contention of his attorney that the charge did not cover the offense for which he was arrested.

Stromberg filed a complaint with the board of tax appeals and was granted a reduction of $234 in his tax bill. Otto learned of this before he did, it was charged, and went to him and offered to obtain the reduction which had already been granted if he was paid 25 per cent of the saving.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and un." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at drug stores. ©1931 C. M. Co.

WARRANTS OUT FOR BROKER AND AIDS ON BUCKETEER CHARGES

Warrants were issued yesterday in the Felony court charging Walter L. Joyce, 831 Oakwood avenue, Wilmette, and three salesmen whom he employed, with larceny by bailee and conspiracy to defraud.

Joyce was the head of Walter L. Joyce & Co., a brokerage house at 39 South La Salle street. According to Assistant State's Attorney James J. Cherry, in charge of the blue sky department of the state's attorney's office, Joyce was operating a bucket shop.

The salesmen for whom warrants were issued are J. W. Dean, 2214 Sedgwick street, and Roy Jennings and H. C. Wurlitzer, both of 219 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park.

According to Prosecutor Cherry, complaints have already listed losses in excess of $25,000. Clients of the Joyce company found, he said, that securities for which they had paid had not been purchased for them.

Joyce was given notice to appear on Wednesday at the office of the secretary of state to show cause why his brokerage license should not be revoked. He did not appear, and so lost his license by default.

Three Murderers Die in Chair at Sing Sing

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Three men died in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison tonight in atonement for as many murders. The triple execution was completed in 18 minutes. John Jordan, 33, was the first to die. He was followed by George Swan, 21. Both were convicted on a charge of slaying two men in an Astoria, L. I., restaurant holdup. The third man was Stephen Witherell, 30, who was found guilty of killing his father because the latter refused to lend him money.

HOLD RITES FOR 11TH POLICEMAN SLAIN THIS YEAR

Joseph Hastings' Widow Left Without Funds.

Joseph Hastings, the eleventh policeman to be shot since Jan. 1 by gunmen, was buried yesterday in Mount Olivet cemetery with military honors. The funeral procession moved from the home of Hastings' brother-in-law, John J. O'Hara, 624 West 43d place, to St. Gabriel's church, 45th street and Lowe avenue, early in the day. It was headed by his widow, Mrs. Mary Hastings, a bride of four months, and members of his family.

Grim-faced comrades of the slain man marched with them as an escort and after the service formed a guard of honor as the casket was borne from the church. They were members of the Chicago police post of the American Legion. They performed the last military rites at the cemetery and presented the widow with the flag that covered the casket.

The widow, left without funds, returned to a home that had been bright with plans for the future only last Monday. Policeman Hastings had returned three times to say goodby that morning. She never saw him alive again. He was slain by bandits on Navy pier when he attempted to stop a pay roll holdup.

Money can never compensate for the loss of a life, but it can fulfill in some measure the financial obligation the citizens of this city owe the families of policemen who died on active duty protecting lives and property. The Police Hero fund established by THE TRIBUNE is intended to perform that service.

More Needs, More Gifts.

Few police pay days and a resulting flood of bills have left the families of slain policemen without financial protection. The contributions of public spirited citizens were rushed to the fund when it was inaugurated following the death of Policeman John G. Sevick, murdered in the Criminal Court building with a smuggled weapon. These gifts mounted to $4,817.30. More will be needed to aid the evergrowing roll of police hero widows.

Contributions to the Police Hero fund should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

HELD ON FRAUD CHARGES.

Albert F. Peterson, 49 years old, 7748 South Hermitage avenue, was held to the grand jury in $5,000 bond on charges of forgery by Judge Leon Edelman yesterday. He is accused of keeping part of the down payments for automobiles he sold for an agency.

REP. J. EARL MAJOR U. S. DISTRICT JUDGE IN SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today appointed Representative J. Earl Major [Dem., Ill.] to be United States district judge in the southern district of Illinois. He will fill the vacancy created by the elevation of Judge Louis Fitzhenry to the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh district.

Representative Major has served as congressman from the Twenty-first Illinois district during several terms. His home is in Hillsboro.

Mr. Major served as state's attorney of Montgomery county from 1913 to 1920. At the special session of congress last winter he was on the house judiciary committee and one of the prosecutors in the impeachment trial of Judge Harold K. Louderback of California.

defendant in the case, whose defense was not the same as Bopp's. The reviewing court held first that the attorney should not have been appointed in the case, and second that he should have been given a reasonable time to prepare for the defense.

Crime Campaign Lags.

The crime campaign lagged yesterday because four of the judges have left the Criminal court to return to Civil court duties. Only one sentence, that of a woman found guilty by a jury of murder, was recorded. This brought the total to 135 sentences since the campaign started.

Attachés of the Criminal court pointed out yesterday that there are a number of Superior and Circuit court judges who have had Criminal court experience but who have not as yet volunteered to keep the crime drive going at full speed. Among the Superior court judges named are the following:

Dennis E. Sullivan	Charles A. Williams
Joseph H. Fitch	Michael F. McKinley
E. I. Frankhauser	Robert E. Gentzel
Martin M. Gridley	Oscar Hebel
William J. Lindsay	John P. McGoorty
Walter T. Stanton	John J. Sullivan

Among the Circuit court members who have not seen Criminal court service in some time are:

William V. Brothers	John E. Caverly
Hugo M. Friend	David F. Matchett
Francis S. Wilson	Phillip J. Finnegan

The woman sentenced yesterday was Mrs. Louise Murphy, 50 years old, who shot and killed her common law husband, William Grother, 1704 Ogden avenue, on May 25. A jury fixed her punishment at 20 years in the penitentiary. Judge Ross Hall refused her a motion for a new trial and imposed sentence at once.

"Her testimony was unbelievable," said the judge in refusing a new trial. "I believe she shot this man deliberately."

Badger Game Defendants Guilty.

The only other conviction of the day was in Judge Prystalski's court where Katherine Brockman, 23, and Clifford Wright, 20, both of St. Louis, Mo., were found guilty of robbery by means of the "badger game." Sentence, however, was deferred.

Judges Kavanagh, Hall, La Buy, Prystalski, Molthrop, and Miller who are pushing the crime drive were occupied yesterday with jury trials. Judge Kavanagh spent the day hearing a murder case in which Walter Ambrose, 2059 West Eighteenth street, was acquitted of slaying John Wojciechowski, 22 years old. Defense Attorney Thaddeus Toudor produced evidence to show that Ambrose's shoe store had been burglarized several times and that on March 31 the deceased threw a bottle at the store window. Ambrose, believing Wojciechowski was a burglar, shot him. The cases in the other courts were not concluded.

GANG SLAYING REMAINS MYSTERY.

A coroner's jury found yesterday that Willie Carr, minor hoodlum who was slain July 26 by shotgun assassins in front of 1521 Elston avenue, came to his death "at the hand of persons unknown."

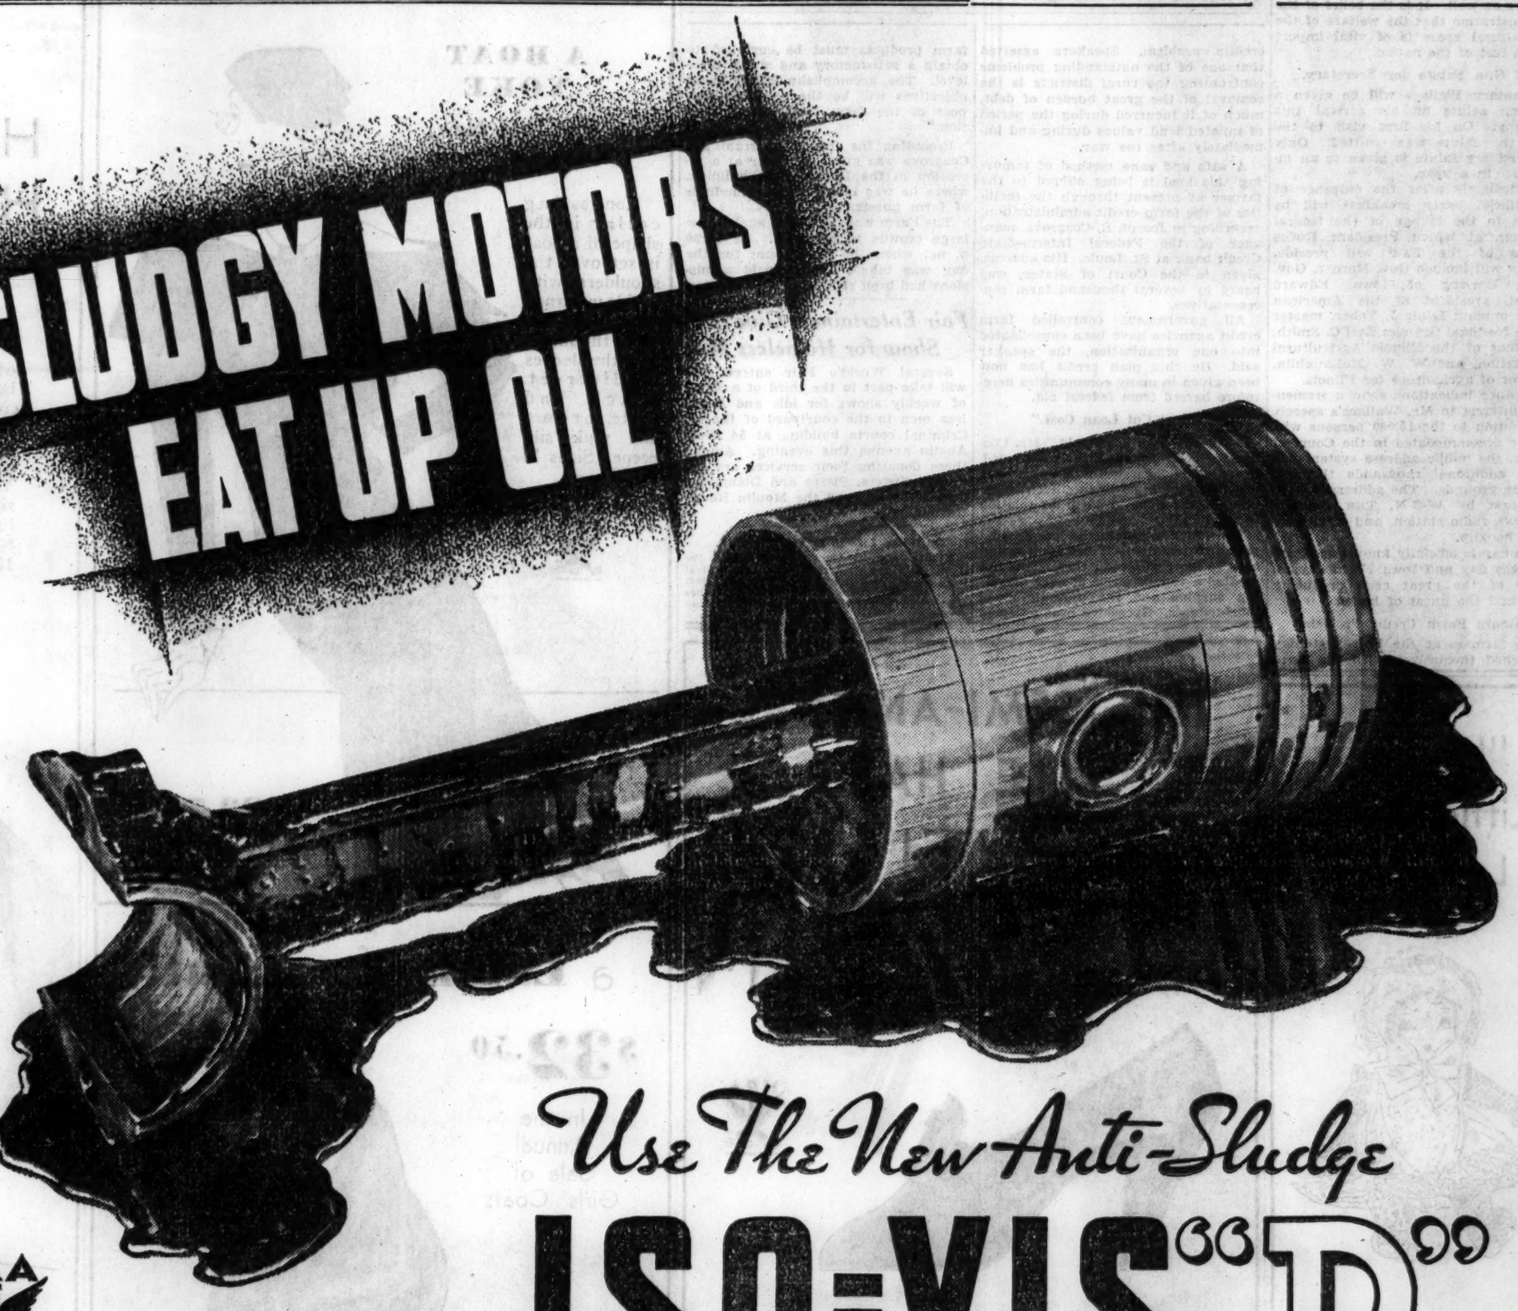
SLUDGY MOTORS EAT UP OIL



Use The New Anti-Sludge

ISO-VIS "D"

WATCH OIL COSTS GO DOWN!

Sludge in your motor is wasteful. It prevents proper lubrication—fouls your filter screen, clogs valves, causes piston rings to stick. Stuck rings pump oil. In fact, next to high speed, stuck or sluggish rings are a prime cause of high oil consumption.

Use Iso-Vis "D"—the new anti-sludge motor oil. It does not sludge. It even helps loosen up sludge already formed by previous oils. It keeps valves and rings lively and free. That's why Iso-Vis "D" customers are coming in and telling us they're now using less oil than ever before. Try it and watch your oil costs go down.

Drain and Change

Give your motor a fresh start

It's poor economy to add good oil to bad. Drain, flush and change to Iso-Vis "D". Then watch oil consumption—right from the start Iso-Vis "D" will match the most expensive oil you've ever used in lasting qualities. And after you've used it a while, after all old sludge is removed, the drop in oil consumption is even more noticeable.

FORMERLY 30¢ Now only 25¢ A QUART PLUS TAX

THIS PISTON USED ORDINARY OIL—the rings are stuck—baked on by sludge. This piston loses power and pumps oil. This piston is scored and worn.

THIS PISTON USED ANTI-SLUDGE ISO-VIS "D". Here the rings are free—both cylinder contact and lubrication are perfect. This piston is smooth and like new.

IDENTIFY GUNMAN WHO FLED POLICE KIDNAPING TRAP

Hunt for Gang Turns to Southwest.

Two important developments yesterday marked the search for members of the Touhy kidnaping gang which long held sway over a broad territory in the northwest end of Cook county.

First, the identity of one of the two gangsters who slipped through a trap laid near La Grange by 250 policemen on Tuesday was revealed. He is Martin (Ice Wagon) Connors, convict who escaped from the Stillwater, Minn., penitentiary.

Police Identify Pictures.

The identification was made by Detectives John Meyers and Frank McKenna, who handed over to the two gangmen a dummy package purporting to hold $50,000 demanded as kidnaping insurance from John (Jake the Barber) Factor. They viewed pictures of the escaped convict in the office of Melvin Purvis, chief here for the bureau of investigation, department of justice, and unhesitatingly declared he was the man who sat beside the driver of the car into which they pushed the dummy package.

The second development was the abandonment of a theory that the Touhy gangsters were still in the Chicago area. Instead it is now believed they have fled to the southwest in a private plane.

Hunt Gangsters' Plane.

Every resort known to have been frequented by the gang in northwest Cook county, Lake county and three southeastern Wisconsin counties has been searched without result, it was learned. In several spots evidence of hasty departures is said to have been found.

Meanwhile other detectives have been visiting various airports in the Chicago vicinity to inquire whether any strange plane had been seen there recently. The police seem to be convinced that the Touhys have used some of the recentp rofits of the kidnaping racket to equip the gang for air transport.

As for the theory that they have fled to the southwest, it was recalled that Harvey Bailey, the southwest's supercriminal, who has been linked with the Kansas City massacre and a dozen other crimes, was an associate of the Touhy gang. Federal agents recently captured Bailey in Texas

The Cicero police yesterday arrested Martin O'Leary, said to have been a Touhy ally. He is being held at the detective bureau for questioning about the Factor case.

A Touhy Reported in Denver.

Also there was a revival of rumors that Tommy Touhy, younger brother of the gang leader, Roger, who is now in custody for the kidnaping of the St. Paul brewer, William Hamm Jr., has been in Denver seeking a tuberculosis cure.

Factor, whose suite in the Pearson hotel has been under a heavy police guard since the failure of the trap against his extortioners, made public display of his fears yesterday. The millionaire speculator, who received a death threat by telephone after failure of the trap, attended a game at the White Sox ball park, attended by five policemen under command of Sergt. Walter Miller.

FOIL PLOT OF URSCHEL KIPNAP SUSPECT TO ESCAPE FROM JAIL

Denver, Colo., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Two bars of the jail cell confining Albert Bates, ex-convict held for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, were found sawed through close to the floor today.

Police guards were immediately strengthened and heavy wire netting was placed over strategic windows to frustrate a break for liberty by the suspect. A search of the jail failed to reveal saws or other instruments used in cutting the bars.

Warned of a possible attempt to deliver Bates, a machine gun squad has been on constant duty the last three days.

TORCH SUSPECT COLLAPSES AT MURDER CHARGE

On Reviving, Mrs. Hanson Asks: 'Why Persecute?'

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Mrs. May Hanson, 38 year old mother of two children, was formally charged today with murder in connection with the death of her former husband, Earl Hanson, in his flaming automobile at Mrs. Hanson's home last Sunday night.

When the murder warrant was read to her in her cell at the county jail Mrs. Hanson collapsed and had to be supported by a deputy sheriff. Reviving, she cried:

"Why don't you get the murderer and quit persecuting me! I didn't kill him. I am innocent."

The denials were uttered from lips which appeared seared and which were burned when she looked into the automobile pyre, "fearing that her 12 year old daughter June might have met the same gruesome death." Her concern, she admitted, was not for her divorced husband who lay beside his car, his body enveloped in flames. She admits she made no effort to aid him in his agony.

Admits Hatred.

According to the assertions of the authorities today, Mrs. Hanson has admitted everything but the murder of the man who was the father of her two children. She has not attempted to conceal under questioning an apparent hatred for Hanson. She has admitted the purchase of the gasoline which authorities say was thrown on Hanson as he sat in an automobile in front of her home, and the ownership of the box of safety matches found. She has even admitted the ownership of the charred porcelain bowl from which authorities say the gasoline was thrown and which was found beside the burned car.

The murder warrant was signed by State's Attorney Robert E. Nash before Justice of the Peace John R. Snively. It was served on Mrs. Hanson by a deputy sheriff while newspaper men looked on.

Serving of the warrant followed a series of lengthy grillings to which the woman had been subjected following the death of her husband after he had brought their oldest daughter, June, back to her mother from a theater late Sunday. The daughter had just entered her mother's home when Hanson's machine burst into flames.

Neighbors Questioned.

Authorities have been unsuccessful in questioning neighbors and acquaintances of the Hansons to find the existence of any other person with apparent motive or opportunity for committing what they say was the crime.

State's Attorney Nash spent several hours today in conference with three brothers of Hanson—Fred of Milwaukee, Lewis of Omaha, and Ralph of Rockford. Ralph's wife is a sister of Mrs. Hanson. The brothers assert that Hanson was killed by his former wife and that they will support her prosecution.

Hanson was the private secretary of the late Winthrop Ingersoll, millionaire founder of the Ingersoll Milling Machine company, for many years. The Hansons were divorced in 1932.

D. W. GRIFFITH AND STATE OFFICERS ARE SUED FOR $300,000

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—D. W. Grifith, film director; Gov. James Rolph of California, and members of the state prison board, wardens of San Quentin and Folsom prisons, and Lloyd Wright, attorney for Griffith, are named defendants in a suit for $300,000 damages.

Earl W. Taylor, who filed suit in Superior court, charges the defendants with conspiring to have him jailed. His complaint declares that while he was on parole from San Quentin penitentiary after being convicted of grand theft he became engaged to marry Fern Setril, who has a $601,000 betrayal suit pending against Griffith.

After Mrs. Setril filed her suit against Griffith, Taylor asserts, he was rearrested and held in jail for thirty-nine days as a means of blocking Mrs. Setril's suit.

Shoots at Self Eleven Times and Misses; Jailed

On July 15 William Kipfert, 33 years old, 1119 Lafayette avenue, stepped to the sidewalk in front of his home and fired eleven shots at himself without inflicting a wound. Yesterday Municipal Judge Leon Edelman fined him $100 and sentenced him to six months in the Bridewell for carrying concealed weapons.

CUBA MAPS TAX SLASH AS FIRST RECOVERY STEP

Plans Moratorium and Cut in Special Levies.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 17.—As the first step in effecting Cuba's economic recovery, a moratorium on unpaid taxes and a reduction in special taxes was recommended to President Carlos Manuel de Cespedes late today by his secretary of the treasury, Joaquim Martinez Saenz. The recommendation becomes effective as soon as it is approved.

Secretary Saenz, a leader of the ABC, foremost organization in the ousting of President Machado, holds that first relief should be given industry and commerce, which has been unable to meet the national, provincial, and municipal taxes. Saenz proposes to give property owners time to pay without endangering loss of their property. Nearly 75 per cent of urban and rural land is said to be in default on taxes.

Saenz is also providing for payment of current taxes in instalments.

Slash Auto License Costs.

Automobile licenses in the Saenz program are to be reduced 56 per cent in cost. Under the Machado régime licenses for automobiles of the flivver type cost $45 annually, for medium priced cars around $75 and for the high priced cars $100 to $150. Truck licenses ranged from $100 to $500 depending on tonnage.

It is expected this slash will improve business in automobiles, tires, accessories and gasoline to the most active on the island.

President de Cespedes tonight named Dr. Manuel Marquez Sterling as ambassador to the United States. Dr. Sterling, a prominet newspaper man and diplomat, resigned as ambassador to Mexico shortly after joining the opposition movement against Machado two years ago. Sterling replaces Oscar Cintas, whose resignation De Cespedes accepted immediately after Machado was ousted. De Cespedes also appointed Gen. Carlos Garcia Velez ambassador to Spain.

"You Are Fired."

The ax was swung on the gum shoe police and espionage system as another early step in mopping up what the old government left. The judicial police, which kept ears and eyes on politics, the secret police, equivalent to plain clothes cops, and the notorious "seccion de expertos," the expert police bureau—the official name given to la porra, the strong arm gang of the Machada régime—were all abolished by order of Secretary of Interior Frederico Laredo Bru.

These agencies of espionage did not know they were fired. This morning their representatives visited Secretary Bru with flowery speeches, having the theme, "Viva, viva."

"Guatacas [the Cuban equivalent of 'yes men'] no longer exist in Cuba," said Secretary Bru. "Turn over your arms, you are fired."

Bloodshed Continues.

Blood letting continued sporadically. This afternoon Ricardo Herrera Ruiz, "porrista" [la porra member[and chauffeur for Alberto Herrera, Machado's secretary of war and navy, was killed in front of police headquarters where he had been a prisoner. Men and women on balconies watched the spectacle.

A revolver with one shot was handed to Ruiz with the suggestion that he use it on himself within an hour. The street was cleared of traffic. Ruiz dashed out and ten policemen opened fire. With two shots in him he staggered into a barber shop where more shots were fired into him. It was another application of the ley de fuga [law of flight].

Band of 4 After Machado.

The scene of the killing was the same as on Sunday when crowds filled the side streets, balconies and rooftops as at a gladitorial combat, waiting for four prisoners on the revolutionary "death books" to emerge from the police station in expectation of a killing. Instead the men were taken away in a police van to the city jail under soldiers' escort. They were later reported killed attempting to escape.

A report current tonight is that a band of four men is taking the trail after Machado, now a refugee at Nassau, the Bahamas. One member of the group is said to have lost three sons, who were students, during the violence of the Machado régime. The band has sworn to kill Machado or be killed in the attempt, it is said.

Meanwhile, the man hunt of porra members and others on the "death books" goes on. Antonio B. Anciart, former chief of police, was reported captured as he fled over housetops garbed like a woman. One version is that Anciart was spotted on a roof by a woman, who spread the news to the street below. Anciart dropped to another roof, took refuge below and emerged in a woman's dress. Sharp eyes noted his heavy shoes and he was seized.

Rumors have had Anciart caught six times in six different places and have had him killed five times, but he seems to be still a survivor. He is held responsible by the ABC for the 21 killings on Monday, Aug. 7, when the populace celebrated the fake report that Machado had resigned.

Among other "porristas" captured were Maj. Santiago Trujillo, a former chief of the secret service; Alfonso Fors, former chief of the judicial police, and Maj. Larrubia, who is charged with being the one who faked the Machado resignation report on Aug. 7.

Porristas are to be tried by the civil courts, according to an announcement from Col. Erasmo Delgado, military commandant of Havana province and leader of the military coup d'état that sent Machado a fugitive to the Bahamas. Officers in the army who are imprisoned are to be court martialled.

City Greets Exiles.

Havana went wild again, but in an opposite tone from Saturday, when 86 political refugees returned today by boat from Miami and New York. Among them was Miguel Mariano Gomez, former mayor of Havana, and son of a former president, Gen. Jose Miguel Gomez. For hours they were escorted around town amid shrieking mobs while factories and ships in the harbor blew their sirens and whistles. Ex-President Mario Garcia Menocal is expected to arrive next week.

Tonight there was an inundation of talk that many in the government's "brain trust," the ABC leaders, are semi-Fascists in theory and are advocating federal control over industry.

Observers are advancing conjectures that the stability of the new administration will depend on how soon economic improvement is registered. The administration is still busy reorganizing, and a definite program for the new deal is not yet announced.

The harbor strike of longshoremen, dock wallopers and stevedores is still on and President de Cespedes is exerting full pressure for settlement. Otherwise business seems to be running as usual and life in Havana is at its old time gayety.

View Communism as Bogey.

Some business men believe that the result of the revolution will be lasting and peace will be fully restored. Some fear the spread of Red activities, basing this on the presence of agitators among the longshoremen. The general view, however, is that communism in Cuba is largely mythical, played up as a bogey by politicians, and that temperamental Latin-Americans, although they love to blow off steam and sizzle and bubble, are not taking to communism.

Although the longshoremen's strike and other labor troubles in Cuba seem small in comparison with labor controversies in the United States, the effect has been to tie up the handling of cargoes in Havana harbor for the last two weeks. The result has reflected on general business, which has been going at full speed in an effort to make up for the eleven days' suspension of work. The administration expects to have the longshoremen's strike settled tomorrow.

100 "Porristas" Killed in Havana.

Taking stock of Saturday's and Sunday's riotings one estimate, considered conservative, is that about 100 "porristas," members of the strong arm secret police organization under President Machado, have been killed in Havana. Figures on the rest of the island are not yet available. The chances are that the actual death total never will be known.

Last night's announcement over the radio by the ABC that Ernesto Santana, porrista and Negro chauffeur for Alberto Herrara, former secretary of war and navy, could lead the way to the graves of the Spanish ocean flyers, Capt. Mariano Barberan and Lieut. Joaquin Collar, is regarded as a fantastic invention by Santana to save his own life.

The ABC announced that Santana attested the flyers were shot down by Cuban airplanes on secret orders by Machado. Santana is still a prisoner and, although his story is regarded as a flight of fancy to save his own skin temporarily, ABC leaders tonight said he would be taken out within the next few days to look for the graves he speaks of.

One report tonight was that Santana was killed today, but this is unconfirmed. The military regards Santana's attestations as a joke and points out that no pilot in the army would have fired on the trans-Atlantic flyers.

Charge $10,000,000 Loot.

Charges that the Machado administration looted the national treasury of $10,000,000 were docketed in the Supreme court today by Attorney General Clemente Vivancos for trial as soon as the highest court is reorganized. Machado and his cabinet are accused of depositing the money in the vaults of the palace whence it was taken either when he fled or when they saw that his overthrow by revolution was about to be effected.

Machado is charged by the new government with taking $2,000,000. His secretary of interior, Octavio Zubizarreta, is charged with taking $2,400,000, and Jose Izquierdo, as chief of the central district of Havana, $3,000,000. The rest, it is charged, was taken by Eugenio Molinet, former secretary of agriculture; Octavio Averhoff, former secretary of the treasury, and Jose Obregon, former manager of the Chase National bank branch here and son-in-law of Machado.

Supreme Court Judges Quit.

Members of the Supreme court again resigned today on President de Cespedes' invitation, to enable him to reorganize the highest tribunal. The understanding is that he will replace the pro-Machado judges who upheld as constitutional Machado's decrees closing the University of Havana, establishing martial law without congressional authorization and closing the schools throughout the island.

As to congress, the members have ducked for cover, fearing reprisals. For a time Cuba is likely to have a congress which cannot be brought together and which the De Cespedes administration does not want to assemble unless it agrees to support all administration measures. The ABC wants a new congress elected in 60 days, but more conservative members advocate staggering along with the present congress until a new one is elected at the regular election in November, 1934.

NEW CUBAN ENVOY

DR. MANUEL STERLING.

MACHADO FAMILY PLANS TO RESIDE IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Separated now by hundreds of miles of land and sea, Cuba's exiled "first family" planned today a reunion in Philadelphia to take up permanent residence here.

Daniel Crawford Jr., manager of the hotel in which the Machado family is staying after fleeing the island republic, said the deposed president, Gerardo Machado, who is now in Nassau, the Bahamas, had told his family by telephone to remain in this city until he joins them to complete plans for settling here permanently.

Earlier Crawford announced that José Emilio Obregon, millionaire banker and son-in-law of the exiled chief executive, had commissioned him to look for a home or estate in Philadelphia or its suburbs for the family of which 12 members, including the ousted president's wife are present.

LEVINE ACCUSED OF COUNTERFEIT BILL; ARRESTED

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Charles A. Levine, first trans-Atlantic airplane passenger, was arrested today in Jersey City charged with having attempted to pass a counterfeit $100 bill on a ticket agent of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Arraigned before United States Commissioner Edward R. Stanton in Hoboken, Levine was held in $2,500 bail for the federal grand jury. Bail was furnished by Dr. Catherine Bayer, a chiropractor.

It was the second time in three years that Levine had been arrested on a charge connected with counterfeiting. In November, 1930, he was taken into custody by the police in Vienna, Austria, but the case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

The offense alleged today occurred on Aug. 11. On that date Levine is alleged to have presented the counterfeit $100 bill in payment for a $15 mileage book. The bill being a gold certificate, the clerk on duty examined it carefully. Levine says that just before he went to the ticket window he had obtained a loan of $675 from the Jersey City Loan company. The $100 bill came from that source, he said.

HOOVER ASKED MY O. K. ON DAWES' LOAN — COUZENS

Senator, on Stand, Raps Detroit Bankers.

sumably because he did not want to "involve himself further" in the trust company. He also corroborated previous testimony that Ford had refused to "freeze" $7,500,000 on deposit in the trust company to assist in obtaining the loan. He said he was informed by Melvin Traylor, Chicago banker, that one reason the state holiday had been decided on was "so that Ford and others on the inside could not withdraw their deposits."

There were, the senator declared, "over 1,000 banks that closed where 'smart money' had withdrawn its deposits after R. F. C. loans—and the little fellows who were not in the know were left holding the bag."

"Did that happen in Detroit?" asked Prosecutor Toy.

"No, but it happened in Mt. Clemens, Mich.," said the witness.

"The First National crew [the bank of which Wilson Mills was chairman] went out to the Citizens Savings bank there, paid themselves $900,000 and left the depositors with 10 cents on the dollar, holding the bag," he said. "I want to say this is the most outrageous thing I ever heard of."

Tells of Mills' Ambitions.

Couzens sternly criticized the bank jury for "attempting to put the blame for the Detroit bank failure on Washington, 700 miles away." He declared further examination into the books of the Union Guardian Trust company as well as the Detroit Trust company would reveal "interesting material as to what caused the banking debacle."

Wilson Mills, the senator said, was ambitious to head a Detroit bank operated by New Yorkers. He said he believed George P. Davison, chairman of the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company of New York, had made such a promise to him when he came here to confer on the bank situation.

"I think Davison took Mills up a high hill, promised him the world, said he would head a big New York bank if it was created here, and then dropped him," said Couzens.

"Then," he said, "Mills demonstrated his ability to double cross. He set out at once to kill the Ford bank plan because he was not on the list of directors."

Completing a full day on the stand, he was instructed to return tomorrow for further testimony.

PLAN TO EMPLOY EXTRA HELP IN COUNTY OFFICES

A county board subcommittee headed by Commissioner Peter M. Kelly yesterday decided to recommend to the board's finance committee the employment of additional help in various county tax offices which will cost the county about $200,000 for the remainder of the year.

At present the county treasurer, assessor, and board of tax appeals are using approximately 80 employés loaned to them, without cost to the county, by other taxing bodies. The subcommittee recommended that these be replaced with regular county pay rollers.

Assessor Jacobs has also been using 150 emergency relief workers in preliminary work on the 15 per cent assessment cut order of the board of appeals, which is still being contested in the state Supreme court. These replace 74 regular employés which he dismissed because the appropriation for paying them was exhausted. He told the subcommittee that because the workers furnished by the relief commission work for periods of only ten days, their efficiency is low, and the subcommittee decided to recommend an emergency appropriation to put the regular help back to work.

Taxicab Fares Too Low, City Commission Told

Drivers of the Public Taxi Service company yesterday testified before the city public vehicle license commission that their rate of 5 cents for each one-third mile is too low. One driver said that the rate should be 15 cents for the first third mile and 5 cents for each additional third. Another said that the rate should be "25 and 10," presumably meaning the old rate of 25 cents for the first quarter-mile and 10 cents for each succeeding half-mile. The drivers agreed that the cabs should be insured for $10,000 instead of $2,500 as now required by law.

Death Toll in Jamaica Storm Is Placed at 30

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

James Kolasinski Jr., 30 years old, 2000 Webster avenue, became angry early yesterday when two men with whom he was drinking in a tavern at 3110 North Damen avenue poked fun at his boxing ability. He challenged them to a fistic bout.

"I'll take you on one at a time and lay you out," he declared.

Refused permission to use the barroom as a ring, the trio adjourned to the sidewalk. But Kolasinski did not fight fairly. In lieu of his fists he used a pistol. One of his opponents, Walter Gale, or Gallzynski, 22 years old, 2129 Powell avenue, was killed and the other, Edward Jarowslowski, 21 years old, 2160 North Irving avenue, was wounded seriously by bullets.

After the shooting Kolasinski, the son of a druggist, fled. He was arrested after Jarowslowski told the story of the battle. At an inquest into Gallzynski's death yesterday afternoon the slain youth's mother, Mrs. Evelyn Gallzynski, attempted to attack the killer. She was restrained by policemen. The inquest was continued to Aug. 23.

CONSIDER PLAN TO BARE INCOME TAX PAYMENTS

Report Will Be Made to Roosevelt.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Guy T. Helvering, commissioner of internal revenue, disclosed today that he has begun consideration of the question of making income tax returns public.

When he reaches a decision on the extent to which private returns should be made public documents, he will lay his recommendations before President Roosevelt, he explained today. The President has authority to issue regulations under which inspection of income tax returns will be allowed.

Publicity Is Urged.

Urged by the progressive bloc in the senate under the leadership of Senator Robert La Follette of Wisconsin as a means for stopping income tax evasion, publicity for income tax returns was drafted into the national recovery act in the eleventh hour of its passage through the last session of congress.

After considerable debate power was finally vested in the President to promulgate rules governing the extent to which the returns shall be made public. He has turned the matter over to Commissioner Helvering, who is now preparing to report back.

Returns Due Next Year.

The question will not become of great importance until next March, when the first big batch of returns since the passage of the recovery act will be filed. Meanwhile, only concerns operating on fiscal years which ended since June are filing reports. Work on the tentative regulations is being started, however.

GET AFTER MILK CODE VIOLATORS IN CHICAGO AREA

Farm Bureau Acts Despite Pending Suit.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Drastic enforcement of the Chicago milk marketing agreement, regardless of pending court attacks on its constitutionality, was ordered today by officials of the farm adjustment administration.

W. C. McQueen, field representative of the agriculture department, in charge of the Chicago milk shed, has been instructed, it was learned, to prosecute violators of the marketing pact to the full extent possible under the farm adjustment act. It was considered probable that several violators may be haled before officials in Washington within the next fortnight for the public hearing permitted them under the law.

Wide Violations Asserted.

Widespread violations in the Chicago area, it was reported, have forced the farm administrators to abandon their policy of non-enforcement of the agreement pending the outcome of the court action brought against it by independent retail distributors who refuse to comply with the price fixing provisions in the pact.

The violations, which are understood to have occurred not only among the independents, but among some signatories of the agreement as well, were said to have caused new disturbances among producers serving the Chicago milk shed.

Charges that the independents are seeking to cloud the issue with demands for a price differential on retail cash and carry and wagon delivery milk were made today by Don Geyer, secretary of the Pure Milk association, following conferences with farm adjustment officials.

Mr. Geyer charged that the sole point at issue between the independents and signatories of the marketing agreement is compliance with health regulations. The roadside stands from which the independents sell their milk, he pointed out, are outside the Chicago health ordinance boundaries, located in a narrow strip between the boundaries of Chicago and suburban communities.

Roadside Stands Utilized.

The roadside stands, he alleged, were set up in this territory in a deliberate effort to evade regulation under the health requirements, which insist on certain bottling and sealing methods.

Mr. Geyer charged, likewise, that much of the financing for the independents' court attack on the constitutionality of federal price fixing power under the farm act is being provided by the "racketeer element" in the Chicago milk market. The product of some gangster controlled dairies, he said, is handled through the roadside stands and other similar small stores now springing up in metropolitan Chicago.

The milk producers' representative asserted that the independents' suit may be withdrawn within a few days, but he refused to disclose the source of his information. Nugent Dodds, former assistant attorney general, who is Washington counsel for the independents, denied that such a move is in prospect.

GOLDBERG GUILT IS AFFIRMED; HIS ARREST ORDERED

A capias for the arrest of Herman J. Goldberg, convicted tax fixer, was issued yesterday afternoon by Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court on the motion of Assistant State's Attorney Albert Woll. The action was taken after the Appellate court handed down a decision affirming Goldberg's conviction.

During the last campaign for state's attorney Goldberg made charges against members of the staff of John A. Swanson, then state's attorney. The charges were later found to be false by a grand jury and Goldberg himself was indicted for perjury.

Goldberg, a so-called tax appraiser, previously had been convicted of tax fixing and sentenced to three months in the Bridewell and fined $1,000. He evaded jail for fifteen months after his conviction and then appeared to make charges during the campaign. He again managed to keep out of jail by making an appeal to the Appellate court. He is now subject to arrest and incarceration if he can be found by deputy sheriffs.

Pile Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why external remedies do not give quick and permanent relief?

Why cutting does not remove the cause?

Do you know the cause of Piles is internal?

That there is congestion of blood in the lower bowel—the veins flabby, the parts almost dead?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal remedy for piles discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEM-ROID that is guaranteed?

HEM-ROID banishes piles by removing the cause. It stimulates the circulation in the lower bowel—drives out the thick impure blood, heals and restores the affected parts.

Dr. Leonhardt's HEM-ROID has an almost unbelievable record of success. So why waste time on external remedies or worry about an operation when Walgreen's invite every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with guarantee of money-back if it does not end their Piles, no matter how stubborn the case?

This used to be the COAL BIN
before Gas Heat was installed

To prove that every home can afford to heat with gas . . . we will install at our expense and remove at our expense, if you don't like it

THERE'S now an extra room in this house—a playroom for young folks and grown folks—made possible by the installation of automatic gas heat. The dirty coal bin, where dust and grime collected to be spread over the entire house is gone forever. No more soot and grime—no more tracking up the house—no more dirt-streaked walls and curtains. For when spotless gas heat comes in—dirt—endless dirt goes out for good.

New low cost gas heat

You can have all this and more by letting us put automatic gas heat in your home. Because the cost of gas heat at the new low rates is just half of what it was in the 1930-31 heating season. No longer is gas heat the luxury of the few. All homes—even the most modest can now afford it.

To prove it—and we take the full burden of proof—we'll install it in your home without your making one cent of investment. Then you'll know from your own personal experience whether you can afford gas heat or not. And if we're wrong and you decide you don't want it—out it comes. We remove it at our expense.

During the nine heating months of the first year you pay $3.00 a month rental for the equipment in the average home. This charge will be included with your gas bill. And if for any reason during the first year you want it removed, we take it out and the rental charge stops immediately. Further, we replace your former heating equipment in the same or better condition than we found it. If you decide you want it, the rental applies on the purchase price.

Tremendous advantages over old-time fuels

There are many, many reasons why you want gas heat. It saves days and nights of back-breaking coal shoveling . . . dirty hours of hauling ashes . . . the nuisance of chopping kindling . . . the anxiety of watching and waiting for heat to come up and dozens of other home-heating troubles.

With gas heat in your home, a single match is your kindling pile. You get the heat you want unfailingly day and night by simply setting a thermostat located in your living room. You never have to go downstairs to even look at the fire.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE GOVERNMENT'S ACCOUNTS.

The stories which continue to come out of Washington regarding the virtual collapse of the economy program are disturbing. With great courage and an altogether admirable display of leadership, President Roosevelt forced a reluctant congress to reduce the routine costs of government. It looked for a time as if the saving to the taxpayers would amount to as much as a billion dollars a year, the figure, by the way, which was called for in the Democratic platform of a year ago. For a time, also, it seemed that the federal budget would be in balance, or nearly so.

The new method of accounting adopted by the treasury has preserved the appearance of a balanced budget. Ordinary or routine expenditures have been separated from extraordinary expenses arising from the attempt to end the depression. There is no fault to be found with this separation of items as a bookkeeping device; the trouble is that the expenditures labeled extraordinary are, in considerable part, nothing of the sort. The budget, therefore, has only the appearance of balance.

Activities of the departments at Washington which had been curtailed as a result of the economy measure are now being financed from the extraordinary budget. The expenditures for naval construction furnish a clear example. To maintain the navy a certain amount of building is required every year. The cost of new ships is an expense which ought to appear year after year in the ordinary budget. To be sure, a warship generally has a life of from ten to twenty years, but the ships now being built will be out of commission long before they have been paid for through the repayment of the money being borrowed to build them. Charging warships to the extraordinary budget is about equivalent to an issue of bonds for the purchase of squad cars by the Chicago police department.

The purpose of government accounting is not to show a balanced budget but to show whether the budget is balanced, and if not, by how much it is out of balance one way or the other. There could be no quarrel with the new accounting method if it revealed more to the citizen, the taxpayer and the investor in government securities than could be gleaned from the old style reports of the treasury. Unfortunately, the contrary is true.

MAN BEFORE HISTORY AND TODAY.

The treasures of the Field Museum of Natural History have received recently two remarkable additions. Visitors to the Fair will find them well worth seeing. Chicagoans should not fail to visit them. The latest to be opened to the public depicts the life of prehistoric man. It includes life-sized figures of the various types of man throughout the stone age, modeled with the aid of existing scientific knowledge by the able sculptor Frederick Blaschke and shown in attitudes and surroundings characteristic of their period and activities. The dioramas or scenes of prehistoric existence in which these figures appear are chronologically arranged, beginning with types and a scene of the Chellean period, about 250,000 years ago, when the elephant, rhinoceros, and hippopotamus were in a Europe of mild climate and men were hunters using chipped flint implements and weapons. The next scene is of man in the Mousterian period, 50,000 years ago, the Neanderthal man, believed to be the first to capture and appropriate a wife and begin something like the family. The third diorama shows the famous Cro-Magnons, the earliest artists, cave dwellers of 30,000 years ago. Next follows a scene of the Solutrean period, reproducing the celebrated Solutrean frieze from the valley of Le Roc in France, where there are carvings of the early artists showing masked dancers, animals of the period, and a musk ox charging a hunter. There are in all eight of these groups illustrating the progress of man through the ages before human history began. Near each group is placed a case containing actual remains of the period, and in the hall is much other material—implements, household objects, carvings, and artifacts, and accurate reproductions of the most important human remains, including those of the recently exhumed Peking man, the Java ape man, the Piltdown man, and the Heidelberg man.

These exhibits are the results of years of research and the collection of material obtained by several expeditions of scientists carried on under the auspices of the museum. They are arranged with striking effect under the supervision of Mr. Henry Field, assistant curator of physical anthropology of the museum, with the collaboration of Mr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology. To visit this vivid display of the life of mankind in the remotest ages is an experience which can never be forgotten, and hardly less interesting [to many, indeed, it will be even more attractive] is the new anthropological hall in which are the sculptures of Malvina Hoffman representing existing types of mankind of all races in all parts of the world. This exhibit is of man as he now exists, the most primitive now living in a state like that of the later prehistoric man, and the most highly civilized, the Nordic, the Alpine, the Mediterranean types, men and women of all races, the white, yellow, and black of Europe, Africa, the Americas, Asia, and Oceania, from the arctic to the equatorial zones.

This exhibit is in fact unique. There is none like it in the world. Miss Hoffman, a gifted sculptress, traveled over the world, upon commission from the museum, selecting typical subjects for portrayals which are not only works of art and beauty but, as anthropologists testify, are remarkable for scientific truth and significance.

With these two extraordinary exhibitions of man as he was in ages past and as he is today the museum makes available to us a panorama of mankind as he emerged from the darkness of the remotest past and as he is today in all his varieties. This is the splendid offering of science to our instruction and to our imaginative grasp of the long drama of man's journey.

JUSTICE IN WISCONSIN.

The federal government has thus far failed to demonstrate that it can give Wisconsin any lessons in the application of fair and speedy justice. Roger Touhy and his three terrorists, who were taken peremptorily from the hands of a Walworth county, Wis., sheriff a month ago, are still federal prisoners in the Milwaukee jail awaiting a preliminary hearing while their astute counsel threatens to seek a writ of supersedeas which would delay their trials on a charge of kidnaping Brewer Hamm, maybe for months.

Wisconsin has had such success in punishing promptly its native offenders that it has been kept singularly free from any lawbreakers daring to cross state lines to enter its jurisdiction.

These big time kidnaping suspects fell into the hands of the state when a careless automobile driver snapped off the top of a telephone pole, contrary to the peace and dignity of the commonwealth, and the unarmed rural traffic policeman, who deserves a medal for valor, found the Illinois car loaded with an arsenal and the miscellaneous equipment described as comprising the essentials of a kidnaping adventure.

The Wisconsin state prison at Waupun has a high percentage of life prisoners who arrived at its gates not much longer than 48 hours after their crimes were committed. Except in rare instances, they are kept there until their sentences are served and few enjoy the extra mural privileges such as have not been unknown in federal penitentiaries.

Wisconsin's reputation for prompt and efficient procedure against criminals suggests that the federal government might do well to turn its notorious prisoners back to the Wisconsin authorities.

A new Wisconsin law provides a penalty of 10 years' imprisonment for the possession of a weapon on which one pull of the trigger will discharge more than two shots. A warrant against Touhy et al. charges possession of such a weapon, and Walworth county, it is understood, is ready to proceed against them on this charge.

The federal government is safeguarding its procedure by a multiplicity of indictments and warrants. Wisconsin reputation justifies the assumption that the federal prosecutor can keep his prisoners perfectly safe for a long time by handing them back to the Walworth county sheriff and prosecutor.

THE STATE WELFARE INSTITUTIONS.

The resignation of Rodney L. Brandon as director of the department of public welfare was probably inevitable in the present state of our politics, and Gov. Horner's evident reluctance to part with so able and conscientious an administrator is greatly to his credit. He has yielded to the organization demands, but has reduced the net loss to the state by appointing Mr. Brandon as a member of the state welfare commission, and he has selected as acting director Mr. A. L. Bowen of Springfield, who is now state superintendent of charities. In this situation it may be expected the welfare administration of the state will be maintained at a satisfactory level, and while Mr. Brandon's resignation will be regretted by citizens regardless of party, practical politics has not been permitted to have its way entirely without restraint.

Mr. Bowen has had eight years of experience in state charities and may be depended upon to maintain the standards of the department established by Mr. Brandon while he was in the directorship. He is a Republican and his appointment is apparently temporary. When a Democratic successor is named it is to be hoped the choice will be dictated by considerations of public interest, not of shortsighted partisanship. Gov. Horner has shown that he respects the former and he should have the support of right minded Democrats as he will that of the general public in protecting the welfare institutions of the state from exploitation. Under some of the Republican administrations their treatment has been a scandal and similar influences in the Democratic party will not hesitate to repeat it unless public opinion and the better elements of the party make it clear that no such course will be tolerated.

Editorial of the Day

CHICAGO GUNMEN AND POLITICS.

[The State Journal, Lansing, Mich.]

The complete score is not yet in, but, as this is written, the 79th Chicago gunman has just been sentenced to prison. Speedy indictments and trials are quite the fashion now in the "Century of Progress" city.

This seems like good work. It is a work that needs to be done. But what has happened? Why has not the process of swift justice been going on all along? Has the political protection behind which the gunmen have so long skulked been suddenly removed?

Beyond doubt the 79 gunmen who have been sent out over the road in recent days have been known all along. Why have they not been indicted and sentenced before?

The so-called American crime problem is not a problem of crime at all. It is a problem of crooked politics. If Chicago law and courts are permitted to function a year from now as they are functioning now, Chicago will not be crime ridden.

GRANDMA GONE MODERN.

Grandma had finally yielded to the repeated urging of a grandson to accompany him on a flight. Up and up they went until the youthful pilot leaned back and shouted: "Do you realize that we are 7,500 feet high?"

"O, I don't mind that," said the old lady bravely, "but don't you think it's cool enough for you to turn off the fan?"—Stray Bits.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

SONG FOR SYLVIA.

What else is there to ask of life,
With you my loyal Friend?
And what need I of other gifts
If only you will wend
With me this puzzling Road-of-Days
Far on, till round the bend,
At sunset, when the winds grow cold
I come to Journey's-End!

Thomas Curtis Clark.

THREE FAMILIES FROM PASADENA WERE visiting friends in Evanston while attending the Fair. Because of a scarcity of sleeping accommodations the boys, guests and hosts, from 15 to 17 in age, were parked in a family hotel. This was a great lark for them. One of their pranks was to take the trousers of one youth and hang them in the self-service elevator. When the owner learned of his loss he went to get them attired only in shirt and shorts, for the hour was late. As the elevator stopped at his floor and he opened the door to rescue his trousers two dignified old ladies returning from a late movie stepped out, to his great surprise and also to theirs. He beat it while they telephoned in complaint to the clerk that there was a crazy man with hardly anything on roaming around on their floor. That was the finish for the pranksters, who were asked to seek other quarters.

ANNOYANCES.

Dear Harvey: Just a few uv the things which annoy me:

1. The auto ahead o' me goin' about 3 miles per hour an' blockin' traffic with a sign in the back window readin', "Let's Go, Chicago."

2. The reputed salary uv Sally Rand for hoppin' around carryin' 2 ostrich plumes when I am willin' tuh hop around for one-fifth that much money carryin' 2 humming bird wings.

3. The epidemic uv flight articles like "My Flight to Berlin," by John Jones; "My Flight Around the World," by James Smith; "My Flight Across the Atlantic," by Lizzie Green, when I'm jist dying to read one entitled, "My Flight to Greece," by Sammy Insull.

4. The Hon. Huey Long [Kingfish] uv Louisiana. I have listened to his radio talks an' while he may be Kingfish to some people, he's just smelt to me.

5. Mr. M. Gandhi uv India. Whenever he wants anything he insists on goin' without eating until he gets it. When I want anything I HAVE to go without eating till I get it, but nobody sticks my mug in the papers. Snowshoe Al.

THAT EIGHT INCH CUP.

What happened to that eight inch cup?
Say, Harve, that's what it takes
To make us dubs stand up and shout
"At last we get the breaks."

Who is this guy, this Sarazen,
Who filled our hearts with joy?
Let's give that bird a helping hand,
An eight inch cup, oh boy!

What's that, you say, on putting greens?
Oh me, oh my, oh dear!
I thought he meant the nineteenth hole
With eight inch cups of beer

C. Arthur Fifer.

MR. SAMUEL INSULL WAS SENT A CABLEgram invitation to open Spartan day at the World's Fair Aug. 27. While Mr. Insull may be willing to be a Spartan in Greece, he has no intention of becoming a Spartan by returning to this country.

BACK SEAT DRIVING.

Wake-Line: Out at Skokie Country club there is a road running past the tees of the 4th and 17th holes. Truck drivers are supposed to stop while members are driving from these tees. Tuesday a gentleman who is very deliberate and careful was preparing to drive while a truck loaded with bales of hay was waiting. The gentleman addressed his ball for several minutes, then looked up and down the course and started the whole procedure over again. This was too much for the truck driver, who yelled: "Go on and hit it, you feeble-minded golf hound." C. A. K.

THAT'S GOOD LIKE WE ARE.

HTW: Do you suppose my husband dislikes playing golf with me because I shoot 154 on 18 holes? I don't see why. That's almost twice as many as he shoots, which makes me nearly twice as good as he is, doesn't it? Therese.

PHRASEOLOGY.

Harve: Having viewed the writhing and wriggling of a hula hula dancer at the Fair, I am more than convinced that she should be called a shake in the grass. Lord Douglas.

Harve: While going through the General Exhibits building last night I noticed an elderly woman closely inspecting a diamond exhibit. METHODS OF MIGRAINE TREATMENT.

FROM the physician's standpoint one of the most instructive reports on migraine that the writer has read is that of Dr. H. A. Riley, made to the New York Neurologic institute and published in its journal.

To the sufferer from the disease who wants relief, and without waiting long for it, this report will be very dispiriting, Dr. Riley wrote. Practically every known form of therapy has been tried by one or another clinician in migraine. He discusses these proposals one by one.

Among the methods he discussed were keeping the patient in the dark, protected against all stimuli, various forms of purgation and enemata, washing out the stomach and duodenum. Several surgical operations, principally on nerves and nerve ganglion located around the head and neck, the use of endocrine gland extracts, the use of a multitude of drugs, the treatments based on the theory that migraine is an allergy disorder, and different methods of dieting.

In all instances he summed up the evidence and then gave it as his opinion that more research work must be done on migraine and more investigation of methods must be made before we could say that any given treatment would be beneficial. Of course all of that is very scientific and even logical, but it leaves the sufferer without much to go by. He must still grope his way around, getting such help as he can by the trial and error method.

The endocrine gland preparations which theoretically appear to offer most are those made from the ovaries, with those from the pituitary ranking second. Certain cases are relieved by the remedies of this group, but it is not easy to select such cases in advance of trial. In all cases, whatever the cause, maybe the general protective treatment is good. It consists in staying in a dark room, protected against all stimuli such as noises, domestic or business worries, with an ice cap on the head and a hot water bag to the feet. The objection to this treatment is that wage earners and people of affairs cannot afford it.

The drug that is most used is caffein. It is taken as black coffee, several full cups daily. Morphine is very often used, but it is a source of great danger. Since attacks of migraine repeat themselves at short intervals, the use of morphine for relief almost inevitably leads to the morphine habit, and that is worse by far than the original disease. Other drugs that are used are luminal, bromides, and cannabis indica.

The diet treatment may take any one of several forms. The allergy cases are not infrequently due to foods, and leaving the offending foods off the menu is one method of prevention. Chocolate is often an offender. Probably heavy coffee drinking is another.

The ketogenic diet has been given a moderately extensive trial. It consists in feeding a diet that is very high in cream, butter, and other fats, and low in breads and cereals. On the other hand some think they can prevent attacks by giving a diet in which there is an excess of starchy foods.

REPLY.

No. Wens in this location are generally fatty tumors. They are benign and they grow slowly. They are harmless.

EXECUTOR VS. ADMINISTRATOR.

Chicago, Aug. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A makes a will and leaves everything to B. Part of the will provides for a trust fund for B. Can B be made both executor and administrator of the will? J. B.

The word executor applies to a personal representative named in a will. The word administrator applies to a personal representative named by the court where there is no will or the named executor does not act. Hence you will see that your question does not make sense.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, Aug. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Mr. and Mrs. B were married in the summer. Mr. B died in the spring of the following year. Mr. B willed homestead, insurance, and all personal property to the widow. Said personal property consisted of high class stock and bonds which are held by a bank as security for notes signed by Mr. B for his sons. The bank is made administrator. 1. How soon after death would the will be probated? 2. It has been fifteen months since the man died and the attorney does not give us any information. The bank, being administrator, has collected the money for the notes by selling the stocks and bonds and also paying some of the bills of the estate. 3. Has the bank the right to do this before the will is probated? G. F.

1. The will should be admitted to probate within a few weeks. Creditors are allowed a year in which to file their claims and ordinarily the estate is not distributed until the expiration of said year.

2. You might ask the clerk of the court to bring pressure to bear upon the administrator to close the estate.

3. Since the undertaker's bill is a preferred claim, it is customary to pay it without waiting the year out. If the administrator desires, he can take a chance on other claims. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—A total issue of bonds to the amount of $7,538,945,000 is provided in a tentative bond authorization bill submitted to the ways and means committee of the house by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. According to the plan, the new bonds would be issued at 4 per cent, but the income from them would be taxable from three sources—through the war profits tax, through the excess profits tax, and through the supertax on incomes. The purpose of the new bond issue is to provide $4,000,000,000 for further allied loans and to retire the $3,000,000,000 nontaxable 3½ per cent issue.

FORT ST. LOUIS.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 12.—Some days ago there appeared in the Voice of the People a short letter advising that relics were being uncovered on the site of Fort St. Louis off the Starved Rock State park property.

The state of Illinois very carefully investigated the matter before erecting on the top of Starved Rock itself, within the park property, a bronze tablet stating that La Salle built his fort on the rock.

It is possible that the site being advertised by private owners near Starved Rock State park as the location of Fort St. Louis was a burial ground not far from the fort itself or some other location of great historic interest. It should not be advertised and marked as the site of Fort St. Louis.

Proof that we have not misrepresented things is to be found in volumes of documents starting with an explicit description from none other than La Salle himself. We do not want people to believe that we have erected a marker without thorough investigation by the Illinois State Historical library and society. La Salle's description in his journal is printed in Margry, "Decouverts et etablissments," 2, 175-176; the English translation which follows is from Sauer, Cady and Cowles, "Starved Rock State park," 54.:

"It [Fort St. Louis] is situated . . . on the left in descending the river, on the height of a rock, precipitous on almost all sides, whose base the river laves in such a manner that one can draw up water from it to the summit of the rock, which is about six hundred feet in circumference. It is accessible only on one side, on which the ascent is still quite difficult. The side is barred by a palisade of stakes of white oak, from eight to ten inches in diameter and 22 feet high, flanked by three redoubts of squared beams, placed the one upon the other equidistantly, so that all sustain each other. The rest of the enclosure of the rock is surrounded by a like palisade, but only fifteen feet high, because it is inaccessible . . . . There is also a parapet of thick trees lying lengthwise, the one upon the other, to the height of two men, the whole covered with earth, and at the top of the palisade a kind of chevaux-defrise the points of which are iron tipped to prevent scaling. The neighboring rocks are all lower than this one, and the nearest is two hundred feet distant, the others more, between which and the fort of Saint Louis extends on two sides a large dale which a brook traverses and inundates when it rains." Robert Kingery.

THE FREE STATE OF BRUNSWICK.

Fort Wayne, Ind., Aug. 10.—In today's very interesting article about Germany Col. McCormick has his history just a little mixed about the Free State of Braunschweig [Brunswick].

Braunschweig was not annexed by Bismarck to Prussia in 1866, but is still one of the free states forming the German reich. Duke Wilhelm, who reigned in Braunschweig for 54 years from 1830 to 1884, had to side, somewhat against his will, in 1866 with Prussia against Austria and thereby saved his crown. His nearest relative only became duke of Braunschweig in 1912. Duke Wilhelm himself was never married. Ernest August, the grandson of King George V. of Hanover—annexed by Bismarck in 1866 because George V. sided with Austria—became finally duke of Braunschweig in 1912 and married the kaiser's only daughter, Louise Victoria. Since 1918 when Ernest August, like all the other German princes, lost his throne the family lives part of the year in Castle Blankenburg in the City of Blankenburg in the Harz mountains in the Free State of Braunschweig and part of the time in Castle Cumberland in Gmuenden in Austria.

ZANDER SPECS.

Mount Pleasant, Ia., Aug. 11.—The readers of The Tribune cartoons should not be told, even in cartoon story, an unscientific fact, such as in the Gump cartoon this morning.

No higher magnifying [spherical] power lens, as worn in a spectacle frame close to the eye, will help to see more clearly, unless the card or article be held correspondingly closer to the face, which action would in itself look suspicious.

By moving the lens further from the eye a magnifying effect can be had, but Zander would not benefit beyond normal vision by any trick magnifying lens in his specs in seeing marked cards.

If it could be done, then all the boys out here would be after a pair of Zander specs. V. D. Morris.

GRAND JURORS QUIZ WALKER'S MONEY AGENT

Sherwood Tells About Million Income.

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Russell T. Sherwood has told a federal grand jury all about the mysterious income of close to $1,000,000 which James J. Walker received while he was mayor of this city. He balked, however, at telling how his flight from Samuel Seabury's questions about that income was financed, except for a single admission that while he was in hiding he drew $1,023 from an account which contained some Walker money.

In an unsuccessful effort to have him forced to answer United States Attorney George Z. Medalie took Sherwood before Federal Judge Robert P. Patterson today, and revealed that as the former mayor's money man he had been free in telling about the $961,225 which he handled for Walker between 1926 and 1931, $733,094 of it being cash.

Upheld in Refusals.

Judge Patterson upheld Sherwood in his refusal to answer these questions, which was based on the contention that to do so might tend to incriminate or degrade him.

Sherwood, according to the portions of the grand jury record read in court, admitted that while he was in Mexico City he drew $1,023 from an account in the Central Hanover Bank and Trust company, some of which was Walker's. Asked whether he was drawing against his own funds or the mayor's, Sherwood said he didn't really know.

Misses Main Objective.

As the object of the appearance in court was to make Sherwood answer questions at which he had balked, nothing was revealed concerning what he has said about the sources and amounts of the former mayor's income, since he had done that without objection. It was only incidentally that Mr. Medalie revealed that the grand jury has full information about the big sums Mr. Seabury would so much have liked definite facts about.

Sherwood was adjudged in contempt for refusing to obey a subpoena to appear before the Hofstadter committee and fined $50,000. Only the fact that he now lives in New Jersey and comes into New York under federal subpoena has saved him from arrest.

MAN AND WOMAN SHOT TO DEATH NEAR PEORIA

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Bodies of a man and woman, identified by police as those of Walter Nave, a parking space employé formerly of Bloomington and Chicago, and Marie Myers of Peoria, were found on the roadside in South Bartonville, three miles south of Peoria, tonight.

The woman had been shot twice through the head and the man once. Police said the revolver lay between them and that he evidently had shot her twice and then himself.

A card in his coat pocket contained the address Mrs. Walter Nave, 6316 Ingleside, Chicago.

The coroner attempted without success to find some persons who knew either of them. He said they had boarded a bus for Bartonville at Peoria and had alighted from it shortly before the shots were heard by a night watchman who found the bodies.

CUDAHY, NEW U. S. ENVOY TO POLAND, REACHES EUROPE

Milwaukee Man Stops in London.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 17.—John Cudahy of Milwaukee, new United States ambassador to Poland, disembarked from the liner President Harding at Plymouth today en route to his new post.

The Milwaukee sportsman and social leader was met in London by Ray Atherton, counsellor of the American embassy, and immediately began a series of conferences he will have here and at Paris before he goes on to Poland. He expects to leave England Monday or Tuesday to cross the channel to confer with American Ambassador Jesse Isidor Straus.

The final stage of Cudahy's journey will be begun at Antwerp when he sails Aug. 31 for Gdynia, where he will make a brief stop.

The ambassador is traveling alone. Mrs. Cudahy and their two children expect to arrive in Warsaw in October.

Ambassador Cudahy expressed enthusiasm for his new undertaking. He said he hopes to be able to maintain the same cordial relations with Poland as in the past.

"A million Polish-Americans in the Chicago-Milwaukee district," he declared, "gave me a great demonstration when I left, and I hope the same feeling will be maintained during my occupancy of one of the most important posts in Europe."

RICH NEW YORKER IS SENTENCED FOR SLAYING ON SHIP

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, Aug. 17.—Charles Manger, wealthy young New Yorker, who shot and killed his friend, Karl Werner Heye III., 26, a New York broker, aboard the liner Bremen on July 30 during the voyage from New York to Cherbourg, today was sentenced to three months' imprisonment here for manslaughter.

Serving of the sentence was postponed until Sept. 30, 1936, with the prospect of its later annulment, if Manger immediately pays a fine of $1,000. Manger must bear the cost of the proceedings.

The public prosecutor, who had asked for a sentence of 9 months' imprisonment, declared Manger had "acted with great carelessness and must be punished, even though he has already been heavily punished through the shooting of his best friend."

The counsel for the defense pleaded for a milder sentence. Manger himself wept. He said he regretted the tragedy and had never intended to shoot his friend.

TAMMANY SEEKS NEW DEAL WITH ROOSEVELT IN STATE ELECTION

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Having made overtures for peace with the federal administration in the make-up of their city ticket, the leaders of the city Democracy were preparing today to join forces with James A. Farley, postmaster general and state chairman, in an intensive drive for control of the state assembly. Their objective is a new reapportionment of the state election units which will break down the Republican advantage and solidify the Democratic hold for years to come.

John F. Curry, Tammany chief, and his associates proffered the olive branch to Washington by naming Moses Maldwin Fertig, counsel to Gov. Herbert H. Lehman and an original appointee of President Roosevelt, as nominee for president of the board of aldermen. Curry and John McCooey held their organizations in line and made peace with Edward J. Flynn, Bronx leader and Roosevelt spokesman, by accepting Flynn's recommendation of Fertig and at the same time opened the way for a new deal with the federal administration.

Following up that action, Curry and McCooey announced today that they will attend the conference in Elmira on Saturday called by the Democratic union to open the state campaign for capture of the assembly.

3 DIE IN CHAIR AS SLAYERS; ONE FRAMED, HE SAYS

Ossining, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Three men were put to death in the electric chair in Sing Sing prison tonight. They were George Swan, 21, and John Jordan, 33, both of New York, and Stephen Witherell, 30, of Hopkinton, N. Y.

Swan and Jordan were convicted of the murder of John Conlin and James Doran during a speakeasy holdup in Astoria, Queens. Witherell was convicted of the murder of his father, Charles, because the older man refused to loan him money. All the men ate hearty dinners.

Jordan went to his death declaring that he had been "framed." Swan was smiling and smoking a cigar, a flower in his buttonhole.

"It's about time this thing came up," he remarked. An attendant had to remove the cigar from his mouth to adjust the hood.

Witherell, the last to be put to death, said nothing. He was praying quietly with the Protestant chaplain.

BRITISH SCANDAL SCENTED IN IRAQ OVER ASSYRIANS

Near East Prestige Seen Periled by Massacre.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 17.—The massacre of Assyrians stranded in Iraq by King Feisal's Kurdish police threatened tonight to become a first class scandal, centering about the British government's policy and prestige in the near east.

Government quarters are highly agitated. Anxious hopes are entertained that the Iraq government will punish the officials responsible for the killing of 800 Assyrian tribesmen in the past week. Many of the victims were Christians who were wartime allies of the British against the Turks. That they have been put to the sword by the hundreds becomes a question of the gravest moment along the backbone of the empire—the route between England and India.

MacDonald Concerned.

Prime Minister MacDonald spent part of a brief day in London in consultation with Sir Francis Humphreys, British ambassador to Iraq, who has interrupted his vacation in order to speed by plane back to Bagdad. Later tonight the prime minister boarded a train back to Lassiemouth.

Official circles in London are helpless beyond exertion of personal influence over King Feisal, who was the state guest of the British monarch in London only a few weeks ago. Feisal owes his throne to British support. It is believed in London that he has not the nerve to punish the Mohammedan officers responsible for the killing of the Christian Assyrians. For this reason it is hoped Sir Francis will be able to put a little starch into the Feisal government in order to induce it to mete out justice.

The British appear to be in an embarrassing position for two reasons. Until a few months ago Iraq was under a British mandate. When it was granted complete freedom the country immediately was admitted to the league of nations. The Assyrian minority now is under league jurisdiction and an appeal by Assyrians to Geneva is bound to result in creating an evil odor, for they have a clear case of massacre.

Moral Obligation Seen.

At the same time the British have a moral obligation to the Assyrians, who as a tribe fought their way from Kurdistan during the war and joined the allies against the Turkish caliphate. But the British no longer are able to interfere in the internal affairs of Iraq in their behalf.

The quandary forms the subject of an outcry which is instanced by an editorial in tomorrow's Daily Telegraph. This conservative journal will assert that the matter involves British honor in the east and that the British are bound to gain a name for treachery unless something is done for their former allies. It is charged that the British government virtually promised the Assyrians land and protection. There is also a growing wave of church feeling because the Christians have been left at the mercy of fanatical Moslems.

King Feisal Delays Flight.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

Bagdad, Iraq, Aug. 17—King Feisal's proposed airplane flight to Switzerland on a vacation trip has been postponed for at least a week until after the arrival of Sir Francis Humphreys, the British ambassador, who is now in London.

An official statement explains that the king needs further rest before undertaking his journey, but it is understood that urgent British representations were made to him pointing out that it would not be wise to leave the country in the midst of the present crisis resulting from the slaughter of hundreds of Assyrians in the north.

HERE'S FORMULA FOR DELECTABLE QUICK DESSERTS

Canned Milk Is Basis of Versatile Sauce.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a weekly radio feature—will be presented today by Mary Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 11 o'clock for Miss Meade's market chat.

BY MARY MEADE.

We've talked fresh dairy milk by the gallon, evaporated milk at least by the quart, and even cocoanut milk now and then for a change from the usual. But apparently we haven't been properly appreciating condensed milk of the sweetened variety. At least so say several writers-in, who want to know just what this thick sweet milk is good for if they still prefer cream in their coffee.

Of course, the answer is fairly popping out of my cook books. But that's just the rub. Nobody's soul longs to do cooking these limp dog days. So, instead, why not conjure up a little magic in the line of almost uncooked tantalizers—and, better yet, tack on the special appeal of America's favorite flavor, chocolate?

It all starts with—

CREAMY CHOCOLATE MIXTURE.

Melt 2 one ounce squares of unsweetened chocolate in the contents of a can of sweetened condensed milk and cook in a double boiler for 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. And that's all! The characteristic flavor of the condensed milk is neatly camouflaged by the rich chocolate tang, and you suddenly have a most excellent foundation for at least a dozen desserts.

Makes Excellent Frosting.

Just for instance: For a never fail chocolate frosting use "Creamy Chocolate Mixture" just as it is, spreading it while still warm with a knife dipped into hot water. Swirl it on in rich slathers and then stand back and crow. And, speaking of fast work . . . !

Or if appetites didn't quite account for all of yesterday's cottage pudding, plain cake, sponge cake, or angel food—or if one of the homing males trotted in a quart of cream or a dinner topping-off—then dash for the jar of creamy chocolate mixture you made up last week and tucked behind the milk bottles. In two short jiffies you have a prince among sauces. Simply add ½ to 1 cup of hot water and ⅛ teaspoon of salt to one recipe of the mixture. Serve it hot or cold over puddings, frozen desserts, or cake.

But don't just be conventional. With the aforelauded mixture ready on hand, one of the best chocolate puddings you've met is the work of about two split minutes. To one recipe of the mixture add 1-3 cup of water. If the sauce is still hot cool five minutes, then fold in 2 stiffly beaten egg whites. Pile into sherbet glasses and chill before serving. Top with a white cap of whipped cream and watch it disappear down the family.

Other Speedy Maneuvers.

Then for two more hurry up maneuvers, which both start out with "Creamy Chocolate Mixture":

TIGER-DEVIL.

2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 can sweetened condensed milk
2 whole oranges
½ cup orange juice
Grated rind of ½ orange
8 baked tart shells

Melt the chocolate in the condensed milk in a double boiler, cooking with occasional stirrings for 5 minutes. Add the orange juice and the grated rind. Mix well and pour over the sections of the two oranges which have been cut small, freed of membrane, and divided evenly between the tart shells. Chill the tarts before serving.

UNBAKED BROWNIES.

2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 can sweetened condensed milk
2 cups crumbled cookies (vanilla wafers, macaroons, or graham crackers may be used)
1 cup finely chopped nut meats

Melt the chocolate in the condensed milk in a double boiler, stirring frequently, and cook for 5 minutes. When thickened add the crumbs and one-half of the nut meats. Now butter a shallow baking pan and sprinkle with half the remaining nuts. Spread in the chocolate mixture with a spatula dipped in hot water. Sprinkle the top with the remaining nuts and let chill in the refrigerator overnight. To serve, cut in bars or squares.

MASTER'S SALE OF ORRINGTON HOTEL APPROVED

Judge William J. Lindsay yesterday approved in the Superior court the master's sale of the Orrington hotel, 1710 Orrington avenue, Evanston, after the bondholders' protective committee had reduced its bill for expenses at his direction.

The bill was reduced from $51,071 to $38,371, the largest reduction being a cut in the charge for office expenses from $7,800 to $2,000.

The bondholders' committee has acquired title to the hotel, of which the income exceeded expenses under receivership, and will place the common stock of a reorganized company in trust for the bondholders. Judge Lindsay gave nonparticipating bondholders 90 days in which to deposit their bonds and enter the reorganization scheme. If they do not deposit they will be paid approximately 8 cents on the dollar.

The party which went home today was composed of 166 mothers.

Rio Grande Valley Crop of Fruit Cut by Storms

Dealers in citrus fruits in Chicago received reports this week that the Rio Grande valley crop of grapefruit and oranges had been cut from 12 to 15 per cent by tropical windstorms. From 1,600 to 1,800 fewer cars of the fruit will be shipped out of the valley this fall and winter, it is estimated. The damage was increased by the fact that the fruit is maturing earlier than usual this year.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—A coroner's jury today freed Alvin Sharp, 20, finding that he acted in self-defense when he shot and killed Jesse Clark, 52, at Bartonville, yesterday. Sharp and his brother, John, 26, were wounded by Clark.

PICKLE SEASON IS HARD WORK, WELL REWARDED

Use Only Best Grades or Be Disappointed.

BY MABEL BRYANT.

The season for preparing crispy, crunchy, tempting varieties of pickles and relishes is upon us once more and the thrifty housewife doesn't let this time slip by without taking advantage of the many different vegetables which go into the recipes for making these good things, which add the proper finish to lunches and midnight snacks.

Pickling, canning, and jelly making means just one thing—much work—but the results are so bountiful that one forgets all the hard work which has gone before when admiring the many glistening glasses and jars of fruit, jelly, and relishes all properly labeled and in neat rows upon the pantry shelves.

It is well to bear in mind when the urge for canning gets at fever heat not to bother with overripe fruit or vegetables. Use only the best grades of sugar, spices and cider vinegar, for often the results of "bargains" are very expensive, whereas when the best of ingredients are used they ensure against spoiling the results of your many hours of hard work.

For Example, Watermelon.

There are some folk who claim that pickels have no place on the menu, but such is not the case, for if eaten in moderation they stimulate the flow of saliva, thereby aiding digestion. We can't call to mind anyone who has ever passed up a delicious watermelon rind pickle when it was served, but we can count on our "thumbs" those who would take the time to do some up. It really isn't much trouble and just a few hours of work. So when you have your next large, juicy and icy cold watermelon save the rinds and prepare it in the following manner.

Remove the outside green skin, also all the pink flesh from watermelon rind; cut in two-inch pieces, weigh, and let stand overnight in a weak brine, made of one part of salt to four of water. In the morning drain and cook the rind in fresh water until soft. Strain off the water, and add to the kettle, for every pound of rind, one cup of vinegar, and one cup of sugar. Tie in small squares of cheesecloth, one ounce, each, of bruised cloves, ginger root, pounded allspice berries, and stick cinnamon; add these spices to the kettle, and allow to remain until the spicy flavor is of the desired strength.

Add, for every four pounds of rind one lemon, cut in thin slices. Bring the whole slowly to a boil; add one or two peach kernels, if these are available, and cook until the rind can easily be pierced with a straw. Care must be taken to avoid burning. Lift out the pieces of rind, and place in jars when done, and pour the sirup over. [We advise pint size jars.]

A bit of alum in the water in which the rind was first cooked will keep its crisp and firm, and reserve its color.

Little Gherkin Variety.

Another very popular pickle which rates with all pickle lovers is the little gherkin variety. This size pickle isn't as plentiful as the larger size, but when attainable use them, as the smallness is what makes this recipe different. The method of preparing them is as follows:

Three hundred gherkins. Clean and wipe dry. Put them in a deep bowl and sprinkle ¾ cup salt well through the pickles. Pour kettle of boiling water over them; enough to completely cover and let stand over night. Next morning remove from brine and dry pickles well. Place them in a two gallon crock. Next take ½ gallon cold vinegar and mix into it four heaping tablespoonsful of powdered mustard and the same amount of salt and sugar and ½ cup of mixed whole spices with little ginger root. Pour this mixture over the pickles and cover with inverted plate with something heavy on plate to keep secure and set crock in cool place.

Next measure out three pounds of granulated sugar and each morning add one small handful from this amount of sugar to the pickles, stirring each time you add sugar. Adding one handful sugar each morning until the three pounds are used will consume about three weeks. At end of that time place the pickles in quart jars and set away in a cool place. If the larger sized pickles are used, then cut the amount given in this recipe to half.

SHOPPERS FIND FOOD PRICES IN MARKETS FIRM

Variations for Week Lowest in More than Month.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Week-end purchasers of foods by housewives today and tomorrow will reveal to the shoppers fewer retail price changes than have occurred in more than a month. The focus of attention in stores of Chicagoland will be upon the fresh fruits and vegetables that are new for the season and reasonably priced, as are most canned goods, meats, and the majority of staples.

The first of the Michigan and Arkansas blue grape crop has arrived in the four quart and twelve quart baskets at reasonable prices to compete in Chicago with the early seedless grapes from California.

Plums and Crabapples Here.

Small blue plum and yellow crabapples are new arrivals, with both color and price for an attraction. Among the vegetables new for this summer are the green skinned Hubbard squash and the small green colored acorn squash.

Peaches, cantaloupes, and tomatoes are better fruit bargains than a week ago from a price standpoint and in most stores in quality. The height of the peach shipments to Chicago, at least for canning, is passing, wholesale dealers point out. The boxed peaches from the southwest will be on the market for several weeks.

Except for a fractional rise in the price of sugar, little change will be found today in prices of staples, including flour, cereals, and canned goods and in perishables such as butter and eggs. Wholesale butter prices remain unchanged this week, although the price for November contract delivery is nearly three cents higher than the present wholesale price, indicating dealers expect a rise in butter prices in spite of the record breaking amount in storage.

Blue Plums Harvest Short.

Housewives who expect plentiful supplies this fall of the Italian prune, also known as a blue plum, are due to be disappointed, especially if they have included this fruit in canning schedules. The usual harvest in Idaho, Oregon, and Washington is about 5,000 carlots, but the 1933 crop to be picked in September is estimated at 1,400 carlots.

Meat prices changed little during the week. Poultry this week-end is a bargain in many stores. Lower priced pork and lamb meats are the result of plentiful supplies in meat packing houses. Wholesale prices on cheese dropped nearly two cents a pound in the last few days, but the change has not been reflected as yet in most stores.

Household Hints

Waffles, griddle cakes, and hot breads are lighter and more tender when made with sour milk.

The child's daily quart of milk is just as effective when part of it is served in a cold milk shake.

Jars for canning should have new rubbers each year. To use an old rubber may waste both the contents of the can and the time spent in canning it.

All fruits for persons who must limit sugar in their diet may be canned with boiling water instead of with sugar sirup. Fruits canned in this way may be used just as the fresh fruit is used.

Meat loaf cooks quickly when the mixture is baked in patty tins. This also makes attractive individual portions.

101 MEAT CUTS OF 1933 MODEL VIE FOR FAVOR

New Ones Devised for U. S. Tables.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Ten years ago most housewives knew but ten useful cuts of meat, but now science and skill in the meat industry have made available 101 varieties of meat cuts, 1933 style, according to information brought out in the annual national meat in investigations conference being held this week at the Congress hotel.

Representatives of 30 state agricultural colleges and of the federal department of agriculture claim that the nation's meat industry in production and wholesale and retail distribution has been revolutionized by new findings and educational programs within the last decade. The investigators claim that a 40 hour week is as applicable to a housewife as it is to workers in any other profession, because of these and other findings.

Frenched Ribbed Roast.

Four "1933 models" in the meat cuts made available recently offer a new style in each of the major types of meat. One is the Frenched rib roast of beef, a standing rib roast with the rib ends Frenched and covered with paper frills.

Another new model is the butterfly pork chop. From lamb the inventors offer the lamb crown roast, made from the ribs and stylish to serve. Pork or lamb may be purchased in the cushion style shoulder which has a pocket for dressing.

Eighty-five per cent of all meat sold in this country is purchased by housewives, it was pointed out yesterday by Prof. D. L. Mackintosh of the meats department of Kansas State college and one of the delegates to the conference.

Watch for New Styles.

"These housewives watch for new styles in meat cuts with as much eagerness as for the new modes in hats and gowns," Prof. Mackintosh reports. "The housewife of today buys as much or more meat than her mother or grandmother, but buys it oftener and in smaller packages. Meat buying habits have greatly changed in this age of apartment houses, kitchenettes, telephones, talkies and smaller families. Meat cuts have been designed to fill the new demands."

Another phase of argument for meat consumption was offered by Prof. R. B. Hinman of Cornell university. He offered proof that meat consumption has no relation to such human ailments as rheumatism, gout, lumbago or related ailments, and that it could not be accused of causing hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure or kidney troubles.

OAK PARK BOY WINS D. A. R. SABER AT FT. SHERIDAN

A hundred Daughters of the American Revolution attended the annual D. A. R. day ceremonies yesterday in the citizens' military training camp at Fort Sheridan. They were led by Mrs. Julian G. Goodhue of Evanston, state regent, and Mrs. J. F. Zimmerman of Harvey, chairman of the state D. A. R. committee on national defense.

The women witnessed a complete day's program of drills and athletics at the camp. At the review in the afternoon, conducted by Maj. David B. Falk, executive officer, in the absence of Brig. Gen. Frank C. Bolles, commandant at the fort, the D. A. R. saber awarded annually to the fourth year C. M. T. C. student with the best record, was presented to David A. Winship, 108 South Elmwood avenue, Oak Park.

The D. A. R. members were guests of the officers at the fort at a reception and dinner in the evening. Tomorrow, when parents of the C. M. T. C. students will attend the final review of the camp on Visitors' day, is expected to bring the largest crowds of the camp season to the fort.

DAIRY INDUSTRY FEARS EFFECT OF U. S. LAND POLICY

A committee of the American Creamery Butter Manufacturers' association in Chicago yesterday dispatched a telegram to Secretary of Agriculture Wallace declaring there was danger to the dairy industry in the government land leasing contracts withdrawing farm acreage from wheat and cotton production.

The cotton and wheat contracts should be rewritten, according to W. F. Jensen, secretary of the butter manufacturers' association, and the leasing should be restricted to lands which may be seeded but not harvested in any way nor used for pasturage for milk production.

The telegram also asked that the power of President Roosevelt under the national industrial recovery act be used to prohibit or restrict importation of foreign oils or fats until such time as domestic prices for agricultural production are in accordance with provisions of the agricultural adjustment act.

NOW CHANGE ALL YOUR FORMER IDEAS OF FAST WASHING AND WHITE CLOTHES

With This Amazing New Soap Discovery

Accept 5 Easy Washdays FREE... NOTE COUPON BELOW

THANKS to the world's most famous soap makers, women everywhere are asking and exclaiming "Will the wonders of science never cease?"

For women believed that everything science could do to make washdays easier and clothes whiter had been done for them. And then found they were wrong.

They believed they had the fastest way already. And then found their present favorite was slow, compared to this new invention.

They believed they already had the whitest washes they could get. And then were amazed by still whiter washes.

A Remarkable, NEW Invention

This new and improved soap invention is called OXYDOL. And it does these things. Things no other soap can do, or has ever done:

It cuts washing time 25% to 40%. And thus saves hours of labor.

It is as kind to the hands as the finest toilet soap. For it is created by America's largest soap makers—the makers of gentle "Ivory."

Do you wonder then that women by the thousands are daily turning to it?

How It Works

For one thing, it is especially fitted to the water in each district it is sold. Old-time soaps are not.

The water in this district for instance has been tested for hardness by famous chemists. And the new, improved OXYDOL you get here is made to fit it. This gives you suds like rich dairy cream that's whipped.

It contains special, mild elements that soak out dirt—dissolve it—take it out like magic. And these elements are blended with special ingredients to protect colors against fading.

It will change all ideals you have ever had about washing. About whiter washes. About easier washdays.

These things we promise you. For your own sake, try it. Don't believe your present favorite is still the finest. Try this new invention. Accept package FREE for coupon. Or obtain at any store.

CONGESTED AREA AIDED BY SCHOOL ECONOMY PLAN

3,500 Students to Attend Converted College.

Conversion of Crane Junior college at 2245 Jackson boulevard into a senior high school will provide facilities for 3,500 more students in this congested area this fall. This latest development in the school economy and better housing program was announced yesterday by James B. McCahey, president of the board of education.

Officials in the educational department reported to Mr. McCahey that the Marquette branch of the Crane High school at 1800 West Harrison street, which 602 students have been attending, and the Clarke branch at 1310 South Ashland avenue, which housed 950 students, will be closed. All students will go to high school in the main building.

Both Antiquated Schools.

Both the branch schools are antiquated, the Clarke having been erected in 1865 and the Marquette in 1878. Additions have been built on both structures, but they are not modern. Closing the two branches will effect an annual saving of $39,000 in operating costs alone.

An additional improvement in the housing situation in the area is that part of the heavy load at McKinley Senior High school will be lifted.

Ten vermin infested portables, clustered about the Crane Senior High school, will be abandoned entirely. There were 4,462 pupils attending this high school and its branches last year. The conversion plan will provide for a student capacity of 4,973.

Board officials yesterday released a detailed survey on wards 26, 27, 28, 29, 30 and 37. Summarized, the economy plan in this area will eliminate 29 portables, will place 20 half day classes on full time, utilize seven previously vacant rooms and 43 additional rooms in which seats will be placed for regular classrooms.

Push Conversion Work.

Contractors employed by the board are making rapid progress in the eleven junior high schools that will become senior high schools this fall. In each of these schools two chemistry and one physics laboratory will be installed in keeping with the recommendation of Supt. William J. Bogan with regard to the high school curricula.

During the day a petition for an injunction to restrain the board of education from carrying out its program was put over until Tuesday by Judge Charles A. Williams in the Superior court. The suit had been brought by John E. Groves, a teacher of mathematics at the Crane High school, who declared in his bill that if he were compelled to teach more than five classes daily, as the board's program contemplates, his health would be injured.

The school board's answer, filed by Frank S. Righeimer, special counsel, set forth the mounting debt and deficit of the school system and the need for economies in order to restore its credit. The answer denies that the economy program will damage the education of Chicago children.

Similar to Rejected Bill.

A bill similar to Groves' was denied two weeks ago in the Circuit court by Judge William V. Brothers.

Judge Williams told the attorneys yesterday that he needed sufficient time to read the voluminous bill and answer. He indicated that he would devote the entire day on Tuesday to a consideration of the case.

On the same day the mandamus action brought against the board by Samuel Landau, 4363 Drake avenue, on behalf of his two daughters, Dorothy and Beatrice, who are school children, will be heard by Judge Joseph B. David in the Superior court. The bill asks the court to compel the board to rescind its economy program and expunge all action in connection with it from the records.

S. O. S. COMMITTEE DISCUSSES PLANS TO PUSH DRIVE

Two hundred and fifty leaders and representatives of various civic groups, clubs, and other organizations which make up the "Save Our Schools" committee, met last night in the City club to further their plans for a modification of the school board's economy program.

One plan discussed calls for the distribution of thousands of pledge cards calling for a revision in the school changes. These would be signed and returned to the S. O. S. committee.

Part of the night's business was taken up in receiving reports on neighborhood mass-meetings and other activities relating to the committee's fight.

Bride Is Granted Divorce from Locomotive Engineer

Judge Charles A. Williams granted Mrs. Nellie M. Schmillen, 2445 East 72d street, a divorce yesterday in the Superior court from John B. Schmillen, 12139 Yale avenue, an unemployed railroad engineer, on charges of cruelty. Mrs. Schmillen waived alimony, but Judge Williams ordered Schmillen to repay $300 when her attorney, Harry X. Cole, stated she had spent that sum to defray the expense of their wedding and to buy her husband cigars and cigarets. They were married on April 22.

A. E. F. Vets of Russian Rail Service Meet Today

The Associated Veterans of the Russian Railway Service corps, composed of American railroad men who went to Siberia as members of the A. E. F., to reorganize the railroads of that country following the revolution, will start a three day reunion today at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club. The railroad men, sent to the aid of the Kerensky government, arrived at Vladivostok on Dec. 17, 1917, after the government had been overthrown by the bolsheviki, and were refused admission to Russia. They entered Siberia through Korea, however, and spent two years in the country.

BAKING POWDER ADVENT MARKS KITCHEN EPOCH

Quick Breads Date Only from Invention.

BY DOROTHY MASTERS.

It was not until the 1820s that the housewives thought of using anything except yeast for their leavening, but it was around that date, according to old recipe records, that a few of the bolder ones began experimenting with a combination of perlash [potassium carbonate] and vinegar. Then bicarbonate of soda was put on the market, but several precious years were lost before it was discovered to have a place in the culinary field.

Powders Are Combined.

A few years later sour milk and soda were combined for leavening, and finally, cream of tartar and baking soda. From this it was easy to get a blended powder for leavening. With baking powder on the market, making of biscuit and cakes became simplified, and through this simplification, began to take on new flourishes.

With a few slight changes, a baking powder biscuit may blossom out into a raisin roll, a cheese wafer, or a shortcake, depending on the cook's whim. Muffin varieties are legion, and nut breads are beyond counting.

All breads using other leavening than yeast are called "quick breads," probably because of the comparatively short time needed for preperation.

As a start, these ingredients are necessary: Flour, liquid, fat, salt, leavening [baking powder or soda], sugar, egg. While the last two are not used in ordinary baking powder or soda biscuits, they are included in almost every other type of quick bread.

Sifting Is Necessary.

Generally speaking, all dry ingredients are sifted together first, then the mixed liquids are added. This not only avoids lumping, but protects the baking powder. Some powders begin action as soon as they come in contact with liquid; others require heat, and still others need a combination of the two, but in any case, it is well to preserve the leavening power by mixing at the last moment.

Now for a few favorite recipes:

MARMALADE BISCUIT.

Sift 2 cups of flour with 3 teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt. With tips of fingers work in 3 tablespoons shortening until appearance is like coarse cornmeal. Add ¾ cup milk and stir with a fork until well blended. Turn out onto a floured board. Pat or roll out to ¼ inch thickness. Cut in oval shape 6 inches wide with round ends. Lay on thin sheet. Make ½ inch cuts 1 inch from end and parallel with end. Put 1 teaspoon orange marmalade in the center. Fold over and press edges together. Bake at 450 degrees for 15 minutes. Yield: 12 biscuits.

CHEESE BREAKFAST MUFFINS.
2 teaspoon baking powder.
1 tablespoon butter.
3 tablespoons grated American cheese.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 well beaten egg.

Sift dry ingredients twice. Blend the egg and milk and add to the flour, beating only until well mixed. Stir in the melted fat and grated cheese and turn into greased muffin pans.

CHERRY PINWHEEL BISCUIT.
1 cup sour red cherries in juice.
5 tablespoons brown sugar.
¼ teaspoon ground cloves.
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg.
½ teaspoon cinnamon.
Recipe of rich baking powder biscuit dough.
2 tablespoons melted butter.

Measure out one cup of drained, pitted red cherries and put them through a coarse food chopper. Add the sugar and spices. Mix, and let the combination stand for half an hour. Spread this mixture over the biscuit dough which has been rolled to one-third inch thickness and brushed with melted butter. Roll up quickly, as for a jelly roll, and slice across, cutting it into one-half inch slices. Place these pinwheel slices on greased baking pan, baking them in a moderately hot oven from twenty to twenty-five minutes.

A NATURAL PINEAPPLE JUICE
Rich in Esters
(the flavor-carriers)
• Change all your ideas of pineapple juice as a sweetish, syrupy drink. This kind is different—unsweetened, just the pure, natural juice of field-ripened Hawaiian pineapples.
It is brought direct from Hawaii by Libby who gave you the famous center slices of pineapple.
And it is exceptionally tangy and delicious because it is rich in Esters. Esters, the flavor-carriers of the fruit, are concentrated in the full-ripe juice cells from which Libby's is taken.
Here is a marvelous appetizer, a refreshing drink for any time of day. Healthful, too. Doubtless you've read about the many important dietetic values which have been recently discovered in canned pineapple.
Ask your grocer for Libby's Pineapple Juice. Serve it well chilled. One taste and you'll know why it's making such a big hit at the Fair, why people are ordering it by the case for their homes. Libby, McNeill & Libby, Honolulu, Hawaii.

Fairbanks to Join English Film Magnates

Plans Big Production for World Market.

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Aug. 17.—A secret of Douglas Fairbanks' was revealed today. He has definitely decided to make large scale film productions in England for the American market.

He is joining forces with Alexander Korda, leading English film producer, and Ludovic Toeplitz, and the new organization expects to spend $5,000,000 yearly under the scheme of making pictures in England for the world market.

Douglas Fairbanks Jr. is associated in the plan and will star in the first picture, starting immediately in filming a story of the lives of Peter the Great and Catherine of Russia. Doug Jr. will play the rôle of the young czar. Doug Sr. is taking the leading part in the next production starting early in October, dealing with an episode in the later life of Don Juan. Doug himself is portraying the famous Spanish lover from an entirely new angle.

In the third film both Fairbanks, father and son, will appear together for the first time in films, the production bringing back to the screen the famous Fairbanks character of "Zorro"—in a film to be entitled "Z."

Fairbanks senior today in outlining the scheme said the new organization's intention is to bring back to England many of the great English artists who have made their names in Hollywood.

The films at first will be produced at the Elstree studios, but ultimately the new concern will possess its own. United Artists corporation will distribute the organization's productions in America and worldwide.

If You Want Fur Bargains Buy Them Now

BY RHEA SEEGER.

She who hesitates, even for a fraction of a second, during these August fur sales, is lost! Grab the prizes while you can, for if you leave to think it over some other, wiser shopper will snatch the coat or furs you vacillatingly lingered over the day before. The shops lure you with some startling prices and knowingly whisper of rapidly rising prices in another month. The thing to do is buy.

Fur coats of 1933 are sleek, slim, and flattering to wear. Skillful fingers have manipulated fine pelts and trimmed one fur with another, or else fashioned with supreme artistry a perfect coat of one fur, but with a silhouette that shrieks perfection of detail.

You can find mink coats hung from the neckline in the new fashion, swagger, smart affairs, or you can wisely squander your money for a superlatively sleek, black caracul made with high squared shoulder lines, buried in a face-framing silver fox collar. And just when you were beginning to think sealskin was tame and a trifle oldish, the fur coat designers have sprung the surprise of the season—stunning looking, very young appearing sealskin coats that will make you look as slim and sophisticated as you would in thin satin-smooth woolens.

Dashing swagger coats for street and spectator sports wear are smarter than ever. One leopard model with a short, snappy military collar has sleeves that puff adroitly with a flared cuff just below the elbow. Another stunning coat of cinnamon brown mink tails pieced together is made in a loose flaring model with the ubiquitous ascot tie collar.

There is nutria that would fool even a beaver expert. There are silvery gray kidskins, contrasted with darker cuffs, yokes, and collar of iron gray kidskin, and all the others that should be seen to be properly appreciated.

This is also the time to buy your furpiece—a silver fox or sable. And you can find all the newest cape creations, from short, demure pelerines like granny used to wear, to the exciting, new affairs of muff and cape to match.

For a Campus Wardrobe

Society Girls Arrange for College Study

Many Parents Select Eastern Schools.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NOW that the last days of summer are upon us with a faint tang of autumn in the air, parents and nearly grown up daughters are dragging their minds reluctantly from out of door pleasures to thoughts of winter wardrobes, new schools in the east . . . or perhaps passports abroad.

In keeping with the times, however, many more young ladies are entering schools and colleges in the east this fall than are crossing the ocean. Among the eastern colleges, Vassar is popular, for a number of girls are entering its portals the middle of September.

Already enrolled for their first year there are Miss Barbara Fortune, Miss Elinor Kirkland, and Miss Frances Lasker. They were all three graduated last spring from the Girls' Latin school, so they have been promising themselves a reunion on the Vassar campus on or about Sept. 20, which is registration day.

They are the daughters, respectively, of Mr. and Mrs. John L. Fortune, Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert D. Lasker.

If present plans for Miss Mary Senior's winter hold good, she also will spend it at Vassar. Miss Senior was one of last winter's most attractive debutantes. Miss Medora Pelouze, the William Nelson Pelouzes' daughter, will be another freshman at Vassar. She was graduated last June from the University School for Girls.

Miss Alice May Dickinson's equally blonde younger sister, Dorothy, is to receive the next four years of her education at Smith. At present she is in Michigan on the ranch of her family, the Francis P. Dickinsons.

Miss Jean Lamson to Attend Bryn Mawr.

A Chicago girl at Bryn Mawr will be Miss Jean Lamson, the Warren A. Lamsons' youngest daughter, who will rush away east to attend the opening classes soon after she is presented to society at a tea dance in her parents' Hubbard Woods home on Sept. 9.

Among the Chicago girls who attended Farmington last year, one is going back. She is Miss Mary Wood, the vivid, friendly, gay daughter of Gen. and Mrs. Robert E. Wood of Highland Park. Miss Wood does not plan to make her debut for another two years, for after this winter she wants to spend a year abroad, just as her sisters, Mrs. Edwin E. Tuttis, Mrs. James R. Addington, and Mrs. Calvin Fentress Jr., did. Another Farmington girl, Miss Betty Brooks, daughter of the Mason Phelpses', may travel abroad. Miss Brooks is in California just now.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Reid, daughter of the Bryan S. Reids, is leaving the end of September for a winter at Miss Weaver's school in Munich.

Mrs. John R. Thompson Jr. and her attractive daughter, Miss Eleanor Thompson, are near Duluth, Minn., for a few days. After they arrive home Monday they will decide whether

Punch and Judy Players Present Drama for 100 Guests of Sally

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

You'd certainly never think you were on the eighth floor of a skyscraper when you approach the Jack and Jill Players' studios! As you step out of the elevator you see a wide white colonial door, green shuttered windows, and gay window boxes. Beyond this door is a charming studio-theater. The walls are pale green, and the room is fitted with little orange benches—just the right size for children—handsome book shelves, and, occupying one complete end of the room, a stage.

After much hustle and bustle my 100 guests were seated, the lights were dimmed to the soft glow of the footlights, and "Little Lord Fauntleroy" began. The cast was as follows:

Earl of Dorincourt.....Cyril Janicki
Cedric Errol [Lord Fauntleroy].....
.....Billy McCullough
Mr. Havisham, a solicitor.....Harold Moran
Mr. Hobbs, a grocer.....James Stolp
Dick, a bootblack.....William Peeples
Mrs. Higgins, a farmer's wife.....
.....Margaret McLaughlin
Wilkins, a groom.....Robert Ehrlich
Thomas, a footman.....Charles Stevens
Mrs. Errol [Dearest].....Virginia Mae Heisley
Mina.....Inaclarice Rome
Mary.....Dale Kohn

It would be impossible to select any one child as outstanding because each was excellent in his part. These boys and girls have a real knack for their work, and most certainly presented an enjoyable program. My small guests gave them rapt attention and enthusiastic applause.

When the little lord and his mother and all the other characters reached the happy ending and the velvet curtains swished to a close, our charming hostess, Marie Agnes Foley, director of the group of young players, presented Loretta Bloch and Kenneth Bixby, who were judged the best letter writers of the entire group invited, with our prizes, beautifully illustrated books written by Olive Beaupre Miller, an author for children. Loretta was delighted with her copy of "Little Pictures of Japan," and Kenneth was equally joyful about "Friends from France."

REFLECTING the tenor of the times, perhaps, is the lad on the west side vegetable cart (How that girl does get around!) who calls:

"Yellow bandit corn!"

* *

THIS very sophisticated story concerns the owner of a fine collection of paintings and a magnificent estate on the north shore and a charming dark-eyed debutante of several seasons ago. He invited her to come over to his swimming pool any time she wanted to take a swim and to bring any of her friends she liked. The following evening she arrived, bringing several girls with her. The host went inside to announce to his wife the arrival of the young ladies.

* *

THE honors at repartee do not go entirely to the wife, however. When the host reappeared at the pool he brought with him a number of bottles of champagne. These he let down into the illuminated pool and started a diving contest for the bottles. He had seen it done in the movies, he said.

"At least here's something worth while learned in the movies," commented a diver as she went down after a bottle.

A SHORT time ago a State street store (Field's) ran some ads in out-of-town papers inviting visitors to the Fair to come into the store. The keys to the city would be theirs, the advertisements offered, with figurative hospitality. A few days later people began coming into the store asking for the keys to the city. The quick-acting advertising manager immediately sent out and got hold of some hundreds of fancy keys, and now, when such a request is made, the salesgirl reaches down behind the counter and hands out a souvenir key. More than 100 keys were given out in one day. . . . Just by way of warning you to take no chances on offers of any kind to visitors in town for the Fair.

BLOOD MONEY

By IRVIN S. COBB.

SYNOPSIS.

Uncas Cresap and his Chinese servant are found dead in the upper room of Cresap's boathouse on Kettle pond, near the eastern end of Long Island. Gilbert Jonathan Redd, Cresap's step-brother, keeps a written private account of developments in the case. A blow on the forehead from a slender, sharp edged implement killed Cresap. The cause of the Chinaman's death is not apparent. Capt Bray, a special investigator, and an old friend of Redd's, helps the men from the district attorney's office in solving the crime. Redd is a former police reporter. Florence Dane, Cresap's niece and an orphan, lived with him. Redd was fond of Florence's mother. He bought a home near Cresap's in order to protect Florence. Cresap made his fortune in the far east. Redd freely admits to Bray his hatred of Cresap, who was a drunkard and a debauché. Of the servants, the Chinaman, and a dwarf, Sabino, are the most important, and there seemed to be some secret bond between them and their employer. Bray is about to start questioning the members of the household when he is interrupted by the appearance of one Pettigrew, an eccentric artist and former drinking companion of Cresap's.

INSTALLMENT XI.

DEADLY INTENTIONS.

Acknowledging my presence by a curt but tremulous nod, Pettigrew squinted goggily first at one and then another of the Riverhead contingent, for Slocum had followed him indoors, prepared evidently to have redress for his wounded dignity, but restrained from the impulse by sheer wonder. After peering in turn at all three of them, he focussed his unsteady vision on Bray. In a hoarse, muddled voice, speaking between throaty puffs, he said:

"See here, sir, if you're the individual I take you to be, you are seeking for the persons or person who killed the owners of this establishment—and very good riddance of a very loathsome object, I might add. Am I correct?"

"You might almost go so far as to put it that way," Bray conceded.

"Quite so! Then, sir, you may be interested in meeting the man who meant to kill him, had not some meddlesome interloper deprived that man of that inestimable pleasure?"

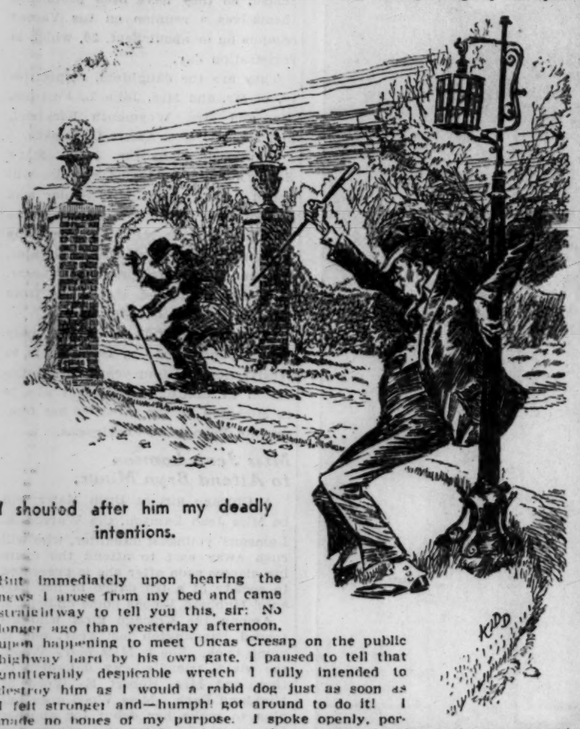
"Sir," declaimed Pettigrew, and boomed like a bittern, "he stands four-square before you." But the poor wreck couldn't stand four-square before anybody; his angular cadaver wavered groggily on those limber, pipestem legs.

"And might I make so bold as to ask when did you first get the sad tidings that some busybody had taken the play away from you?"

"A few minutes ago. I have been—hum, harrup!—slightly indisposed.



I shouted after him my deadly intentions.

But immediately upon hearing the news I arose from my bed and came straightway to tell you this, sir: No longer ago than yesterday afternoon, upon happening to meet Uncas Cresap on the public highway hard by his own gate, I paused to tell that unutterably despicable wretch I fully intended to destroy him as I would a rabid dog just as soon as I felt stronger and—humph! got around to do it! I made no bones of my purpose. I spoke openly, perhaps loudly. I told him that for the last time I warned him to cease his unwelcome attentions to a certain young person employed in my kitchen, a young person to whom I—hum!—have extended my protection and in whom I have a—hum, humph!—paternal interest. I told him that when next I encountered him I should be prepared to exterminate him as I would a—a venomous adder."

"And what did he say when you promised him all this?"

"Sir, he slunk away like the cowardly and craven cur that he was. Not until he was at a safe and comparatively remote distance did he defy me with profanity to do my worst. At the moment, owing to a—hum, hum!—passing lassitude or debility affecting my lower limbs, I could not overtake him and strike him down in his tracks, strong though my righteous desire to do so was. But, sir, my mind fully was made up. I shouted after him my deadly intentions."

His words conjured up for me an indecent etching—peaceful, empty Pharaoh's Lane, and in the midst of it two obscene and sorry blots on the landscape, this mouthy, slack jawed brace of burnt out sensualists swapping futile threats and blasphemies over some soiled scullery doe.

"Well, boss, since somebody else seems to have beat you to it, why be in such a rush to tell us your troubles?" demanded Bray.

"Because, sir, I anticipate that any eavesdropper, upon hearing what passed between us, might very well post himself off to the authorities to reveal my identity as a possible suspect. I choose, sir, to anticipate any such step by a frank avowal, face to face with you. You may so report to your superiors. You may inform them that if further statements should be desired I am to be found at my customary domicile. . . And now, sir, and you, and you, I have the honor to bid you all good day."

"Just a minute," ordered Bray briskly. "You may be done with me, but I don't know as I'm quite done with you."

A sudden stiffening of Pettigrew's slabby frame, a mounting glare in his glazed eyes, told me we shortly were due to behold one of the insane combustions for which hereabouts the old crackbrain is notorious. His intermittent wheezes quickened and consolidated into a simmery, seething sputter.

"Have you the effrontery to seek, sir, to detain me?" he demanded, getting the words out between puffs.

"That's the rough idea. And say, listen to me, old Fuss-and-Feathers, you might try just for politeness' sake to hold onto your disposition."

"I know my rights under the law, sir. Unless you have a warrant for my apprehension how dare you——"

"Forget the warrant," snapped Bray. "For instance, just where were you between say, 10 o'clock last night and midnight? And who else, if anybody, knows you were where you'd claim to be?"

"That, sir, is my business."

"Going to force me to find out for myself, eh?"

"Then, sir, it would become your business."

"And so you wouldn't be nice and tell me of your own accord?"

"Not in ten thousand years! There is, sir, such a thing as a gentleman's honor, although such a conception may be foreign to your conceptions here is such a thing as a lady's—hum—an innocent party's good name. So hat, sir, for you and your minions!"

He made a valiant, vainglorious effort to snap his fingers under Bray's nose, but the chalky fingers threw off no sound. Showing remarkable agility he whisked about and jerked himself out of the front door, and then we, like so many petrified men, stood goggling at that preposterous scarecrow tacking with string halted steps down the flagged footpath.

"Well, anyhow," said Bray, "we've got one more to add to our little catalog of them as think the man who got butchered up last night had it coming to him. I wonder if the list's going to keep growing the way it's started out? If it does, we might have considerable picking and choosing to do before it comes time to pinch somebody!"

He got out a scratch pad and a pencil.

"What's that cranky old souse's moniker, Gilly?"

He wrote it down. For most things Bray's memory always was good but on proper names he would get twisted.

The biggest scene of yesterday's crowded installment of this drama called for the full strength of the supporting company, as a theatrical ballyhoo would phrase it.

In the library, the minor members of the cast, sitting in a sort of semi circular formation, faced across a distance of several yards a table behind which Bray and Motley were entrenched like a pair of sharpshooters behind breastworks. The table was left in a half shadow, but on the figures in the middle breadth of the paneled room, bright, hard radiance fell from the ornate chandeliers in the ceiling. Assembling, we found the lights already turned on, for the wraithy beginnings of the fog were creeping inshore from the Atlantic, bringing on an imitation twilight fully an hour before twilight was due by calendar.

Old Verity, young Olsen, Delia the cook, and the two maids occupied adjacent chairs in the sag of that irregular crescent. One horn of the moon—if you cared to put it that way—was marked by a little overstuffed sofa whereon Florence and I sat side by side, I holding tightly clasped one of her slim, strong little hands, which at intervals I could feel twitching just a trifle in my grip. At the other tip, isolated from the rest of us by as many feet as space permitted, was Sabino, perched upon a low stool—but low as it was, his splayed feet dangled inches above the floor—with his huge misshapen head drawn down between his rounded shoulders until he looked more than ever like a hunchback, with his staring eyes looking straight ahead of him in an unblinking intensity. He suggested some sour and malignant gnome brewing bad medicine.

Sweet Sixteen Best Age to Begin Dating

BY DORIS BLAKE.

At what age a girl should be permitted to go out with a boy friend is a problem that seems to be occupying the attention of many of our good parents.

One mother writes that her 15 year old pouts and sulks because she is not permitted to go out alone with a boy in the evening. The girl insists that the other girls her age all have boy friends.

At 16 and 17 today many girls are working and their only chance of relaxation is in the evening hours. At 18 today a girl is a grownup and an adult woman, to hear her tell it, and often it is true enough, for she is thoroughly well able to handle herself and the boy friend, too.

Fifteen, one can say with reasonable firmness, is too young for nocturnal wanderings with only the boy friend to guide, protect and chaperon. Perhaps the rule might be stretched to an early movie and home promptly. But that only when the girl's parents are well aware of the boy's character and standing.

Youth may be able to take care of itself, as it so stoutly professes, but it is always better done when there is a mother or father or both in the background to pull the strings and demand respect for lawful hours and conduct.

For girls of 16 or 17 dates become a matter largely of the stability of the individual character and quality of the company they are attracted to. Even then, a mother's watchful eye had better be kept open.

Society Girls Arrange for College Study

Many Parents Select Eastern Schools.

or no Miss Thompson is to go away to school. The junior James B. Forgans are still undecided as to how their daughter, Nancy, is to spend the winter.

Other Girls Plan Bows to Society.

More exciting perhaps than school wardrobes and house party dreams are the plans of the thirty or forty young women who are to bow to society at teas, dinner dances and balls this fall and winter. Opinion in the family of Mrs. Harry L. Street is somewhat divided, however, since Miss Marjorie is to be a debutante and her younger sister, Harriet, a freshman student at Vassar.

The date of Miss Marjorie's debut party is not yet decided, but it will be an affair of the late fall or early winter. Mrs. Street, with her four daughters . . . Jeanne and Katharine have already made their bows . . . is moving into the city in another six weeks, closing up her attractive Winnetka house. Miss Marjorie was graduated from Mount Vernon seminary at Washington, D. C., last spring.

One of the important debut balls of the winter season . . . and you may be sure they are appreciated these times when parties are not so grand and elaborate as they used to be . . . is that which Mrs. David R. Forgan is giving for her lovely daugher, Miss Fleury Leonard, the evening of Dec. 30 in the Crystal ballroom of the Blackstone hotel.

Like Miss Jean Lamson, Miss Mary Kay Downs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Downs, is to be presented to society at a tea dance. The date of Miss Downs' party has just been set for Nov. 18, the end of the football season. It will be held in the Drake hotel.

New Experience in Theater Going.

A dozen of society's more dignified vacationers had a new experience in theater going this week at Bretton Woods in the White mountains of New Hampshire. They went to see the Barnstormers' play, "Dangerous Corner," in the hayloft of Peckett's playhouse and they found themselves comfortably stowed away in old time mountain wagons, sleighs, and other ancient vehicles cleverly converted into theater boxes.

The Tracy Drakes with their Bretton Woods hostess, Mrs. John G. M. Glessner, were among the box guests. Mrs. John R. Winterbotham sat in a hundred year old sleigh and the Ernest Pooles' seats were those of a hayrack.

The Drakes have been enjoying Mrs. Glessner's beautiful home, The Rocks, at Littleton, which she has developed since leaving the historic Twin Mountain house. Before the Barnstormers' performance Mrs. Glessner had a dinner party at which she also entertained Mme. Wilmerding of New York, who is the guest at Littleton of her daughter, Mrs. Lowell R. Burch, and Mr. and Mrs. William Andros Barron of Crawford Notch.

Mrs. George Glessner and Miss Emily Glessner, who will be back in Chicago this winter, now have at their summer home Mrs. Glessner's grandchildren, Miss Anne Edge and her sister, Alice, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Edge of New York. Miss Glessner's summer hobbies are horseback and gardening.

Colony Holds Flower Show.

Mrs. Frances Glessner Lee has just arrived at Littleton and opened her quaint cottage on the family hilltop with its rows of old fashioned garden flowers and lichen covered stone walls. The beautiful early American furnishings bear testimony to the fact that Mrs. Lee has long been a collector of choice antiques.

All of the Glessners, Mrs. Poole and several more Chicago members of the cottage colony showed their choice flowers and vegetables in the recent fourth annual flower show of the White Mountain Garden club which was another event in Peckett's playhouse.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Chapman motored up to the Mount Washington hotel from their summer home the other day and spent several days. Soon they will be back here to make plans for the marriage of their daughter, Virginia, to J. Brooks Fenno.

The John W. Nortons, Charles West, the William Deans, Thomas Tallmadge and a half dozen more are motoring over to Saugatuck, Mich., tomorrow for the pageant to be held at the Summer School of Painting in dedication of a mural in the dining room of the Old Oxbow inn. The artist is George Shealey.

The pageant itself is to take place in a beautiful natural amphitheater in the dunes called the Temple. It will depict the romantic episodes in the life of Rip Van Winkle.

Party Tuesday at Strotz Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Strotz have issued invitations to forty of their friends for cocktails and a buffet supper Tuesday evening at their Stone street apartment.

Many among the city's literary minded are planning to attend the tea the Cordon club is having at 4 o'clock this afternoon for the Hon. Gosuke Imai, a member of the Japanese house of peers, also a member of the Japanese commission to A Century of Progress. Mrs. Elsa Durand Mower as president of the club will be the hostess.

A few golfing figures we gleaned yesterday are of interest to all of those who will follow the 37th woman's amateur championships to be played Aug. 28 to Sept. 2 at the Exmoor Country club in Highland Park.

First of all, there are 119 American and foreign golfers already entered, and there are 6,473 yards of links at Exmoor. The course hasn't been altered in any respect since Mrs. O. S. Hill of Kansas City defeated Mrs. Leona Pressler of Los Angeles, 3 and 1, for the 1931 woman's western, played at Exmoor.

The woman's par at Exmoor is 79 . . . the figure made by Mrs. Pressler in winning medalist honors in 1931. The woman's course record is 78, made by Miss June Weiller, who is going to compete in the nationals. In the qualifying rounds for the national event Mrs. George Tyson scored third with Mrs. Hill.

After his friends had been disappointed time and again with false reports of a visit to Chicago, Wheeler Williams and his bride are about to arrive—really, this time. They are in Harbor Point, Mich., at present, visiting Mr. Williams' sister and brother-in-law, the George A. Ranneys. The Lawrence Williams, Mr. Williams' brother and sister-in-law, have returned from Desbarats to prepare a welcome for the newly marrieds, who are expected by Sunday afternoon, or Monday at the latest. Until they arrive, the Lawrence Williamses are not planning any entertainment for them, as the length of their visit depends on business affairs. The Wheeler Williamses are on their way to Winnipeg to visit Mrs. Williams' family.

Returns from World Tour.

Mrs. Uri B. Grannis has just received word that James O. Heyworth Jr., son of her good friend, Mrs. James O. Heyworth, is back in this country after a trek around the world. Soon it is expected that Mr. Heyworth and his mather will come to Chicago from New York, where he landed . . . before his mother goes up to Desbarats for a visit with her sister, Mrs. Esther Waterman.

The Horace E. Newcomets and their daughter, Miss Marian Newcomet, returned from New York this week after a trip that has kept them traveling abroad since the first part of June. Miss Newcomet is a tentative debutante of this winter. She was graduated from the Girls' Latin School last June, but cannot decide if she wants to make her debut now or wait another season. At any rate, she will spend the winter in Chicago.

The J. Beach Clows, the Newcomets' daughter and son-in-law, are visiting the junior John P. Wilsons in Charlevoix and are expected home next week.

The Bruce Borlands have finally gotten off to their summer home at Camden, Me. Their sons, John J. and William F. Borland, have been east for quite a while, and they may all come home together at the end of two weeks.

Tired of a city bachelor's life, Botsford Young is leaving today for a short canoe and fishing trip in northern Canada. Just about a month ago Mrs. Young, with their two children, left for a holiday on the west coast. In another three weeks they will all be having a family reunion in Chicago.

Mrs. Albert H. Vandenberg, wife of the United States senator from Michigan, and her daughter, Elizabeth, are remaining over the week-end to accept a Lake Geneva invitation. Miss Vandenberg played a solo part last night with the National High School orchestra in the newly erected bowl at the Hall of States at A Century of Progress. Her part was a Liszt concerto played on the piano.

JUNIOR GIRL'S DRESS.

Here is a pretty dress for the first school days. Brown and yellow checked gingham with yellow trimming will be attractive looking. Other suggestions are wool jerseys, mercerized broadcloth, and sheer wools. The buttoned yoke is smart and the inverted skirt plaits give graceful fullness to the bottom.

The pattern, No. 2788, comes in sizes 8, 10, 12, and 14 years.

Theater Novel by Tarkington Amusing Tale

Work Is Also Devastating Study of Type.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"Presenting Lily Mars," by Booth Tarkington. [Doubleday Doran.] Published on Wednesday.

There is no subject—even in a day when the movies have thrown their golden eagle shadows over the stage—more fascinating than the life of the theater. Its characters make "characters" which really shine with "glamour," a word which, incidentally, has been so overworked lately that it has lost its union card. Some day I'm going to draw up a new deal code for words. Lately everything that hasn't been "foul" among some of the writing profession has been "glamorous," and I, for one, feel like giving myself as punishment for using it the task of writing one hundred times, in a fine Spencerian hand, Carlyle's injunction, "There is endless merit in a man's knowing when to have done."

But in its present popular sense, of something all tinsel and excitement and sparkle and thrill for the onlooker, "glamorous" is exactly the word for such a person as the heroine of "Presenting Lily Mars," for the floodlighted circle in which she lives for the span of the pages which depict her first essay at being an actress.

Booth Tarkington knows his glamor when he meets it. He must have met it so often in his career as novelist and playwright that all of the tinsel of the stage got good and tarnished for him. For "Presenting Lily Mars" is, although on the face an amusing and gay tale of dramatic temperament, underneath, a keen and devastating study of a type.

The presenting of Lily Mars takes place first when the mother of a successful young playwright persuades him to listen to her recite. Lily Mars, the daughter of an invalid mother, and with a sick sister who supports the family by work for which her health wholly unfits her, is, in her own mind, a great emotional actress. She has so persuaded her own mother and the mother of the young playwright of her genius that they feel her to be the potentially greatest actress of her day . . . and, ironically enough, the reader also eventually sees her as that. At her first presentation she "does" the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet" and the mad scene from "Macbeth" and an interpretative dance denoting joy in the spring throughout the ages . . . the situation has a rich mixture of comedy and pathos in it.

"Presenting Lily Mars" is amusing . . . but it is also sad, the way that "Alice Adams" was; at the same time bringing mingled tears and a stitch in the side. Mr. Tarkington is a little more given to seeing the selfishness of humankind in "Presenting Lily Mars" than he was in "Alice Adams," but perhaps that is because the humankind with which he has to deal in it is more intense.

A great many books are written about theatrical people, and they always have the same allure for readers, but rarely are they as sharp attacks on the pretense of glamor. The reader keeps saying to himself, as Owen, the young playwright is forced to say many times, "Those people." They are, so far as the ordinary human being is concerned, another people. They not only act differently from the rest of us. They think differently. Mr. Tarkington has succeeded in putting into words that alien thinking. As a study of "the other half" (of the theater) and how it lives "Presenting Lily Mars" is one of the best of its genre. It's not, however, it seems to me, Mr. Tarkington at his tiptop best, the best of "Alice Adams" and "Seventeen."

To prove that the stage always has—you know what—for readers, there have recently been two other novels about theatrical life—three if you count Vina Delmar's "The Marriage Racket" (Harcourt Brace), which is about a trouper in a vaudeville team when it begins. It has some of the lore of the stage in it, but it soon veers off into the racket of marriage.

Bernard Sobel, press agent for the "Follies," knows more and (I suspect) cares less about the incandescence of the "Follies" twinklers than anybody extant.

When he writes a book about a Broadway dazzler he knows what he is writing about. All of the background, the props and the characters are there in his "The Indiscreet Girl" (Farrar & Rinehart). She was called that, not because she was, especially, in her ways, but because she was in "The Indiscreet Revue." How she got on, off, up, into, and out of things is the subject of the amusing tale.

"Stage Mother," by Bradford Ropes (King), has the same practical realities about it that Mr. Sobel's novel has. It is about a hard headed, persistent, devoted, clever stage mother who was determined that her daughter should have a brilliant career if any or all of the tricks of seeking the Main Chance could give it to her. The stage mother is selfish, bitter, hard headed and hard hearted, but not for herself. The pages are steeped in the atmosphere of the theater.

No Matter Where

A lively tale of New York and Dorrsport, Maine, in which a young and busted stock broker strives to pick up the threads of a rural existence where his forebears dropped them several generations back and finds the picking not easy—although brushes with rum-runners, a murder mystery, and a tangled love affair do brighten the bucolic scene.

Romance, humor, shrewd insight into American character, and exciting situations combine to make a thoroughly enjoyable story.

Jonquil Quilts Create Eternal Spring in Home

Jonquils.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Golden spring jonquils form the theme of today's quilt pattern. Two shades of yellow is the proper color scheme for the blossoms themselves, with stems and leaves of green. If this pattern is used for a pillow top, as well it might, the flower bowl should be cut from a light colored material and all appliqued on a black background. On the other hand, if you intend to use the pattern for a quilt the foundation should be a light color—pale green or tan—and the bowl a dark contrasting color, of green, brown, or black.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send 5 cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

FORDNEY'S ANALYSIS.

Mrs. Sheldon Hughes, widow of a late prominent real estate broker, was at the time, alone with two maids, Mary and Susan, in one of the seven houses that had been built in a subdivision three miles from Charlestown.

Mary and the next door housekeeper, Mrs. Wyle, were talking over the fence when a sharp, querulous voice was heard by them.

"Hello . . . hello . . . Goethel's grocery? What's the matter? Can't you . . .? Yes. That's better. This is Mrs. Sheldon Hughes. I'm not too late for today's delivery, am I? Good. I want——"

"There she goes again—doin' her own orderin'," Mary exclaimed. "As if I wasn't capable. She——"

A bitter denunciation of her mistress followed, while the list of groceries was given. Just as the telephone conversation ended Mary entered the house, only to rush out a minute later screaming that Mrs. Hughes was stabbed.

Mrs. Wylie, hearing the cry, immediately dashed out the back door of her house, ran through a gate in the fence, collided with Goethel's delivery boy from Charlestown, who had just deposited the groceries on the porch of the Hughes' home, and asked him to hurry inside with her.

Susan, who said she was on the third floor when she heard Mary scream, was calling the police as the two entered the living room. They heard her say: "Quick, there's a knife stuck in her heart!"

Mrs. Wylie later told Prof. Fordney, in minute detail, the events of the afternoon.

WHY DID HE THINK SO?

Perhaps you have a story or problem you would like to submit to Prof. Fordney. If so, send it to him care of this paper. He will be delighted to receive it.

MOTHER— protect her baby skin!

Prevent irritation with KLEENEX disposable tissues

Illustration and text copr. 1933, Kleenex Co.

Use for handkerchiefs, for drying, as a bib, for everything! Surprisingly inexpensive.

MOTHERS call Kleenex "the friendly tissue" because it's so handy and practical for so many, many uses. It costs very little. You use each tissue just once, then destroy. It's even softer than linen, and infinitely more absorbent.

"Kleenex makes the ideal handkerchief. It's so soft and absorbent that I feel sure of the safety of it on baby's tender skin."

"I dry my baby with Kleenex after her bath. Even old linen doesn't absorb moisture so effectively, and thorough drying is important in any baby's comfort."

"I use a sheet of Kleenex tucked under the chin as grandfather does his napkin, when I give my baby her cod liver oil and orange juice which stain clothes so badly. Baby's dresses are spotless and mother's temper much improved now. Kleenex also cuts down laundry expense."

And these are only a few of the valuable uses for Kleenex! Use it to remove face creams and cosmetics the safe way. It blots all dirt and impurities from the pores. You will want a box in every room in your house.

Safer than handkerchiefs

Important for baby! Kleenex is made under the most hygienic conditions. It is kept clean, hygienic, even during use, by the patented, self-dispensing, pull-out carton. You touch only the tissues you are about to use. Your hand never enters the box to contaminate or mess up the other sheets. You never take out more than the required amount—assurance of economy!

Sold at all drug, dry goods and department stores.

SENATORS BEAT SOX, 14-1; LEAD BY 7½ GAMES

PEDLEY, 8 GOAL STAR, TO JOIN WESTERN TEAM

Replaces Williams in Polo Final Sunday.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Eric Pedley, who will replace the injured Rube Williams in the lineup of the western all star polo team, may be the deciding factor in the third and final game of the intersectional series which will be played Sunday at Onwentsia.

When Williams was carried from the field with his leg broken in the seventh chukker of Wednesday's game polo experts were prepared to concede the series to the east, for there seemed no one available to carry on in place of the fiery Texas cowpuncher. With Rube gone the westerners seemed to lose much of their concerted driving power. Individually they tried just as hard, but they failed to click.

Assures Real Battle.

Then word was received yesterday that Pedley, like a modern Lochinvar, would come out of the west to take the place in the battle line left vacant by the courageous Rube. That news was a spark which fired once again the fading hopes of the western team. And it did more than that. It assured the polo public that another terrific battle, and not a walkover, would be on the program Sunday.

The prowess of Pedley has received full recognition from Tommy Hitchcock, captain of the eastern team. In a magazine article written last year Hitchcock placed Pedley at No. 1 position on his all time all star team, and commented in this way upon his choice:

"Without a doubt, the greatest No. 1 I have ever seen is Eric Pedley, from California. Louis Stoddard, who was America's No. 1 against England in 1913 and 1921, and Watson Webb, who played that position for us against England in 1924 and 1927, have played wonderfully, but no one in my experience has ever equalled Pedley's performance against England in 1930."

Sets Scoring Record.

In the second game of the series with England to which Hitchcock referred, Pedley scored eight goals, a record which never has been equaled in an international match. And he is more than a great No. 1 man, for he has proved his versatility in every position on the team. Thus there is much speculation as to just where Manager Carleton F. Burke will place him Sunday.

It is considered probable that Pedley will be put at No. 1 or No. 2 rather than at back, in which case it is thought likely that Elmer Boeseke will be sent to the position left vacant by Williams. It is believed that Cecil Smith will continue to play at No. 3. Burke is not expected to announce a final choice until just before the game.

Will Arrive Today.

Maj. Frederic McLaughlin, chairman of the managing committee of the series, received a wire from Los Angeles last night saying that Pedley had started for Chicago by plane and would arrive today. When the intersectional series was first discussed some months ago Pedley, who is an 8 goal man, was considered a logical choice for a place on the western team. However, he issued a statement to the effect that he could not be absent from his business long enough to take part in the series.

He reconsidered yesterday, however, when he received an urgent invitation from Neil McCarthy, alternate and assistant manager of the western team. McCarthy's action was considered a fine gesture of sportsmanship for the best interests of the team, inasmuch as he would have had an opportunity to play himself had Pedley failed to take part.

Begins Polo in 1910.

Pedley, who is 37 years old, began playing polo in 1910 and soon developed into one of the most skillful members of the well known Midwick team of California. He first came into national prominence as a substitute on the American team which played England in 1924. That same year he played with the Midwick team which won the open, junior, Pacific coast circuit and Pacific coast open championship. He has shared in other titles as a member of the Greentree, Hurricane, and Sands Point teams.

PEN AND INK REVIEW OF EAST'S TRIUMPH OVER WEST IN POLO WORLD SERIES

Frank B. Hoffman, widely known creator of pictures, sat on the sidelines at Onwentsia Wednesday and recorded in pen and ink sketches the highlights of the east's 12 to 8 victory over the west in the second game of polo world series. The deciding game in the series, which is tied at one game each, will be played Sunday.

Hornsby Helps Beat Yanks with Homer

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Aided by two home runs, one of them by Manager Rogers Hornsby, acting as a pinch hitter, the St. Louis Browns today came from behind to hand the New York Yankees their second straight setback, 7 to 6, in 10 innings.

Hornsby's homer, hit off Vernon Gomez in the ninth inning, tied the score after Earl Combs' pinch single with Tony Lazzeri on base had given the Yanks a one run lead in the eighth. In the sixth inning, Ralston Hemsley had tied the count, when Dixie Walker lost his fly in the sun and it fell for a home run, scoring Burns and Melillo.

Talking It Over

BY ARCH WARD.

KING LEVINSKY, who already has defeated one former heavyweight champion and is getting ready to whip another, picked up a newspaper the other day after his workout at A Century of Progress training camp where he is preparing for a bout with Jack Sharkey.

He digested the news from Cuba. Machado seems to have taken the count. He consumed with keen interest a story about Hitler's persecution of the Jews. Predicted he could straighten matters out in ten rounds if he had a chance. He studied the news on the national recovery act. Interesting but complicated.

Then he turned to the sport section. Westrope rides four winners at Hawthorne. East meets west in second game of polo series. Bush pitches five hit game, but loses to Braves. Senators whip Sox. Bausch to play full back for Cardinals. No mention about the big fight.

"This is odd, indeed," said the great mauler in a chaste New England dialect acquired around Maxwell street and Roosevelt road.

So the King soliloquizes. What has come over the newspapers, anyhow? Have they no longer any sense of values? Don't the sports editors realize that I am an important figure and that my workouts are of interest to millions and millions, and should I say millions of people?

At that, it doesn't seem sporting. Why should a man sniff and snort and work his heart out if the newspapers show no interest in recording the enthralling developments of the day?

"Guess they are giving me the bird," Levinsky concluded. "Bah!"

If he had given two bahs he might have qualified for a blue eagle.

It is doubtful if the amazing form reversal of the 1933 Cubs has any counterpart in sport. At home they are almost unbeatable. Abroad they perform like timorous freshmen playing their first game away from the campus.

The Cubs won 22 of their last 26 games at Wrigley field. They have lost 12 out of the last 13 played on foreign grounds.

1. At home the Cub pitchers have the white shirts and straw hats of the bleacher fans for a background. The white ball coming up to the plate in this setting is said to be confusing to visiting batsmen.

2. The Cubs are cocky. They play like champions when they are cheered on by Chicago's support, but tighten up when they are razzed in the enemy's camp.

3. They develop an inferiority complex when they hit the road. For years there has been a feeling the Cubs are a poor traveling club.

If you have a better theory, let's have it. We never have been good at mysteries.

Two players who will live in baseball history as long as the game survives—Mordecai Brown and Jimmy Archer—will serve as battery mates on a team of old timers against a lineup of semi-pros at Mills stadium Sunday. Everybody knows about the exploits of Three Fingered Brown. He belongs to the golden age of baseball, the era that produced Mathewson, Walsh, and Johnson. Archer succeeded Johnny Kling as regular catcher for the Cubs under Frank Chance.

Brown, Archer, and 30 other former big league stars will be there to honor Bill Harley, manager of the Mills semi-pro team. It will be known as Harley day. Few have contributed more to semi-pro baseball than Harley.

Gehrig Breaks Record; Plays 1,308th Game

St. Louis, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Lou Gehrig, New York Yankee first baseman, established a new endurance record for the sport today as he played in his 1,308th successive game, surpassing by one game the old mark of 1,307 consecutive contests made by Everett [Deacon] Scott, former Yankee shortstop.

Gehrig, who began his sensational string June 1, 1925, 26 days after Scott ended his run, was the recipient of a silver trophy and many congratulations. President William Harridge of the American league was here to see the setting of the new record, but business detained Scott from making the trip from his home in Fort Wayne, Ind.

Has Average of .340.

Gehrig failed to figure prominently in the Yankee offensive, but he connected with two hits, both singles. They increased his total hits in the major leagues to 1,696 in 4,978 times at bat for a major league batting average of .340. He has scored 1,171 runs and driven out 282 home runs.

It was in 1923, after three years' college work at Columbia university, that Lou reported to the late Miller Huggins, describing himself as a pitcher, outfielder and first baseman. He spent two years in the minors at Hartford and then got his chance.

Plays in 4 World Series.

The Yanks had dropped five straight when Huggins gave Gehrig his first opportunity as a pinch hitter. He failed. The next day, however, he replaced Wallie Pipp at first base, won the ball game with three hits, and since then has not missed a game.

He has played in four world series for a batting average of .422, put together with 27 hits.

'If Tables' Show Yanks Have Only Outside Chance

The New York Yankees, to finish the season with as good a percentage as they had last year, must win 42 of their remaining 44 games. Many of their most optimistic partisans do not believe they can do it.

It is probable that the Yanks themselves have abandoned all hope of tieing their last year's mark and are concentrating on ways and means of beating out the Washington Senators, whom they now trail by 7½ games. The standings of the two teams this morning are:

Washington	Won, 73;	Lost, 38;	Pct., .658
New York	Won, 65;	Lost, 45;	Pct., .591

So far the Yanks have won at the rate of 13 games out of every 22 played. They have 44 more games to play. If they maintain their season's pace, therefore, they will win 26 and lose 18. If they do this their final standing will be:

Won, 91; Lost, 63; Pct., .591.

To tie this mark it will be necessary for the Senators to win 18 while losing 25.

On the other hand, if the Senators win 22 out of their remaining 43 games, or one game better than .500 baseball, their final showing will be:

Won, 95; Lost, 59; Pct., .617.

To tie this the Yanks will have to win 30 games while losing 14, a shade better than two victories in every three games played.

Perroni Beats Gastanaga in Ten Round Contest

WESTROPE RIDES 3 MORE WINNERS AT HAWTHORNE

BY FRENCH LANE.

Jockey Jack Westrope broke loose out at the Hawthorne race course again yesterday. When his day's work had ended his record was three winners, two seconds and two thirds. Only once—in the last race on the favorite Peace Lady—was he out of the money.

It boosted his total winning mounts for the year to 185 and shot him on toward the jockey championship by a wide margin. He was cheered most of the time and booed on other occasions by the temperamental Hawthorne crowd because he couldn't make slow horses run fast for him.

In four days the kid from the Iowa farm country has dashed past the winning post 13 times.

Westrope Has Eight Mounts.

Westrope was in action in all of the eight races. He was aboard Hickory Lad, a long shot, in the first race, and made him run fast enough to be second back of the heavily backed Wacoche from Audley farm stable. He climbed into the saddle on the ancient Martie Flynn in the second and had old Martie up in time to beat Cold Check, from Abraham Bartelstein's stable, by half a length, with Texas Knight third.

He came out on Meloy, from the Peabody stable, in the third race, but the best he could do was finish third against the fast running Trinchera, from Texas, and Rollin In, from Maryland. The folks who backed him to complete the daily double groaned when he failed.

Another Peabody horse, Technocracy, was his mount in the Honeysuckle purse, the fourth race, a 5½ furlong dash for 2 year olds. Once he got Technocracy into a running mood in the stretch he never left the result in doubt. Technocracy finished two lengths in front of Essie Wessie and Albane, which finished second and third.

Beaten by Nose.

Westrope came right back in the fifth race and kept the weak hearted Fanfern, from Audley farm stable, going long enough to win by about three inches from Pancho Lopez and Merrily On. This was his greatest finish during the afternoon. He had to throw his heart and all his energy into the effort to make Fanfern keep running long enough to win.

After three triumphs, Hillsborough, which the Iowa farmer boy rode in the sixth race, was made an even money favorite. Westrope couldn't make him keep step with Al Neiman and Islam, so he was third.

His mount of Miss Melody, another from the Peabody stable, was made the even money favorite in the White Lake purse, a dash at six furlongs, which was the best race on the program. Westrope was beaten a nose in a stirring stretch finish by Jockey S. Renick on the fleet Gift of Roses, from Kentucky.

MILLER ROUTED AS WASHINGTON GETS 9TH IN ROW

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The Washington Senators got the notion that the pair of 5 to 1 victories they scored over the White Sox in the first two games of the series might give them a bad name, so yesterday they really tried. The result of their extended effort was a 14 to 1 thumping for the completely cowed Chicagoans, through which they raised their winning streak to nine straight and increased their margin over the second place Yankees to 7½ games.

There was nothing that the league leaders didn't do except commit errors. Their assortment of 16 hits included a homer by Moe Berg, a triple by Joe Kuhel, two doubles by Fred Schulte, and one double each by Kuhel, Luke Sewell, and Monte Weaver. To augment this onslaught the parade of four Sox pitchers gave up seven passes and the defense committed three errors, two by Billy Sullivan, who made his 1933 Chicago debut as a catcher. There also were three stolen bases.

Sox Pile Up Four Hits.

To counteract this flow of endeavor the Sox pounded out four singles off Weaver, who recently cast aside his bottle of patent elixir and resumed pitching. It was his seventh victory of the season and his third in a row since specialists convinced him he was not dying by inches.

In running their victory string to nine straight the Senators have tied the year's American league record set by the Yankees. The Sox broke the Yankee run and this afternoon will try to do the same for the Senators.

Al Simmons, who predicted, when the Yanks reached nine straight, that the New Yorkers would win the pennant standing up, became faint and left yesterday's game in the fifth inning. He has played in every game this year and there is hope of reviving him in time for this afternoon's encounter.

Miller Chased in First.

Walter Miller, who had won three out of his four starts against the Senators prior to yesterday, flopped in the nemesis role and did not survive the first inning. It seems his curve wasn't breaking. Kimsey and Haid followed in the pitching assignment and their work was sketchy, to say the least. The only real Chicago pitching of the day was turned in by Red Faber, who stopped the visitors cold in the last two and two-thirds innings, thank goodness.

Considering Miller's nemesis billing, the first inning was indeed a sad affair. Myer opened the game with a single off Rhyne's glove and was forced by Manush. Cronin followed with a single and Harris walked, filling the bases. Schulte then got the first of his series of hits, a single to center, scoring Manush and Cronin, and putting Harris on third. Schulte went to second on Kuhel's out and to third when Bluege smashed a single off Miller's glove. At this point Kimsey relieved Miller. Bluege stole second, and Schulte had made up his mind to hold third until he saw Sullivan made a wide throw to Appling. Then he scored. Sewell doubled to right, scoring Bluege, and the inning was over when Rhyne threw out Weaver.

Stopped, but Not Long.

A double play prevented the Senators from scoring in the second, but Schulte's first double and a single by Kuhel gave them a run in the third.

The Sox got the bases full with none out in their end of the fourth on Simmons' infield hit and walks to Appling and Dykes. Simmons scored while Rhyne was hitting into a double play.

The foregoing rally so frightened the Senators that they made three runs in the fifth and four more in the sixth. Schulte knocked his third hit and second double to start the fifth and scored on Kuhel's double. Kimsey went away and Haid arrived. He promptly walked Bluege. Berg, who had relieved Sewell when the latter was hit by a pitched ball in the third, sacrificed. Weaver knocked the third double of the inning, scoring Kuhel and Bluege.

It Goes On for Hours.

In the sixth Schulte walked with two down and scored on Kuhel's triple. Bluege walked. Kuhel and Bluege scored ahead of Berg when Moe socked a homer over the left field scoreboard.

Haid loaded up the bases with two walks and a single in the seventh. Then Faber came in and got the side out with the scoring of only one run. Faber held the enemy hitless in the eighth. In the ninth Myer beat out a bouncer to Kress. Manush filed to Webb. Cronin filed to Haas and Myer was doubled off second, Haas to Appling to Rhyne.

Link Lyman Signs to Play with Bears Again

Link Lyman, 225 pound tackle, has been signed by President George Halas of the Chicago Bears, professional football team, for the 1933 season. The former University of Nebraska lineman, who resides on a ranch near Lakeside, Neb., was to have played with the Bears last year, but business conditions forced him to remain on his ranch.

WHITNEY HORSES SCORE TRIPLE ON SARATOGA CARD

High Glee Runs Away with Feature Event.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Horses owned by Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Whitney won three races today, including the feature, in the first sweep of the kind since the meeting began. The main event, the Troy claiming stakes, went to Mr. Whitney's High Glee, while his Halcyon was first in the Burgomaster purse. The triple was begun by Mrs. Whitney when her steeplechaser, Blot, was first in the Pathfinder 'chase.

The program also was notable for the running of the West Point purse, a race for thoroughbreds owned and ridden by officers of the United States army. Col. Pierre Lorillard, head of the army remount bureau, served as a steward during the running of this event, which was added to the program. It was won by Jane H., owned, trained, and ridden by Capt. Frank L. Carr.

Winner Is Joint Choice.

The winner was a joint choice at 6 to 5 with Capt. H. C. Barnes' Arcade. Jane H. won by four lengths, with Arcade three lengths before Lieut. R. L. Howze's Mithridale.

High Glee was timed in 1:06 3-5 for the distance and carried 106 pounds. Jockey J. Stout was the winning rider. High Glee now has won three races in a row, all at different tracks. She is a daughter of Pharamond II., from Beaming.

Jockey Gets Credit.

Halcyon's victory was due to a great ride by Raymond Workman. At the top of the stretch in the Burgomoster St. Stephen's, a 30 to 1 shot, was winging along in front with a two lengths lead on the nearest of the others, and the nearest was not Halcyon. He was last of the five which got away, but Workman threw all he had into the ride and just got The Broomstick, 5 year old, up in time to win by a nose.

Crusader Ties Three Heat Trot Record

Goshen, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Trotting in the blue and gold colors of the Arden Homestead stable of E. Roland Harriman of Goshen, N. Y., the bay horse Calumet Crusader this afternoon equaled the world's trotting record for three heats. The son of Truax and Petrella, she by Peter the Great, won the first division of the Progressive purse of $2,500 in straight heats. He trotted in 2:01¾, 2:01¼, and 2:02¼, under the clever driving of Will Dickerson.

Calumet Crusader might have set a new world's trotting mark had not the elements interfered. The times in the first two heats indicated that he was all set for the feat. Then, as the last heat of the preceding race was being paced, rain fell heavily in a freak storm that soaked only about half of the track. The stretch was heavy and slowed the whole field.

The world's trotting record for three heats was established at Lexington, Ky., in 1931 by Tronia Britton, which trotted the three heats in 2:02½, 2:01, and 2:01¾.

BUCKING HORSES ARRIVE FOR FAIR RODEO

A carload of bucking horses from Miles City, Mont., was unloaded yesterday at Lake Forest. The animals were quartered on a nearby farm where they will enjoy complete freedom for several days. Then they will be trucked to Soldiers' field for the World's Fair rodeo, which opens a week from today.

Rodeo officials received word yesterday that Gen. Jesus Jaime Quinones had left Mexico City for Chicago with a band of 20 riders and ropers, 16 of them men and four women.

Six carloads of wild horses left Blackfoot, Idaho, yesterday and will arrive in Chicago Sunday or Monday. Cowboys will drive this herd of 150 head from a corral in the Illinois Central railroad yards at 16th street, across the outer drive and into Soldiers' field.

Postpone Firpo-Tramblie Bout Until Thursday

The eight round bout between Henry Firpo and Ray Tramblie, scheduled for last night at Shewbridge field, was postponed until next Thursday because of inclement weather.

WACOCHE away fast and drew out rapidly and tired after reaching final eighth, but not endangered seriously, winning without need of pressure. HICKORY LAD, green and inclined to swerve, moved up when racing wide on the stretch turn and held on well under strong hand riding. BOY VALET began slowly, saved ground on stretch turn, and outfinished WOODLANDER in final stride.

MARTIE FLYNN, hustled along for a quarter but taken under strong restraint on the turn, slowly wore down GOLDEN SUN and, inclined to sulk, won under strong pressure. COLD CHECK, away fast but unable to keep up, worked his way through the field with a rush in the stretch and was in close quarters near end. TEXAS KNIGHT bettered his position fast after reaching stretch and stood the drive gamely.

TRINCHERA, much the best and well ridden, was steadied along to stretch, where he came away fast, but had little left. ROLLIN IN was under strong urging after reaching the final three-eighths and weakened in closing eighth, but held second safe. MELOY raced wide and was in hand for a half-mile, could not improve his position when urged, and weakened, but outstayed ESPINACA.

TECHNOCRACY away fast and rated close to the early pace, gradually disposed of DUST GIRL and, continuing well under vicorous riding, held the race safe thereafter. ESSIE WESSIE, steadied and restrained until reaching stretch, where she found room on inside, closed resolutely. ALBANE moved up slightly on stretch turn and went evenly while racing wide thereafter.

FANFERN, never far back and raced wide throughout, improved her position very slowly after reaching final quarter and was up in closing strides. PANCHO LOPEZ, cleverly rated, held on in improved style and just failed to last. MERRILY ON, forced back on the turn and brought out when entering stretch, closed resolutely.

Winner trained by R. McIlvain. Went to post at 4:22¾. Off at once. Start good from gate. Won driving; second and third same.

AL NEIMAN made the early pace under steadying restraint, came away as ALL ROWES, hard to keep on straight turn and, holding on gamely in closing stride headed, wore down HILLSBOROUGH and ISLAM in rapid succession when making the closing few strides. ISLAM, restrained for five-eighths, worked his way to the front under strong handling and weakened suddenly near the end. HILLSBOROUGH, slow to get going, raced wide throughout and also faltered badly in closing stride.

GIFT OF ROSES, giving fine speed from the start, worked her way to the front under strong handling after reaching the stretch and, while unable to draw out, outlasted MISS MELODY. The latter, a strong factor from the start, stood a long drive gamely, but failed to get up. PRINCESS CAMELIA had fine speed, saved ground throughout, and held on stubbornly after being headed.

BROWN WISDOM, taken into the lead and greatly benefited through lack of early contention, continued well following a brief shaking up entering the stretch and had something left, ED LARK saved ground throughout, shook off PEACE LADY after reaching the stretch, and held on well to the final sixteenth before faltering. PING COATES lost ground and, holding on well, outcamed PEACE LADY.

Equipoise to Arrive for Cup Race Tuesday

The champion Equipoise is scheduled to arrive at Hawthorne Tuesday for his Hawthorne Gold Cup engagement. He will get his final training prep at Saratoga early Monday morning. Later on in the day he will be loaded into an express car for the trip to Chicago.

Fans are already beginning to speculate about the odds against Equipoise in the cup race, a weight for age event next Thursday which lets Equipoise into the struggle under 126 pounds. Most of the players calculated that he would be about 1 to 10 at post time.

Several candidates for the Hawthorne Juvenile handicap were out for slow moves yesterday morning. When Far Star, the Arlington Futurity winner, loafed six furlongs in 1:19 3-5 it was indicated she will remain in her stall while the race is run and that Mata Hari and Constant Wife will be the Dixiana stable color bearers.

A lot of backing has developed for the Audley Farm stable's Signalman to win the Juvenile handicap. He probably will rule as the second choice. Lady Higloss, winner of five straight races, is the likely third choice. She was sold yesterday to Victor Emanuel, international sportsman who races horses both in this country and in Europe. Trainer J. J. Murphy is coming from Saratoga to saddle the fleet daughter of Ladkin for Mr. Emanuel.

While most of the 68 eligibles for the Hawthorne Juvenile are on the grounds and training, the field is expected to number about 16 when Starter Harry Morrisey gives them the word tomorrow afternoon. A muddy track might take some of them out of the race. It wouldn't scare Mata Hari, for she runs just about as fast in the mud as she does over a fast track.

The Hawthorne spectators demonstrated again that they can pick those daily doubles. Most of the folks in the crowd hooked up Martie Flynn and Trinchera in the second and third races. The double paid off at $30.64.

With 1,000 veterinarians from all over the country at Hawthorne this afternoon as the guests of Dr. Joseph Kaiser, it should be easy to determine if a horse goes to the post in fit condition.

GIANTS CONQUER REDS, 7 TO 2, AND ADD TO MARGIN

Leaders Now 4½ Games Ahead of Pirates.

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Giants, protecting a five run lead rolled up in the first inning, with brilliant defensive work, today turned back the Cincinnati Reds for the second successive day to increase their lead over the idle Pirates to four and one-half games. The score was 7 to 2.

A six hit attack on Benny Frey gave the Giants five runs in the first inning, and from there on it was an easy task for Roy Parmelee to turn in his fifth consecutive pitching victory and his eleventh of the season, as compared to five defeats.

The Reds found Parmelee for 13 hits, but with the aid of five double plays by the Giant infield, in two of which he figured, the New York pitcher held the invaders away from the plate except in the fifth and eighth innings.

Cincinnati used three pitchers. Only Ray Kolp, who hurled the last seven innings, was effective, however. Score:

The Phils jumped into a one run lead in the first, but the Cards tied it up in the fourth and scored six runs in the fifth to go out in front. Score:

With Averill leading the attack, the Indians pounded Earnshaw, Peterson, Walberg, and Coombs for 19 hits, which netted 33 bases. Averill completed the cycle, a single, a double, a triple, and a home run. Cissell also hit for the circuit. Score:

A pass to Johnson, a single by Alexander, an error by Doljack, a double by Jolley, and a single by McManus ended Auker's régime in the sixth after three runs had crossed the plate. Score:

Lincoln Park Archery Club Wins Crown

The Lincoln Park Archery club won the team championship yesterday in A Century of Progress open tourney at Soldiers' field, scoring 1,863 points. The Chicago Archery club was second with 1,474 points and the Prairie club of Berwyn, Ill., third with 1,352.

William Brink led the Lincoln Park four with 601 points out of a possible 864 with 96 arrows at 100 yards. G. L. Nickols of Chicago was the second high individual scorer with 459 points.

William Ostlund, also of the Lincoln Park club, won the wand shooting event, in which contestants fire at a pole two inches wide and six feet high set at a distance of 100 yards. Nickols won the shootoff against Brink and H. L. Walker of the Chicago Archery club after each had scored two hits. Nickols scored two hits in the extra competition.

Nickols Double Winner.

Nickols also won the clout shooting, making 31 hits for a score of 141 points. Fred Kibbe of Coldwater, Mich., was second with 24 hits and 104 points. Clout shooting is the oldest archery competition. The contestants shoot simultaneously, sending the arrows high in the air and dropping them on a flat target 180 yards away. Each contestant in the men's division fires 150 arrows. Miss Isophene Swendsen of St. Paul won the women's title in this event, scoring 23 hits for 115 points with 36 arrows. Mrs. Alta Benedict of Southgate, Ky., was second and Miss Ann Long of Chicago third.

Mrs. Nedora Mantz of Fredericks, Md., won the wand event for women, scoring five hits out of 30 arrows at 60 yards. Mrs. Aldia Cook and Mrs. Elizabeth Price, both of Chicago, tied for second with two hits each.

Mrs. Elizabeth Robert, who won the women's national flight championship at St. Louis recently, won the event yesterday with a distance of 318 yards, ten yards less than her winning distance at St. Louis.

Thornton Junior Champ.

The junior clout shooting championship was won by Jack Thornton Jr. of Terre Haute, Ind., who had 26 hits for 102 points. Summaries:

TEAM CHAMPIONSHIP—Won by Lincoln Park Archery club, 1,863 points [William Brink, 601; G. Brink Sr., 438; William Ostlund, 418; T. G. Brink Jr., 406]; Chicago Archery club, second, 1,474 [G. L. Sox Send Miller Right Back Today Against Senators

The Senators make their last Chicago appearance of the season this afternoon. Wally Stewart is slated to pitch for the visitors. The Sox will come back with Miller, who yesterday pitched only two-thirds of an inning.

The season series now stands 11 for the Senators and 6 for the Sox. Yesterday's victory, in addition to being the leaders' ninth straight in the league, was their eighth straight at Comiskey park and their ninth in ten played.

Weaver has only seven victories to to his credit so far this year, as compared with 22 last season. Since he has ceased to be a hypochondriac, however, he probably will be one of the Senator stars the rest of the way.

The Yankees will come to town tomorrow for the first of four games to be played in three days, including a double header. The Sox plan to treat them roughly. The Yankees will come to town showing evidences that the Cubs took something out of them last fall.

MISS BARRETT'S 90 WINS ROYAL GOLF TOURNEY

Miss Beatrice Barrett of Minneapolis, Minnesota state champion, was low gross in the Royal league ladies' golf tournament at Medinah yesterday with a score of 44—46—90. Next came Mrs. Merette Ream of Westmoreland, with 111, to win the guests' award.

Miss Dorothy Thornton won the "duffers'" prize with 78—73—151, and Miss Julia Rostchil with 85—73—158 won the "dubs" prize. Leading scores follow:

New York, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—President John Heydler of the National league today announced the suspension of Manager Max Carey and Catcher Al Lopez of the Brooklyn Dodgers for three days for their fight with Umpire Ted McGrew in the second game of the Brooklyn-Pirates double header at Brooklyn yesterday. Carey also was fined $50.

ALL-STARS SHOW COACHES HOW GAME IS PLAYED

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Any skeptic who harbors the thought that the east-west football game at Soldiers' field next Thursday night will be merely a parade of sun bronzed athletes who do not care which side wins as long as all get their expense money should drop out to Dyche stadium.

Whenever they meet these boys, be it during the football lectures in the morning or in the evening when they are rehearsing their plays on the practice field, they will discover an intense rivalry which bids to make Thursday night's game equal all the claims of advance publicity.

The eastern players were on duty yesterday morning at the coaching school which featured a lecture by Hunk Anderson, head coach at Notre Dame, who is an associate professor in the courses conducted by Howard Jones of Southern California and Dick Hanley of Northwestern.

Anderson Gives Lecture.

Anderson showed the coaches [there are 400 of them enrolled from 'T states] methods of defensive line play and finished his lesson with a few plays from the back field shift formation. The versatility of the all-star players cannot be demonstrated better that it was by the team which was picked yesterday. This team listed several men who had played the system, but it had others who had never been drilled in the formations.

There was Harry Newman, Michigan's all-American and winner of THE TRIBUNE'S most valuable player award in the conference, at quarter back handling the ball as if he had played the Notre Dame system for three years. Jim Purvis and Roy Horstmann of Purdue, of course, have used the Notre Dame shift, with variations by Noble Kiser, and Joe Kurth and Jim Harris, tackle and guard, respectively, are products of the home university of the shift. Big Jack Riley of Northwestern, who undoubtedly will pair with Kurth Thursday night at the tackle positions, hasn't played the shift, but Jack knows it from alpha to omega.

Fesler at End.

Frank Baker, Northwestern end, and Wes Fesler of Ohio State, the greatest all around athlete in the roster of super stars, were at ends, just where they'll be Thursday night. Lawrence Ely of Nebraska was the center and Milt Summerfelt of the Army was the other guard. Summerfelt also learned about the shift from Notre Dame.

This is beside the point, for Hanley's team won't use a shift Thursday night. But it does illustrate that these boys know football. There's no doubt that they can play football.

Hanley is anxious to see how the forward pass rule, which will permit a forward pass to be made at any point behind the scrimmage line, will work out.

Try Out New Pass Idea.

"I suggested this rule to the football rules committee last year," Hanley said, "but it wasn't accepted. I believe it will increase scoring and that this is what the public wants. Waiving the five yard behind the scrimmage line rule will do away with the zone defense against passes. The spectator who has predicted time and again the offensive tactics on first, second, and third downs, now will be in as great a quandary as the defense. The game will be wide open with as many thrills as can be crowded into 60 minutes.

"Howard Jones agrees with me that football owes a debt to those who support it and we propose to pay our debt with an open style game. We also propose to do away with the head linesman. An assistant will mark the down and distance to be gained, releasing the head linesman from this duty so that he may act as an umpire. There will then be two umpires, each stationed at the end of the scrimmage line, and they will have equal jurisdiction."

Both teams practiced last night.

DAWSON, BROWN TIE IN CHICAGO GOLF CLUB MEET

Johnny Dawson was one of the two leading sharpshooters at the Chicago Golf club's annual invitational tournament yesterday, scoring 39—36—75 to win low gross. Hunter Brown had 38—37—75 to tie Johnny, but his six handicap gave him low net. G. H. MacCallum with 76—6—70 took second low net.

In class B, D. F. Taber had 40—42—82 for first gross. H. B. Henry and J. D. McNulty tied for low net with 72. The field finished in a rainstorm.

Rain Gives Cubs a Rest; Root Faces Braves in Final Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 17.—A compassionate weather man dashed to the rescue of the Cubs today. He provided a sprinkling of rain that caused the postponement of the final of the three game series with the up and coming Braves, who are the fifth outfit in the league nursing pennant ambitions. For the Chicagoans the respite was as welcome as a legacy from an unheard-of uncle. It may enable them to get out of the panicky state into which they were driven by two unexpected trimmings here.

The rain also kept them from spending twenty-four hours of idleness tomorrow in New York, where they would be able to read nothing except accounts of how the leading Giants are going about the business of clinching the flag. As it is now they'll use up tomorrow's schedule vacancy to settle their Boston affairs for the year, and then jump right into New York without having time to worry over the four impending games with the leaders.

Talk of City Series.

After the two jolts here it is hardly necessary to mention that the Cubs give indications of being interested in things heretofore not discussed. There seems to be more speculation as to how much the second or third place series money will amount to. The boys also are asking for information as to the weaknesses and strong points of the White Sox. A city series pot is a consoling feature, you know. Not that they have abandoned their pennant hopes. The hopes are still with them, but they're slim. The gap between them and the Giants is widening all the time, and you can't sustain hope on such a diet.

37 Defeats on Road.

The two games dropped here by the Cubs in current series raised their total season's defeats away from home to thirty-seven. Their victories on the road number nineteen. Their home record is the reverse, with something to spare. At Wrigley field they have taken forty-two games, while losing only fourteen. They have nineteen more to play on the present trip and they close the season at St. Louis with two games. That leaves twenty-one games for them on their own comforting Chicago field.

It is estimated that 90 victories will win the pennant. Supposing the Cubs win 11 of their 21 remaining road games. That's a stiff program for them in view of past performances. That would make them 72 wins and 61 defeats. To attain the needed 90 victories they then would have to capture 18 of their remaining 21 home games. The Giants, to accomplish 90 victories, need 25 wins in 46 remaining games. That is only a bit better than .500 baseball.

Root Faces Betts.

For tomorrow's game here Manager Grimm intends to start Charley Root. The Cubs anticipate Huck Betts, and not with relish. For the opener at New York the important pitching job will be entrusted to Lonnie Warneke. The starters in the subsequent games with the leaders will be Malone, Bush, and Tinning. Then the real test will come in the shape of 12 games in 8 days evenly divided between Philadelphia and Brooklyn.

TWO HELENS KEEP ON ADVANCING IN U. S. NET TOURNEY

Forest Hills, N. Y., Aug. 17.—[Special.]—Helen Wills Moody emerged from the maze of rumors concerning her physical welfare today to whip Mrs. L. R. C. Michell, nonplaying captain of the British Wightman cup team, 6-1, 6-2, in the third round of the women's national tennis tournament.

The crowd of 2,000 in the west side stadium was astonished by the transformation in Mrs. Moody's game. All evidence of restraint, supposedly to protect a back injury, had disappeared and she lashed out with her oldtime vigor and ruthlessness.

Mrs. Michell Helpless.

Mrs. Michell scored only 30 points, 14 in the first set and 16 in the second. She was utterly helpless after the opening game, when Mrs. Moody committed three double faults but pulled it out at 8-6.

The first major revolt against Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., defending champion, came to naught when Miss Jacobs eliminated Freda James, English Wightman cup player, 6-3, 6-4, in the first third round match. The shots of the frail Britisher did not carry enough punch to offset Miss Jacobs' battering blows, although her game was superior tactically.

Miss Round Advances.

Dorothy Round, considered the most dangerous of the English contenders and Miss Jacobs' probable semi-final opponent, reached the quarter-finals by humbling Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn of East Orange, 6-2, 6-1.

Alice Marble of San Francisco triumphed easily over Carolyn Swartz Hirsch of White Plains. Miss Marble's powerful forehand whipped Mrs. Hirsch, 6-0, 6-2.

Mary Heeley, England's No. 1 player, achieved a hard earned victory over Baroness Maud Levi of New York, 6-4, 7-5, and Sarah Palfrey of Brookline, Mass., conquered Mrs. Agnes J. Lamme of Rye, 6-0, 6-2.

Carolin Babcock of Los Angeles, runnerup for the 1932 title, was eliminated, 6-4, 6-4, by Betty Nuthall of England.

THE HILL-AIR-ITY MAKES DEBUT AT CAMP ALGONQUIN

Tells News Events at Vacation Haven.

For a number of years THE TRIBUNE has been delivered to Camp Algonquin, the summer camp for needy mothers and children which TRIBUNE readers help the United Charities to maintain. Yesterday there came to THE TRIBUNE a brand new newspaper —the Camp Algonquin Hill-Air-Ity.

The Hill-Air-Ity is a two column mimeographed paper containing the important news events of each week in the camp. It has a staff of reporters that scurry through the vacation haven with all the inquisitiveness of their adopted profession. And when it goes to press [it has a circulation of 500] the subscribers wait impatiently for the news hot off the press. The newspaper was named at the close of a week's contest by a mother living in the Oak Park cottage.

"She says we have hills, plenty of fresh air, and we do smile and laugh a lot, which defines the word 'hilarity,'" the editorial in issue No. 2 reports.

Reflects Happiness in Camp.

The little newspaper reflects happiness among the campers more accurately than a casual observer might find on a visit to the camp. In its columns are reported joyous events and good times and a philosophy of better days ahead. Mothers are moved to write verse to express their happiness. For instance:

'Tis summer time and 'tis fine, you bet,
All Camp Algonquin is up and around Enjoying the beautiful place.

A little girl voices her appreciation of her favorite sport in the camp: "I like swimming at Camp Algonquin better than anything else, because it is such a great sport to dive into the clear, cool water at the swimming pool and come up feeling very brave because I can stay on top of water that is deeper than I am tall. Several of our girls have their white badges for being able to swim in the deep water and the rest are learning fast."

A note of tragedy creeps into the paper with the report of the death of Al, the pet puppy. The reporter explains how the pet met his fate:

"We fed him milk and puppy biscuits, but I suppose we were too anxious to have him grow large, because once in a while we fed him bacon and rich gravy, which caused his death. We hate to think he will not frisk about our dormitory any more. Some of us cried ourselves to sleep the night he died."

Host to Needy Mothers.

For another month Camp Algonquin will be host to needy mothers and their children, giving each of them two weeks of fun and frolic that they will remember all their lives. Contributions are needed to finance these vacations. Only $8.40 will send a mother or her child to the camp. Can you make a vacation possible? Only $3 arrived yesterday for the fund. The total amount received this season is $1,765.37. Several thousand dollars is needed.

Five girls in Williams Bay, Wis., sent $3.10 to the free ice fund yesterday, the proceeds of a bridal show given for the fund. "Every one enjoyed it more because it was given for a good cause," they wrote. Those taking part in the show were Patsy Darley, Claire Baumbach, Margaret Mockenhaupt, Elaine Reid, and Ruth Baumbach. The Bookhouse for Children sent $4, and L. H. C., $1, giving the ice fund a grand total of $1,631.76.

Contributions to both funds should be sent to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE, Tribune Tower.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

NOT A CHICAGO RACKETEER, SAYS AARON SAPIRO

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Taking the witness stand in his own behalf, Aaron Sapiro, organizer of farm coöperatives who once sued Henry Ford for libel, swore to Gov. Lehman today that he was in New York City on May 30 and not engaged in a laundry "racket" in Chicago, as claimed in an indictment against him there. Gov. Lehman reserved decision on the request of the state of Illinois for Sapiro's extradition.

Sapiro was indicted with Al Capone and others for conspiracy to commit malicious mischief as counsel for the Chicago Laundry Owners' association, involved in a racket investigation.

Sapiro's counsel, David P. Siegel of New York, told Gov. Lehman is would be "a gross injustice" to sign the extradition papers permitting Illinois to take Sapiro there to answer to the charges.

"The sole purpose of indicting Capone with the others was to link his name with theirs," Siegel declared. "It is a matter of common knowledge that Capone was in prison at the time the alleged conspiracy took place."

Three witnesses also swore that they visited Sapiro in New York the same day on which, according to the charges, he was racketeering in Chicago. One of them was Judge Harold Simando of Newark, who said he had to sign a register to get into Sapiro's office.

TRY TO PIN LINDY BABY KIDNAPING ON PAIR IN JAIL

Denver, Colo., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Rocky Mountain News said tonight two federal agents are attempting to connect Harvey Bailey and his associates with the abduction and murder of the infant son of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in March, 1932.

The newspaper said it has also learned the agents have been assigned to the Lindbergh case "for life" or until the abductors of the child are apprehended.

Harvey Bailey, accused of the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man, is under arrest in Dallas, and another alleged member of the gang, Albert L. Bates, is held here. Federal authorities declined to comment on the News story.

A hasty check of records indicated both Bates and Bailey were at large on the day the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped. Bates escaped from the Paw Paw, Mich., jail in December, 1931, while Bailey's prison record begins in August, 1932.

HOLDS STATE TAX ON SALES APPLIES TO NEWSPAPERS

Joseph J. Rice, director of the state department of finance, announced a new ruling on the "retailers' occupation tax" which brings newspapers under the state 2 per cent sales tax.

"Newspapers, magazines, and periodicals are tangible personal property," read the new regulation, "and receipts from retail sales thereof—that is, to purchasers who use them and do not purchase them for resale—are within the act. The person making the final sale of the newspaper, magazine, or periodical is answerable under the provisions of the retailers' occupation tax."

The ruling was issued at the request of downstate newspaper publishers, who urged the following of a Michigan precedent holding that newspapers represent a service and are not tangible personal property.

Hospitals are not required to pay the Illinois retailers' tax of 2 per cent except on articles sold independently of their regular service, it was announced yesterday by J. M. Braude, assistant to Mr. Rice of the state department of commerce. "Sales of tangible personal property, such as drugs, bandages and the like, when separately billed to patients, constitute sales at retail, and the hospitals are liable for the tax on gross receipts derived from such sales," Mr. Braude said.

NOT GUILTY PLEA IN QUADRUPLE POISONING CASE

Benton, Ark., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Hinting that he may make new disclosures shortly, implicating one or more persons, Mark H. Shank, 41 year old attorney of Akron, O., entered a plea of not guilty before a justice of the peace here today to the poison murder of four persons.

Shank told Sheriff Virgil Rucker that he would not elaborate on his written confession of the quadruple poisoning of Alvin Colley, the latter's wife and two small sons, until his law partner, Fred Cain, arrives from Akron.

When Cain arrives, Shank said, he might disclose new information that would enlarge upon the motive already advanced—that he feared implication in a theft of state's evidence against a client of his with which Colley was charged.

For the first time since he was captured after Colley and one of his sons were found dead in their automobile, Mrs. Colley and another son dying, and a third child suffering from poison, Shank showed emotion today when an Akron newspaper man talked with him. Tears came as he showed a telegram from his wife saying: "Have all confidence in you, love."

DON'T TRIFLE WITH COMMON CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief

Constipation gets its grip on a person almost unawares. It often starts with such little things. Headaches, Listlessness, Bad Complexion, Unpleasant breath. If unchecked, it may seriously impair your health.

Fortunately, you can avoid this danger by eating a delicious cereal. Laboratory tests show that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides two things needed to overcome common constipation: "bulk" and vitamin B. ALL-BRAN is also a rich source of iron for the blood.

Biological tests demonstrate that the "bulk" in bran is similar to that in leafy vegetables. Inside the body, it forms a soft mass, which gently clears out the intestinal wastes.

How much better than taking unpleasant patent medicines. Two tablespoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Serious cases, with every meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

GRAINS STAGE FAST RECOVERY AFTER DECLINE

Corn, Oats, Rye Rise Limit; Wheat Up.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The headlong decline in American grain markets, which has been under way for a number of days, and only checked by "pegged" prices, came to an abrupt halt yesterday. A wave of scattered buying orders, practically all of them in small amounts, came into the pits, and after a brief period of hesitation at the start prices shot upward with a rapidity that surprised the trade.

Only the exchange limitations on daily advances checked the bulge in corn, oats, and rye. Corn was 4 cents and oats 3 cents higher at the last, while rye gained 4½ to 5 cents. December corn was 54⅜ cents at the close, with no offerings at that figure. Barley gained 3¾ to 4½ cents for the day.

Wheat Drops, Then Soars.

Wheat dropped 5 cents at the opening, the maximum downturn permitted for the day, with December touching 85¾ cents, or 38¾ cents under the high on July 18. Then the price rallied as rapidly as it had declined and closed at 93¼ to 92⅞ cents. Net gains were 2 to 2¾ cents. Winnipeg led the advance in wheat and closed with a net gain of 2⅝ to 3½ cents.

September wheat closed in the local market at 89¾ to 90 cents, with May at 96¾ cents. The latter touched 99¼ cents on the bulge, after selling at 89⅞ cents early, a new low for the season.

May corn and oats were also in new ground early. September corn was 49⅜ cents bid at the last, against sellers at 45⅜ cents on Wednesday. The May delivery closed at 60⅛ cents. September oats finished at 36¾ cents bid and December at 40⅛ cents.

Buying Orders Unfilled.

Many unfilled buying orders for corn and oats were in brokers' hands when the markets closed and the same condition prevailed in December rye, which was 73⅝ cents bid at the last, no trading being permitted above that figure during the day by the exchange regulations. September barley was 51¾ cents bid at the last.

First evidence that the grain markets had righted themselves was witnessed in corn. A small break at the start was followed by general buying, which quickly rushed the price above the previous close, and within a few minutes the bull movement spread to all pits. Brokers who had millions of bushels of all grain to sell at the close on Wednesday claimed probably 50 per cent or more had been canceled overnight. Once the selling pressure was reduced, normal speculative operations were effective in the markets.

No Evidence of Pool.

There was no evidence of pool or concentrated buying in any grain yesterday. Assurance was given by those who were responsible for the efforts to form a pool to support the market on the previous day that such a proposal had been dropped late Wednesday afternoon. In consequence, they pointed out, there are no pool holdings to be liquidated on advances in the market. The head of one of the leading firms said he regarded the situation in the grain markets now as the healthiest in three months.

A drastic change in the psychology of the trade was given as the prime factor in causing the about face of the grain markets. More attention was given to supply and demand factors than for many days, with especial comment on the official announcement that drought in Argentina was damaging the new wheat crop.

Announcement that the department of agriculture would start to formulate a plan to export wheat from the north Pacific coast to the orient added to the confidence of buyers.

HURLEY TO SAIL TODAY ON RETURN FROM EUROPE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

He has conferred with British bankers representing British, Canadian, and Dutch interests in the concern and discussed with them the annual report. He declared they were "interested and pleased."

As a member of the industrial advisory council of the recovery act, he will communicate with Gen. Hugh S. Johnson as soon as he arrives in New York. He declared he is both hopeful and optimistic regarding the Roosevelt recovery program, adding that big corporations will realize when they have studied the act that the President's proposals really are in their favor.

Markets Rise Without Aid of Mythical Pool

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Grains and stocks finally turned around yesterday and headed upward, not because of the mythical "pool" that scared traders had tried to conjure up the night before, but because public confidence had returned to the markets.

Oats, corn and rye gained their limits and wheat closed about two cents higher for the day. In New York stocks rose in sympathy with grains.

* *

For days it had been apparent that the steady decline in grains was due to mob psychology. Not only were daily fluctuations limited, but an absolute minimum for each grain kept prices artificially at specified levels. These minimums had been imposed by the Chicago Board of Trade at the behest of officials of the department of agriculture.

The minimum quickly became a maximum. Speculators refused to take a position in a manipulated market. All were afraid that once in they would be unable to get out because of the absence of buyers.

* *

The "peg" was removed Tuesday night. On Wednesday the market continued stagnant, but by Wednesday night a heavy volume of buying orders had accumulated and the trading public had come to the conclusion that prices were about as low as they would go, considering the poor condition of all crops and the clearing up of forced liquidation.

The grain market was weak at the start yesterday, but steady buying soon developed and prices quickly rebounded from their lows. In Washington the administration was apparently lending a little well concealed assistance, for the dollar weakened in foreign exchange on miscellaneous inflation talk emanating from the capital.

* *

With grain prices substantially up from their low points the "pool" propaganda died out. It developed that there was no pool and would be none.

Whether there would have been a pool if the market had declined yesterday instead of advancing or whether scared professionals were merely trying to kid the scared public could not be ascertained.

One report was that a syndicate headed by Hallgarten & Co. and Lehman Brothers, New York investment houses, was planning to organize an investment trust to buy wheat and sell stock. According to the dope this plan fell through when its sponsors discovered that before selling stock it would have to be qualified by the federal trade commission and be cooled for 20 days before it could be offered.

* *

Another report was that terminal groups had banded together and would take delivery on enough September wheat to support the market. There being only 40 million bushels of open interests in September wheat such a plan would probably not have required more than $5,000,000.

Many grain men were talking about pools, but there is no evidence that these pools ever got beyond the talk stage. In Washington department of agriculture officials were asked if there was any way that the department could support a wheat pool financially. These officials replied that there was not, and that besides such a plan smacked too much of the old grain stabilization idea.

Veteran traders, suspicious because of the deliberate manner in which sponsors of the "pool" rumor sought to build it up, properly discounted this talk. And the grain market, poolless, made a healthy unmanipulated move into higher ground.

DOLLAR DROPS MORE THAN CENT IN GOLD VALUE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—Reversing its recent trend, the American dollar today retreated against the principal foreign currencies. The dollar was worth 73.76 cents in terms of French gold francs at the close, against yesterday's final price of 74.91 cents, a decline of slightly more than a cent. The franc closed at 5.32½ cents, compared with 5.23 cents yesterday.

The British pound was worth $4.49 when trading halted today, a 9 cent advance over yesterday's quotation. Other foreign funds followed suit and moved slightly against the dollar. The Canadian dollar closed at 94.37½ cents, an improvement of one-quarter cent over yesterday.

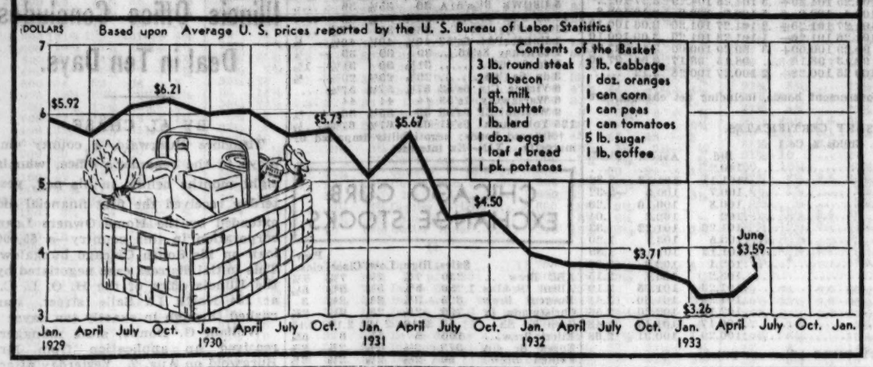
Monthly Fluctuations in the Cost of a Market Basket of Groceries



Higher Coal Wage to Aid Illinois Mines

Illinois' sick coal industry stands to improve its competitive position if the recovery administration is successful in effecting an upward revision of wages in the nonunion mine areas in Kentucky and West Virginia.

Traditionally a union mine area, the coal industry in Illinois for many years has been at a distinct disadvantage in competing with the nonunion areas for the great middle western coal consuming market.

Labor is the most important item in production, accounting for 60 to 80 per cent of the cost of coal. The Illinois union mines have maintained a basic daily wage of $5, while the eastern operators were paying wages as low as $1.50 to $3.80 a day.

East Invades Chicago Market.

The lower production costs of the eastern and southern operators enable them to cut deeply into the natural market of the Illinois mines.

The Chicago metropolitan market, industrial workshop of the nation and the largest coal consuming area of its size in the world, furnishes an illustration of the fate which overcame the Illinois coal industry in the last decade.

Ten years ago Illinois mines were furnishing two-thirds of the coal used in the Chicago market. In recent years only one-third of the coal consumed in the district has come from Illinois mines. Outside non-union areas have stepped in under the noses of the Illinois operators and stolen a good share of their market. The Illinois mine owners have been helpless in attempting to meet this situation.

NRA May Adjust Differences.

The NRA promises to bring a degree of relief which may help offset the relatively high labor costs in Illinois. The outcome of the conflict between the recovery administration and the eastern operators on the labor question is in the balance. There is every probability, however, that Illinois will benefit in the end.

Since the memorable Jacksonville agreement of 1917, Illinois has been known as a union coal state, while other areas have broken away. In competing for the Chicago market Illinois operators have had one factor in their favor in the shorter haul and lower freight costs, but this has not been sufficient to offset the high labor costs.

INT. NICKEL HAS BEST EARNINGS FOR 2½ YEARS

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Profits of the International Nickel Company of Canada, Ltd., rose sharply in the June quarter to $1,943,046, equivalent after preferred dividend to 10 cents a share on the common stock, the company announced today.

The exhibit, the company said, was the best for any quarter since the period ended Sept. 30, 1930. In the first quarter this year the company had a net loss of $80,158. Second quarter profits, the report stated, do not include credit of $522,517 representing exchange adjustments which are now carried in contingent reserve.

For the first six months net profit amounted to $1,862,888, equivalent to six cents a share on the common, compared with net loss of $93,255 for the first half of 1932. Cash and demand loans as of June 30 totaled $8,060,293 compared with $4,956,132 at the end of the first quarter.

Commenting on the widening use of stainless steels and the replacing of the simple irons by alloys, Robert C. Stanley, president, said in the report that the company has been "actively associated with progress along these lines and is encouraged to look forward to a broadening development of the use of white metal alloys."

ACCEPTANCES BY BANKERS SOAR 51 MILLIONS IN JULY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—Bankers acceptances increased $51,584,513 in July to a total volume of $738,258,963, the American Acceptance council announced today. The increase was the greatest gain in a single month shown during the last two years and the total of acceptances outstanding was $33,612,371 greater than at the end of July, 1932, the report disclosed.

The June and July increases of $17,000,000 and $51,584,513, respectively, constituted a gain of nearly $69,000,000, and Robert H. Bean, executive secretary of the council, declared the increases indicated "the greater use to which banks and bankers are putting their acceptance privilege."

International Harvester Votes 15 Cent Dividend

Directors of the International Harvester company yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 15 cents a share, payable Oct. 16 to stock of record Sept. 20. The same dividend was declared three months ago.

SEARS-ROEBUCK SALES IN LAST FOUR WEEKS 11.1% OVER LAST YEAR

Sales of Sears, Roebuck & Co. in the four weeks ended Aug. 13 were 11.1 per cent above the comparable period last year, the best gain reported in 2½ years.

In only one other four week period since January 1930, has there been an improvement over the preceding year's sales. That was in the period ended July 16 this year, when volume was up 1 per cent over 1932.

Sales were $19,179,932 for the period ended Aug. 13, against $17,258,862 in the same weeks last year. Cumulative sales for 1933 are still below 1932, with the first seven periods aggregating $128,170,522, against $143,837,781 in the same period a year ago. Thus sales volume for the seven periods is 10.9 per cent below last year, against 11.1 per cent improvement shown in the last four weeks.

UNITED CORP. OMITS COMMON STOCK PAYMENT

New York, Aug. 17.—Directors of the United corporation, a public utility holding company having assets of $593,000,000 at the end of 1932, voted today to omit dividends on the common stock, but declared the regular dividend of 75 cents a share on the preferred stock, payable Oct. 2 to stock of record Aug. 31.

The company had been paying 10 cents a share quarterly since April 1, 1932. Before that rate went into effect quarterly payments of 18¾ cents a share were made from April 1, 1921, to Jan. 2, 1932. An initial dividend of 50 cents a share was paid on Oct. 1, 1930.

United corporation holds large blocks of stock of some of the most important utility systems in the east, including Niagara Hudson Power, United Gas Improvement, Columbia Gas and Electric, Commonwealth and Southern, Public Service Corporation of New Jersey, and Consolidated Gas of New York.

The only loss of dividend income sustained by United since the last dividend was paid on its common was through the omission of payments of Niagara Hudson. United holds 1,914,417 shares of Niagara, so that the omission of the latter's quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share meant a loss of $478,604 to United. United holds 203,900 shares of Consolidated Gas of New York common, on which the quarterly dividend was reduced 15 cents a share on June 15.

SAYS TEXTILE PROCESS TAX STOPS BUYING

Greensville, S. C., Aug. 17.—(AP)—S. M. Beattie, president of the South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' association, today said the imposition of the federal processing tax in the textile industry had resulted in a stoppage of buying by the public of cloths, and added that the situation is approaching a critical stage.

"Mills are now running on orders already received," he said, "but they cannot do this indefinitely, nor can mills afford to store up goods on account of the processing tax. Mills cannot continue to operate unless they get orders and the public is not buying because of the processing tax."

Print cloth manufacturers have delegated T. M. Marchant and B. E. Henry, Greenville textile mill men, to go to Washington to discuss the situation with Secretary Wallace and Gen. Hugh S. Johnson. They left for the capital yesterday.

MAJESTIC SELLS 50,000 UNITS TO DISTRIBUTORS

Orders for about 50,000 units were placed for immediate shipment on the occasion of the three day convention of Majestic distributors held in the Edgewater Beach hotel, said John F. Ditzell, assistant vice president and general sales manager of the Grigsby-Grunow company, manufacturers of Majestic radios and refrigerators. This was the largest commitment received in any one meeting during the last three years, Mr. Ditzell said.

The convention, he declared, was the largest in attendance of any since 1930. Distributors from all over the United States and from foreign countries were represented.

Mr. Ditzell said that confidence was expressed by the distributors in the "success of the administration's NRA program, which was highly endorsed by our entire organization."

Week's Bank Clearings Are 8.9% Over Year Ago

New York, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Bank clearings showed further improvement in the week ended Aug. 16, rising 8.9 per cent above the comparable week a year ago. Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., reported today that bank clearings in all leading cities of the United States totaled $4,777,628,000 for the week, against $4,109,469,000 in the comparable period of 1932. In New York City there was a 13.5 per cent increase on clearings of $3,160,751,000, against $2,785,972,000 a year ago.

This Hoarding Business Gets Complicated

A demure young lady hesitatingly approached the gold teller's window in the federal reserve bank recently. "I own a $1,000 'gold bond' on a real estate property," she said, "does that mean I am violating the anti-hoarding act?"

"No, madam," the teller told her politely.

Many yarns are told about the early business enterprises of Errett L. Cord, young Chicago industrialist, who is making a name for himself in the transportation field. Cord is known as a hard worker. Once in his early career, a friend relates, he started on a vacation—a motor trip through the mountains. The first day he came across a truck which had gone off the road in a mountainous section. The driver was sitting by the road completely discouraged.

Cord sized up the situation and struck a bargain with the driver under which he was to take over the truck and the scattered load for a knockdown price. He returned to Los Angeles—the vacation forgotten—and formed a bus line of his own to operate over the same route.

"Stocks and Stock Jobbing in Wall Street, with Sketches of the Brokers and Fancy Stocks," is the title of an interesting book written by "A Reformed Stock Gambler," which is in the possession of the University of Chicago library. An extract from the book reads: "Inflations and explosions of the beautiful bubbles manufactured in Wall street whose varying hues of transcendent brilliancy as they are wafted along by prosperous gales, tempt the admiring public to grasp at them and—get 'sucked in' by their mysterious disappearance." The book was published in 1848.

A good example of the manner in which gossip becomes myth and myth becomes fact is seen in the series of items published about the size of Edward A. E. ["Doc"] Crawford's egg commitments prior to his recent bust. A writer in the New York Times on July 30 said that "if he carried as many eggs in his accounts as he was reported to have done" he was long 22,000 contracts—that is, 22,000 railroad carloads, 12,000 dozen per car, or 3,168,000,000 eggs.

Time, a weekly magazine, followed this a few days later with the statement that the press had said that Crawford was long 3,168,000,000 eggs. Business Week, another weekly magazine, added a million eggs and printed the report that the "acquisitive cirurgeon had contracts for 3,169,000,000 eggs."

The financial editor of the New York World-Telegram on Aug. 9 asserted flatly that when Crawford went overboard he "had in his possession contracts calling for the delivery of about 3,500,000,000 eggs, or more than enough to make omelets for every person in the United States for two weeks."

Most of the nation's trading in egg futures is done through the Chicago Mercantile exchange. An officer of that organization explains that if Crawford held all the egg futures that were outstanding he couldn't have held more than 3,933 contracts, because that was the total amount of open interests. Thus, if he had all the egg futures Crawford could have held not more than 566,000,000 eggs—one-sixth the number he is reported to have held.

LOSS REPORTED BY AGRICULTURAL CHEMICAL FIRM

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—The report of the American Agricultural Chemical company and its subsidiaries for the fiscal year ended June 30 shows a net loss of $508,127, after taxes, depreciation, depletion, and other charges, compared with a net loss in the preceding year of $1,224,056.

The quick net assets of the company on June 30 were $13,286,572, which was equal to $42.09 a share on the outstanding stock.

PLAN TO MERGE 12 ROCK ISLAND UNITS APPROVED

Form One Company to Improve Credit.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 17.—Merger of eleven subsidiary units with the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific Railway company into one corporation was authorized today by the interstate commerce commission. The system has a total mileage of 8,358 in 14 states.

JAMES E. GORMAN.

A final order approving the merger, however, will not be issued until the Rock Island accepts conditions to the effect that it will abide by rulings yet to be made by the commission as to proper determination of the consideration for each acquired subsidiary, the proper method of accounting therefor and whether or not the Rock Island should acquire the Wichita Northwestern railway in Kansas.

Subsidiaries Effected.

The merger involves the Rock Island and the subsidiaries whose capital stock is directly owned by the Rock Island, except in the case of the Peoria, Hanna City and Western, which is controlled through the Peoria Terminal company. In addition to the Peoria company, the operating companies are the Rock Island parent company and the Chicago, Rock Island and Gulf Railway company.

Nine of the subsidiaries are nonoperating companies. They are the St. Paul and Kansas City Short Line, the Choctaw, Oklahoma and Gulf, the Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana, the Morris Terminal, the Peoria, Hanna City and Western, the Rock Island and Dardanelle, the Rock Island, Stuttgart and Southern, the Rock Island, Memphis Terminal, and the Rock Island Omaha Terminal.

No Payments in Merger.

The merger will not involve the payment of a consideration, the parent company proposing merely to take over directly the financial obligations of its subsidiary companies for which it is already responsible through its guaranties or proprietary interests.

The Rock Island, now in process of reorganization under the federal railroad bankruptcy act, has $104,470,000 of first and refunding mortgage bonds maturing in 1934 and in addition, $11,000,000 of Burlington, Cedar Rapids and Northern bonds and a like amount of Rock Island, Arkansas and Louisiana bonds. Furthermore, it has a Reconstruction Finance corporation loan of $10,000,000 falling due next year.

A balance sheet of the consolidated corporation as of May 31, 1932, gave the par value of its stocks and bonds as $447,024,631 and the value of the properties as $513,053,252.

Union to Improve Credit.

James E. Gorman, president, said the merger was necessary primarily to give the Rock Island the power to secure its bonds by direct lien on all the system properties. Bankers advised that the merger would greatly improve the credit of the Rock Island and should enable its bonds to be marketed much more easily and at better prices.

Commissioners Mahaffie and Tate dissented from the condition as to acquisition of the Wichita Northwestern. They contended that as the road is in process of reorganization, it is necessary that its financial and corporate structure be simplified.

"This proceeding is merely a step in that direction and involves nothing beyond that," they said. "No properties are being brought into the system and the imposition of the condition adds a contingent liability which is quite incapable of appraisal. It complicates a situation already complex."

GAS FIRM GIVES ORDER FOR 6,000 TONS OF PIPE

Youngstown, O., Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Youngstown Sheet and Tube company today started production on an order for approximately 6,000 tons of 18 inch pipe for delivery to the Northern Gas and Pipe Line company, to connect the company's Rush county, Kansas, gas field with their main line in that vicinity.

The order will require about two or three weeks' operation of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company's electric weld pipe mill at the Brier Hill plant.

Reserve Banks Report Shows Credit Gains

Increased business activity last week was reflected in the federal reserve figures released yesterday afternoon. New York member banks, despite a further drop of 116 million dollars in demand deposits in the week ended Wednesday, expanded their total outstanding credit 21 million dollars. Chicago banks' outstanding credit rose 19 millions for the week.

The 116 million dollar decline in New York banks' demand deposits is a continuation of a drain that began two months ago after the enactment of the new banking act, which forbids payment by banks of interest on such deposits. Demand deposits of Chicago banks dropped 10 millions for the week.

New Bonds' Effect Is Small.

Despite the fact that during the week the United States and treasury floated nearly 1 billion 200 million dollars' worth of new bonds and notes the holdings of government securities by New York member banks declined 8 millions. Chicago member banks' holdings of government bonds increased 16 millions.

Commercial loans accounted for 13 millions of the 21 million dollar credit expansion of New York member banks. In Chicago commercial loans expanded 1 million.

In New York brokers' loans increased 14 millions for the week, the New York member banks increasing such loans for their own account by 22 millions and reducing loans for out of town banks 8 millions.

Buy 10 Million U. S. Loans.

The report of the twelve federal reserve banks combined shows another 10 million dollar increase in their holdings of government bonds. Such holdings have been increased at the rate of 10 millions for several weeks. A drop of about 80 millions in their holdings of treasury certificates and bills and an increase of 80 millions in their holdings of treasury notes was interpreted as indicating that the reserve banks had been supporting the new two year notes in the open market, although there was nothing in the report to indicate whether the notes bought were those of the new issue.

Circulation of federal reserve notes declined about 3 millions during the week and circulation of "asset" money increased nearly 2 millions.

Despite the renewed drive on gold hoarding the increase in the gold reserves of the federal reserve system was only about 4½ millions for the week.

GOLD BULLION IN BANK OF ENGLAND SHOWS DECREASE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—For the first time in weeks the gold bullion item in the Bank of England statement today showed a decline from the figures of the preceding week. The drop is comparatively small—to £191,518,000 from £191,529,000.

At the same time the ratio of the bank's property reserves to its liabilities increased to 45.7 per cent from 41.5 per cent of the preceding statement, and the circulation of bank notes dropped to £379,442,000 from £384,974,000.

STOCKS SPURT AHEAD; FOLLOW RISE IN GRAINS

Gain Up to 8 Points on Buying Wave.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 17.—Electrified by the sudden and unexpected rally on the Chicago grain pit, the stock market broke out on the bull side today and ran up an eddifying list of price gains ranging all the way from $1 to $8 a share. It was the most impressive demonstration the exchange has been able to put on in nearly a month.

The volume of trading approximated 2,474,000 shares, which was only moderately less than the turnover for the preceding day, when prices declined sharply.

Repeal shares led the uprush, but practically every group in the list was carried to sharply higher levels on a buying wave that was both broad and vigorous. Farm implement stocks met with the best demand since wheat began to turn down last month. J. I. Case rising 7½, Deere 4, and International Harvester 3⅝ points.

Rails and Oils Rise.

Railroad issues rebounded 1 to 4 points, the oils had their best day in weeks, and various specialties were marked up to around their highs for the rebound from the July setback.

The exact reason for the sudden outburst of bullish enthusiasm was a matter of no little discussion among traders. Reports were in circulation that the distress holdings of commodities, which had been overhanging the markets for several weeks, had been taken care of, and in the absence of any more definite explanation this was regarded as good a reason as any for the sudden change in sentiment.

As usual, however, there were suspicions that the grapevine channels between Washington and Wall and La Salle streets had been busy again and many were wondering what the "impending development" could be and when the public would be let in on the secret.

Stocks Turn About Suddenly.

Like the reversal of trend on the grain market, the stock price turnabout came with dramatic suddenness. The opening had been anything but cheerful. Selling of the rails, due presumably to estimates on carloadings indicating that the freight movement for last week was not quite as heavy as that of the preceding week, had a depressing influence on the entire list and prices sagged from a fraction to a point or so over a wide range.

The good news from the wheat pit, however, caused a general scramble for stocks and quotations went bounding up in a way that left floor traders wide-eyed with wonder. Within an hour some of the leaders had risen as much as 7 points above their early lows. There was a lull in the early afternoon, but the closing hour saw a renewal of the buying movement and most issues closed around their best levels of the day.

Sharp Advances Shown.

Among the big gainers were Allied Chemical and Dye, up 4¾; American Can, up 4¼; Auburn Auto, 5¾; Bayuk Cigar, 5¾; J. I. Case, 7½; Colorado Southern, 6; Columbian Carbon, 5½; Crown Cork and Seal, 4½; Johns-Manville, 4½; Industrial Rayon, 7; U. S. Steel, 4; Union Pacific, 4; National Distillers, 8; Houston Oil, 4, and Homestake Mining, 10 points.

News from Washington that the administration would submit an oil code during the afternoon stimulated the oil shares and gains of 1 to 4 points were made by the standard issues, Houston, Atlantic Refining, Texas corporation, and others.

Utilities were held back somewhat by the action of the United corporation board in omitting the common dividend of 10 cents a share quarterly, but final prices on the group as a whole were substantially higher.

Mail order issues were buoyant. Montgomery Ward rose 3 points and Sears-Roebuck nearly 4.

New York, Aug. 17.—After narrow and irregular fluctuations in early transactions bond prices in most directions today responded to the recovery in stocks and commodities. Gains of 1 to 2 points were freely sprinkled over the list.

Federal government bonds were strong. Treasury 3¼s found a new high. Indicative of the sentiment in the government market was strength of Liberty Fourth 4¼s in the face of a possibility of a call for partial redemption next April.

Chesapeake corporation 5s were particularly active on reports that the dividend rate on Chesapeake and Ohio stock will be increased. Alleghany 5s of 1949 were active on the buying side, as also were International Telephone 5s of 1955, Nickel Plate 4½s and 5½s, Missouri Pacific bonds, Southern Railway general 4s, Milwaukee 5s of 1975, and Columbia Gas 5s of 1961. A heavy tone developed in Denver and Rio Grande 4½s, Rock Island 4½s of 1952, New York, Westchester and Boston 4½s, St. Louis-San Francisco 5s and Wabash 5s of 1976.

A generally firm tone in a quiet market was displayed by gilt edge rails and utilities.

Weakness of Australian Commonwealth bonds was a feature in the foreign section. As has become their custom, British 5½s closely followed the movements of sterling exchange, sagging in early dealings and then recovering smartly when the pound rose. The bulk of other foreign liens ruled slightly higher.

Purchasing Stock.

Investors' Guide: Will you please inform me how to buy stock from a broker? By that I mean will you please explain for me the proper method of placing an order and also tell me how the system works? — V. C. H.

Answer: The first rule in stock dealing is to do your business only through reputable brokers. If the stock you contemplate purchasing is listed on an exchange, do business with a house that is a member of that exchange.

When you have decided to purchase a certain stock you order the broker to make the transaction for you, telling him how many shares to buy and what price you are willing to pay. You can purchase "at the market," in which case the broker will purchase the stock at the prevailing price. If you order the purchase to be made at a stipulated price the broker will not purchase the stock for you unless he can get it at that price or less.

When the order is placed the broker transmits it to a clerk on the floor of the exchange on which the stock is listed. The clerk then completes the transaction, purchasing the stock from another clerk who is selling it for the account of his client.

A confirmation is sent to you stating the number of shares purchased, name and class of stock, price per share, total price, commission charges, tax, and the net price to you.

A period of time then elapses until the stock which you bought is sent to the transfer agent and registered on the books of the company in your name. After this is completed the stock is mailed to you.

A common misconception among tyro speculators is that stock is bought from the stock brokers. It is not. The broker acts on the order of a client, purchasing the stock for him.

The broker should not be confused with the dealer, who purchases a block of securities at wholesale and then proceeds to distribute at retail.

New Orleans Terminal.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me information on New Orleans Terminal bonds?—R. S. L.

Answer: New Orleans Terminal company was leased jointly by St. Louis and San Francisco railroad and Southern railway. Each owned one-half the company's stock and guaranteed the company's bonds jointly. In 1913 St. Louis and San Francisco defaulted in its payment of one-half semi-annual interest, forfeiting its entire interest in the property.

Southern Railway company is now the sole owner of the capital stock, and is the sole guarantor of the 4s, due 1953.

The security, the terminal property in New Orleans, represents valuable property which is of great value to Southern Railway company.

WORLD SUFFERS FROM DROUGHT; ALL CROPS HURT

B. W. Snow Points to Vast Areas Damaged.

A gloomy picture of supplies of wheat, both present and prospective, in the leading exporting countries of the world was painted yesterday by B. W. Snow, crop expert and statistician. He also laid considerable stress on the unusual situation which has developed in the feed grain situation in North America.

"The situation is so unusual and covers such a vast area it is not surprising that the public is unable to grasp what has already happened to th wheat crops in North America or the drought which prevails in the southern hemisphere," said Mr. Snow. "The United States and Canada seeded 84,000,000 acres of wheat for this year's crop. Continued drought and heat resulted in nearly 20,000,000 acres being abandoned owing to the wheat being worthless or returning such a small yield that it did not pay to harvest."

U. S. Crop Badly Damaged.

"Latest estimates on the combined United States crop of wheat this year show an aggregate yield of 500,000,000 bushels, or 227,000,000 bushels less than harvested last year and 150,000,000 bushels less than the average domestic disappearance of the last ten years. Official dominion government reports indicate dry weather of the last two weeks has caused a further reduction in the crop, although the July 31 conditional figures were among the lowest on record.

"As conditions stand at the present time the outlook for the new southern hemisphere wheat crops is far from rosy. Harvesting in Argentine will not start for a number of weeks, but already we are receiving drought reports from that country.

Poor Start in Australia.

"Australian cables indicate that about 50 per cent of the wheat producing area in Australia has made a poor start due to drought. It is apparent, therefore, that all of the so-called "big 4" exporting countries have either secured subnormal wheat crops or have a fair prospect of doing so.

"Not only wheat but also other grain crops in the same countries are involved to a greater or less extent in what is probably one of the greatest droughts ever known, embracing a large part of the four countries which raise the bulk of the grain which enters into international channels.

"Official returns indicate that approximately 325,000,000 acres which normally are devoted to the production of the five major grain crops in the United States, Canada, Argentine, and Australia are involved in a drought of greater or less intensity."

FEAR OF PROCESS TAX DRIVES HOG PRICES LOWER

Fear of the processing tax on pork which is to be levied Oct. 1 to reimburse the agricultural adjustment administration what it spends disposing of the light pigs and piggy sows in its program to cut production, is the chief bearish factor in driving hogs into new low price channels. Yesterday's toll amounted to 10 to 20 cents, many sales in the heavy butcher column indicating losses of 25 cents, compared with the high point of Wednesday.

Trading was sluggish in the extreme for a time during the forenoon, but picked up some action later when word of a rally in lard, bellies, and grain came on the market and bolstered up the selling side. Packers seem to have made up their mind that a tax on pork is inevitable, since all preparations for the program to kill off the pigs and piggy sows have been completed and only the setting of a date holds the plans in check. What is worrying the processors of pork is how big a tax Secretary of Agriculture Wallace may impose.

Yesterday's top sales were down to $4.50, exactly $1 under the highest mark of the year, while the general average sank 10 cents to $3.80, $1.40 below the 1933 high and 35 cents lower than a year ago. Again the heavy grades of butchers were hit hardest on the decline, numerous loads of 300 to 350 pound averages going as low as $3.50 to $3.75 and occasional lots running up to 400 pounds sold down to $3.35. Most of the packing sows cashed within a range of $3.00 to $3.35 with some of the big weights at $2.85 and $2.90, all new lows for the season.

The movement of supplies to markets has increased on the break, the four day total at the eleven leading markets at 304,000, showing an increase of 30,000 head, or 10 per cent, compared with a week ago and a gain of 50,000 compared with the corresponding period in 1932.

Fewer Cattle, Prices Steady.

Heavy cattle receipts during the first three days of the week had evidently filled the majority of the buying orders for this week, so that yesterday's abbreviated numbers had little strengthening influence on prices. Bulk of offerings change hands on a mostly steady basis, occasional sales of good grades showing a little strength compared with the average of Wednesday. The market until yesterday had been under pressure of numbers and current quotations show losses of 15 to 35 cents, compared with a week ago.

Declines in the lamb market were halted yesterday and strength cropped up in places, but trading continued rather slow when buyers balked at paying more money. Selected grades of natives sold at $7.75 and under to both packers and city butchers, with sorting not so severe in the top classes as on preceding sessions this week. Range lambs of medium quality that were carried over from the midweek trade sold yesterday at $6.65 to $7.00.
